Thrilling Attacks Against Enemy Infantry and Trains by British Airmen Described

Daring Ground Stunts Growing in Popularity and Destructive Work Is Done by Pilots Through Swooping Down Upon German Troops and Supply Trains Back of the Lines.

Herewith is presented another installment of Capt. Allan Bott's notable story of air fighting in France, called "The Cavalry of the Clouds," which is being published in full in the Post-Dispatch, an installment being presented daily.

By CAPT. ALLAN BOTT.

Copyright, 1917, by Doubleday, Page & Co. Copyright, 1918, by Otis F. Wood.

FIGHTING squadrons soon caught the craze for ground stunts and carried it well beyond the lines. One machine chased a train for miles a few hundred feet above, derailed it and spat bullets at the lame coaches until driven off by enemy craft. Another made what was evidently an inspection of troops by some boche Olympian look like the riotous disorder of a futurist painting. A pilot with some bombs to spare spiraled down over a train, dropped the first bomb on the engine, the second, third, fourth and fifth on the soldiers who scurried from the carriages. When a detachment of cavalry really did break through for once in a while, it was startled to find an aerial vanguard. A frolicsome biplane darted ahead, pointed out positions worthy of attack and created a diversion with Lewis gun fire.

> THE British pilots are competent and daring, but they would be the last to claim an undue share of the war's glory. Many of them deserve the highest praise, but then so do many in all other branches of the army and navy. An example of what I mean is the reference to R. F. C. officers, during a parliamentary debate, as the "super-heroes of the war"—a term, which, for ungainly absurdity, would be hard to beat. To those who perpetrate such far-fetched phrases, I would humbly say: "Good gentlemen, we are proud to have won your approval, but, for the Lord's sake, don't make us ridiculous in the eyes of the other soldiers." CAPT. ALLAN BOTT.

At the end of a three-hour offensive patrol my pilot would often descend our bus to less than a thousand feet, cross No Man's Land again, and zigzag over the enemy trenches, where we disposed of surplus ammunition to good purpose. On cloudy days, with the pretext of testing a new machine or a gun, he would fly just above the clouds until we were east of the lines, then turn around and dive suddenly through the cloudscreen in the direction of the boche positions, firing his front gun as we dropped. The turn of my rear gun came afterward when the pilot flattened out and steered northward along the wrong border of No Man's Land. Once, while flying very low, we looked into a wide trench and saw a group of tiny figures make confused attempts to take cover, tumbling over each other the while in ludicrous confusion.

A Bold Novice Runs Amuck.

I remember a notable first trip across the lines made by a pilot who had just arrived from England. He had been sent up to have a look at the battle line, with an old-hand observer and instructions not to cross the trenches. However, he went too far east, and found himself ringed by Archie bursts. These did not have their customary effect on a novice of inspiring mortal funk, for the new pilot became furiously angry and flew Berserk. He dived toward Bapaume, dropped unscathed through the barrage of anti-aircraft shelling, for which this stronghold was at the time notorious, fired a hundred rounds into the town square from a height of 800 feet and raced back over the Bapaume-Poziers road pursued by flaming "onion" rockets. The observer recovered from his surprise in time to loose off a drum of ammunition at Bapaume, and three more along the straight road to the front line, paying special attention to the village of Le Sars.

It was above this village that I once was guilty of communicating with the enemy. During a three hours' offensive patrol around the triangle—Bapaume-Mossy Face Wood-Epehy—we had not seen a single Hun machine. Low clouds held Archie in check and there was therefore small necessity to swerve from a straight course. Becoming bored, I looked at the pleasant-seeming countryside below and reflected how ill its appearance harmonized with its merits as a dwelling place, judged on the best possible evidence—the half-hysterical diaries found on enemy prisoners, the bitter outpourings anent the misery of intense bombardment and slaughter, the ominous title, "The Grave," given to the region by the Germans who had fought there. An echo of light-hearted incursions into German literature when I was a student at a boche college suggested that the opening lines of Schiller's "Sehnsucht" were peculiarly apposite to the state of mind of the Huns who dwelt by the Somme.

Germans Bombarded With Poetry.

Wishing to share my discovery, I wrote the verse in large block capitals, ready to be dropped at a convenient spot. I took the liberty of transposing three pronouns from the first person to the second, so as to apostrophise our boche brethren. The patrol finished, my pilot spiralled down to within a 300-yard range of the ground and flew along the road past Martinpuich, while I pumped lead at anything that might be a communication trench. We sprinkled Le Sars with buleets, and there I threw overboard the quotation from a great German poet, folded inside an empty Very's cartridge, to which I had attached canvas streamers. If it was picked up, I trust the following lines were not regarded merely as wordy frightfulness:

Ach! aus diesem
Thales Grunden
Die der kalte Nebel
druckt,
Konnt' ihr doch den
Ausgang finden,
Ach! wie fuehlt' ihr
euch begluecktl

Of all the tabloid tales published last year in R. F. C. "Comic Cuts," the most comic was that of a mist, a British bus and a boche General. The mist was troublesome; the bus, homeward bound after a reconnaissance, was flying low to keep a clear vision of the earth; the General was seated in his dignified car, after the manner of Generals. The British pilot dived on the car, the British observer fired on the car, the boche chauffeur stopped the car, the boche General jumped from the car. Chauffeur and General rushed through a field into a wood; pilot and observer went home and laughed.

Thus far the facts are taken from the official report. An appropriate supplement was the rumor, which deserved to be true, but possibly wasn't, that the observer turned in the direction of the vanished General and plagiarized George Robey with a shout into the unhearing air: "Cheeriho, old thing; here's a go, my hat, priceless!"

So much for past accomplishment. The future of war flying, like all futures, is problematical; but, having regard to our present unquestionable superiority in the air, and to the blend of sane imagination and practical ability now noticeable as an asset of the flying services directorate, one can hazard the statement that in the extended aerial war which is coming the R. F. C. and R. N. A. S. will nearly satisfy the most exacting of critics.

The Rapid Development

The tendency is toward a rapid development of aircraft even more startling than that of the past. Some of the modern scout machines have a level speed of 130-150 miles an hour and can climb more than 1000 feet a minute until an abnormal height is reached. It is certain that within a year later machines will travel 160, 180 and 200 miles an hour level. Quantity as well as quality is on the upgrade, so that the power to strike hard and far will increase enormously, helped by heavier armament, highly destructive bombs and more accurate bomb sights.

And, above all, we snall see a great extension of ground covered by air cavalry.

The production of a machine specially adapted for this purpose, armored underneath, perhaps, and carrying guns that fire downward through the fuselage, is worth the careful attention of airplane designers. It is probable that with the reappearance of extended military movement on the western front, as must happen sooner or later, continuous guerilla tactics by hundreds of low-flying airplanes may well turn an orderly retirement into a disorderly rout.

When and if a push of pushes really breaks the German line, I fully expect that we of the air service will lead the armies of pursuit and make ourselves a pluperfect nuisance to the armies of retreat. Temporary Second Lieutenants may yet be given the chance to drive a boche General or two into the woods, or even—who can limit the freaks of Providence?—plug down shots at the Limelight Kaiser himself, as he tours behind the front in his favorite role of Bombastes Furioso.

Chapter VIII—the Daily Round

DURING a bout of active service one happens upon experiences that, though they make no immediate impression, become more prominent than the most dramatic events, when the period is past and can be viewed in retrospect. Subconsciousness, wiser than the surface brain, penetrates to the inner sanctuary of true values, photographs something typical of war's many aspects, places the negative in the dark room of memory, and fades into inertia until again called upon to act as arbiter of significance for everyday instinct. Not till long later, when released from the tension of danger and abnormal endeavor, is one's mind free to develop the negative and produce a clear photograph. The sensitive freshness of the print then obtained is likely

Only a Decisive Success

In Present Great Battle, Says Simonds,

Will Benefit Germany

Establishment of One-Man Command and America's Actual Entry Into the War in Force Are Two Great Aids to Allies in Present Crisis—Hindenburg Far Short of Goal and Unlikely Ever to Reach It.

By FRANK H. SIMONDS,
Author of "The Great War," "They Shall Not Pass."

AS we approach the end of the third week of the German offensive in Picardy, there is no mistaking the fact that the second battle of the Somme is rapidly taking on the color and character of another and more gigantic Verdun with all that Verdun means to the German and allied publics.

It is well to recall once more the exact circumstances under which the present German campaign was undertaken. The Germans did not attack in Picardy in 1918 as the French did in Champagne in 1915, to relieve an ally and with only a subordinate hope of breaking through. They did not attack as did the British and the French at the Somme, to save an imperiled sector of the western front, as Verdun had to be saved in July, 1916. They had a far more ambitious objective than had the ill-starred Nivelle one year ago today at the Aisne. His maximum purpose was to turn the German out of France and Haig's hope in the Ypres campaign of last summer and fall did not go beyond the freeing of the Belgian coast.

> PRESUMABLY we are putting around 200,000 men at the service of the allies. This is a small number, as this war goes, but it is equal to a class of French recruits, it is half as large as the annual increment of the German army and, since the men are picked, it is unquestionably better in its human material than either a French or German class.
> Again, if the allies have lost 200,000 in the opening phase of the second battle of the Somme, the gap has been promptly filled by American troops. The German, on the other hand, having lost between 250,000 and 300,000 in the same operation, must find the troops to replace wastage out of his own reserves. He can do it: he probably had upwards of 1,000,000 reserves to replace wastage, when the campaign began, but the rate of exhaustion for him is thus far faster than for his chief opponents, and henceforth, under the wise plan to put our troops in more promptly, brigaded with French and British troops, we shall aid regularly to replace allied wastage, while the German must still rely exclusively upon his own man power.—FRANK H. SIMONDS.

Now the Germans, in their venture, have returned to their own precedents of the Marne and Verdun campaigns. Their offensive was a deliberate attempt to win the war by one gigantic thrust, and it was so advertised by the German press, which, in such instances, always speaks by the book, and at the dictation of the German army. The German set out to impose a German peace upon the world by one more victorious campaign. He struck the British in 1918 as he struck the French in 1916. Before Verdun he advertised his offensive as designed to "break the heart of France." Before his last attack he promised to "break the spirit and will of Britain."

Territory Means Little

There was no permanent profit for the German, at this time, in a gain of territory without a rupture of the allied front. Least of all was there any profit in the reconquest of that desert he had created between the Scheldt, the Somme, the Scarpe and the Oise in his great retreat of the previous year. A similar advance anywhere else on the front would have been incalculably more disastrous to his foes, because it would have devastated a new region of France, and thus added one more to the burdens the war has brought upon the French nation.

He struck where he did because it was the one place in the western front where he could hope, given a complete success at the outset, to produce a situation out of which he might win a supreme triumph and end the war. I dwelt upon this detail, if it be a detail, because it is essential now, and in the next few weeks, to keep in mind the German purpose. It is essential because otherwise there may be an unnecessary pessimism which will have a bad effect.

The German is bound to make new gains, he is almost certain to advance his line at points, just as he did at Verdun, but at Verdun, the main consideration is not local gain, but the extent to which he realizes his main purpose.

The Verdun Objective

Verdun was a failure for the German after he was checked on the Duaumont Plateau on Feb. 26, 1916. He had aimed, in that campaign, to take Verdun with his first thrust, interpose between the French armies of the central and of the eastern groups, separate them and compel a general French retirement with the abandonment of several thousand square miles of French territory and an eventual resumption of the march on Paris. By March 14 there was not the smallest chance of a separation of French armies. Verdun became merely a local issue, French strategy became purely a problem of holding on until the British should be ready for their Somme attack.

French strategy realized its larger purpose and, by the smallest of margins, also saved Verdun. Then the British attacked at the Somme on July 1. Verdun was in extreme danger, and it would almost certainly have fallen in the next few months had there been no diversion of German reserves and artillery to the Somme battleground. But even the taking of Verdun in the summer of 1916 would not have been a commensurate return for German casualties amounting to between 300,000 and 400,000. Even had Verdun fallen, French strategy was to hold the mass of the German armies in play until Britain could be fully ready.

Now, bearing in mind the Verdun parallel, we can see the German offensive in its true light in the present instance. The German had to face partisan political conditions at home and abroad. His own people were terribly tired of war and were suffering from hardships incident to war. They wanted peace, but the victories in the east and the collapse of Russia had temporarily raised their spirits and they were willing to believe their military leaders, who told them that one more great effort in the west would bring a German peace and, what was even more important, would enable Germany to make her enemies pay the costs of the war, for every German of ordinary intelligence realizes that Germany is ruined, if she can obtain no indemnities and does not break down the hostility of her present foes, which will cripple her economic future.

Finally, the German realized the United States was beginning to be a military factor. The flow of American troops to the Continent, which several months ago had amounted, on the statement of the French High Commissioner, to nearly a quarter of a million, was continued and increasing. Granted that Germany might have a slight preponderance of numbers available for the offensive in March and in April, the margin was so small that to postpone action for two or three months would wipe it out as a result of the increase of American troops in France. Time ran against the German as it did at the time of Verdun, when he sought a decision before the British could get ready.

The Allied Situation

Now they have allied strategy and certain equally plain facts to wrestle with. Conceivably the Germans were slightly superior both in numbers and in gun power. An allied offensive would thus have relatively small chance of great success, because previous allied offensives had failed when guns and men were both available in superior numbers. But there was arriving and would continue to arrive a stream of men and munitions from America which would, by 1919, give the allies a final advantage in both, and provide them with a reserve which, all things considered, might be regarded as practically inexhaustible.

The supreme purpose of the allies, then, was to endure with as little loss of ground and men as possible, until America was ready. Anything but a major disaster was a price they must and did consent to pay for time and by a major disaster they understood a German victory that would insure German peace.

Given these conditions on both sides, let us see how the game worked out in the first three weeks of the German offensive. The German planned a Napoleonic blow. He undertook to break through the British on a front of 50 miles, drive a wedge between the French and the British, roll the British back upon Calais and Boulogne, that is north of the Somme, contain the British force on a restricted front with a relatively small fraction of German troops, who would dig in. Then the German would concentrate all his resources, and not improbably a material fraction of the resources of his allies, upon a final blow against the French.

What the Plan Was

In his original conception, Hindenburg expected to break through the allied line, throw the French back behind the Seine and the Oise, contain the routed British behind the Somme, or even the Canche, and then, with his hands free for the moment, deal the death blow to the

Why Wage-Earning Women Must Be Mobilized for War

DISTRIBUTION THE VITAL FACTOR

Chief of National Service League Explains Necessity of Getting Many of Sex's War Activities on Factory Rather Than Volunteer Basis, and Deplores Disposition of Many to Bar Any but Munition Work However Important It May Be.

MARIE L. OBENAUER,
Industrial Chairman National League for Woman's Service.

WASHINGTON, April 13.

"IT takes four men to maintain one fighting man at the front." Just about one "man" in four is a woman. A million and a half men at the front means 6,000,000 men at the back, of which 1,500,000 are women—and that is just about the size of the Woman's Army of Industrial Defense.

The star within this army is the woman munition maker. Like the bandage roller, she has occupied the limelight so long that she is rated at her full value as a factor in the winning of the war. But the soldier at the front must be fed, clothed, equipped and shipped before he can shoot, be shot, be bandaged or be otherwise first or second aided; and it takes only a moment's thought to realize that spinning yarn, weaving cloth and turning it into covering and clothing for the fighters, weaving linen for airplane wings, tanning leather and making it into soldiers' shoes, canning fruits, vegetables and meats for the camps, making bolts, nuts, screws and rivets for ships, and a hundred other kindred and common factory occupations are as much "war work" as making guns and gas masks, rolling powder pellets or Red Cross bandages. But what everyone knows a lot of people forgot at the entrance of this nations into war. Whether or not there was a good reason for forgetting does not matter so much as that there was a result—and a bad one.

> IF in peace times the textile mills of Rhode Island get the labor away from the textile mills of Massachusetts, and Pennsylvania mills lure it away from both, the penalty paid is lost time and an inroad on the sustained earning power of the wageworker and an increased price to the consumer. But when there is a war to win and a nation to sustain and allies to provision, all at the same time and by the same industries, calamity impends unless there is an assured and not a probable, a stable and not a shifting, supply of the requisite labor. Whether the nation will have it depends upon whether a national war-time policy of labor mobilization and woman-labor substitution is developed.—MARIE L. OBENAUER.

The Demand for Skilled Women

Within a few months after Congress declared the existence of a state of war calls for nearly 10,000 factory and mill trained women were made upon the Bureau of Registration and Information of the National League for Women's Service—a bureau that operates under the official sanction of, and in co-operation with, the United States Department of Labor. The most insistent calls, and those hardest to fill, were for women, not to make bandages or bullets, but to do woman's world-old job, to spin, to weave, to knit, to sew, and to conserve food—not in the old home kitchen fashion, which produces in dozens, but in the new factory and mill way, which the productive power of woman labor is raised a hundred and a thousand fold.

"My daughter is a saleswoman. She'd like to do war work—wireless telegraphy in the army or navy, munition making, Red Cross, or something like that. But she would not go into an ordinary factory." This speech, or the substances of it, was heard again and again in a house-to-house canvass to secure a few score women in a Middle Western town to operate power sewing machines. The material running through the machines was appearing a few hours later as obvious war equipment. But the occupation itself was only the well-known power sewing-machine process and undistinguishable from that performed on hundreds of kinds of commercial work.

Munition Making Is Preferred

Unquestionably, the readiness with which women go into munition factories is influenced materially by the higher wages generally paid in these newly erected establishments, where labor costs are not dragging anchor in the price level of general commercial commodities and in the necessity of anticipating labor adjustments after the war. But "higher wages" does not explain in full the marked preference for munition making. Frequently when highly skilled operatives, at work in nonessential industries were sought for important war work in essential industries other than munition making, there was no difference in the wages offered, yet flat refusals to "go into another trade to do just common factory work again" often preceded any discussion of wages.

The failure of these wage-earning women to respond to the call for their skill was but the reflection of their failure to appreciate and respect their own singular importance and consequent responsibility in the winning of the war. Their attitude, however, is just a part of the war psychology of the public—and especially of the woman public. In tomes of talk about mobilising the "woman power" of America, the importance of the wage-earning women with factory and mill training in the winning of the war was lost in the dramatic and appealing picture drawn of motor corps, canteen division, girl "yeomen," Red Cross chapters, and all the novel activities that sprang into being on the advent of the war.

To fairly measure the special war service which the wage-earning woman must render is not to gainsay or belittle the war work which the millions of wageless must do, nor does it deny to the millions of bread-winning women outside the factory and mill a part in the national battle for world liberty. There are lines of national defense which they must help to hold; but the part of the wageless woman in the winning of the war is another story, and that of the bread-winning woman unqualified for factory or mill service is still another. This tale is the story of the million and a half women engaged in war and other essential industries.

Need of Canned Goods

The canned-goods provision alone for that army of a million and a half men that is to be in France by midsummer is 524,000,000 pounds a year. Which woman can supply this food the better—the woman who puts up a score of cans of corn a day, say, in her own kitchen, or the trained cannery workers, whose woman power, by invention and subdivision of labor, produces over 1000 cans a day? At the height of the last canning season there were approximately 80,000 women—more than half of the total cannery labor force—in these great food-conserving kitchens of the country. Besides these trained cannery workers, there are over 125,000 women in the food, spice, condiment, extract, drug and tobacco factories upon which the War and Navy Departments are making constant demands.

Further reading of the "war" orders placed by the Government with industrial firms other than makers of munitions brings another division of the woman's army into view. It takes more than 300,000,000 yards of cloth to clothe, bed and shelter an army of a million and a half men at the front for one year. If there were any Priscillas left at the spinning wheel or Marthas at the ancient loom, they would not contest the outranking importance of the modern ring-frame spinners, powder-loom operators and other textile-mill women, who, as nearly half of the total labor force in the textile mills of the country, must do their interlocking and inseparable part in producing this stretch of cloth.

In the cotton mills centered so largely in the South and New England, in the woolen and worsted mills of Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, there are not far from 275,000 women trained in textile occupations. Failure to use, or wasteful use of this trained woman textile labor will continue to strip the men we send to the front of the clothing and covering which all the eager war-working women outside the mills cannot supply.

Need of Women at Looms

We do not need the "war" orders to tell us that the 300,000,000 yards of all sorts of cloth required for a million and a half fighting men are useless until the material has passed through the power-driven sewing machines of the modern factory. There are over 212,000 women trained in occupations closely allied with the work performed by over 150,000 men to turn the 300,000,000 yards of cloth into the required millions of army and navy uniforms and overcoats and other personal wear; into bed sacks and shelter tents, and scores of other articles. These 212,000 women form a division of co-ordinate importance with the food and textile divisions in the woman's war-sustaining army.

Recently the navy regulations included sweaters in the outfit of the sea fighters and marines. It takes about a week to knit a sweater by hand as "war" knitting is now done. The little mill-trained girl at the power-driven knitting machines will furnish 300 sweaters in one day, or 1800 sweaters while the hand knitter is making one. That million and a half men at the front will require over 15,000,000 knit undershirts, nearly 20,000,000 pairs of underdrawers and 27,000,000 pairs of socks during the year. The 130,000 knitting and hosiery mill women, working in close industrial co-ordination with about 5000 men, are the only dependanble supply of labor for the manufacture of the hundred million dollars' worth of hosiery and knit goods which our Government or-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

British Labor Program.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I think your report of British Labor's plan for "reconstruction of society after the war," is the greatest piece of world news since the announcement of the beginning of the war. It is only second to that chronologically, not in importance, because a complete victory must come first.

This Labor plan would be a fitting and as a necessary sequel to the complete downing of the Hun, with his Kultur and Pan-Germanic ideas, if the world is to progress as it might and should. It settles the relations between Governments and peoples, between capital and labor along proper lines, and furnishing the material basis for health, comfort and leisure; gives the intellectual and sipirtual sides of humanity free chance for development. I feel grateful to you for publishing this most important article at such length and know that all who read it will join me in my hearty thanks to you.

W. S. STUYVESANT.

Let the Governors Meet.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

After reading the forceful, practical and timely address of Gov. Gardner delivered at Art Hill amphitheater, I suggest that our patriotic citizens invite the Governors of the states of the Union or their representatives to meet in this city at some early date to consult mutually and thus further ways and means to aid the President and those about him in carrying on this war for civilization. They to be the city's guests. I need not refer to our central location, our well-known hospitality, etc.

E. A. NOONAN, ex-Mayor.

The Menace of Illiteracy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The Department of the Interior, in one of its most recent bulletins on negro education, reveals an alarming condition that exists in the South and the necessity of Federal action. It reports that in South Carolina in 1910 there were 212,125 negro children of school age and 145,384 white, yet the teacher's salary per child 6 to 14 in the State for the negro was $1.44 and that of the white was $10; percentage illiterates for the negro from 6 to 14, 38.7, and for the white of the same age, 10.3; in Mississippi there were 150,758 negro children 6 to 14 in 51 counties and 121,233 whites of the same age; teacher's salary per child, $10.60 for the white and $2.26 for the negro; percentage illiterate for the white from 6 to 14, 5.2, and for the blacks, 35.6; in Louisiana, teacher's salary per child for whites, $13.75, and for the blacks only $1.31; percentage illiterate, white, 14.1, and for the blacks, 48.4.

Considering the above figures compiled by the Government itself, and they represent the general attitude of the South toward negro education, the Government should not find it very difficult to act.

Conscientious Objectors.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

My attention has just been called to a news article in your issue of March 18 regarding the arrest at Englewood, N. J., of William Oral James for alleged failure to report to a St. Louis draft board for service. Since the article implies that Mr. James' position as a conscientious objector may be due to his relationship to me as his guardian during his minority, please let me make the following statement:

1. Although I have been active in the movement to secure recognition by the Government of all conscientious objectors, whether they were members of religious sects or not, I have never undertaken to influence the stand of a single man in regard to what he conceives to be his conscientious duty.

2. I have been exceedingly particular not to influence those toward whom I have a personal responsibility—Mr. James and others. Conscience seems to me too sacred a personal possession to be tampered with.

3. Our traditional right to liberty of conscience has been fully affirmed again in the President's order of March 20 relating to conscientious objectors. We feel that what we have done to contribute to this end has been a real service to the country in preventing the bitter public controversy which the conscientious objector has created in England, where short-sighted statesmanship failed to make any substantial reconciliation between individual liberty and the State under the Conscription Act.

ROGER BALDWIN.
New York.

"FIGHT TO THE END."

Field Marshal Haig's order to the British armies paraphrases so closely Gen. Joffre's famous order to the French armies at the Marne that we must believe that a crisis has been reached in the battle raging on the British lines. It lacks only Joffre's order to advance.

There cannot be a shadow of doubt of the significance of such phrases as "every position must be held to the last man," and "with our backs to the wall * * * each one of us must fight to the end. They mean that the British armies cannot retire farther with safety. The battle must be fought out on the line the British are holding to victory or defeat.

There is one question uppermost in every mind: Is there another Joffre card in the hands of the allies? Does the order mean merely a desperate fight to a finish on the lines that have marked the battle so far, attack and counter attack with masses of men and guns or is the stop order to be followed by predetermined strategic movements with strong reserves

There is encouragement in Marshall Haig's statement that "the French army is moving rapidly to our support." Large reinforcements of British forces promise strength enough to hold the line. But are these reserve forces enough to assure a powerful counter blow against the Germans such as Joffre delivered at the Marne.

All of this is in the councils of the allied commanders. Results are in the lap of the future. We only know that the greatest crisis of the war has come. We have faith in the valor and the fighting will of the allied armies. We believe they will hold the enemy. Haig's order, while marking the crucial point of the battle, undoubtedly is based upon faith that his armies will hold.

We know that Americans who are thrown into the battle will give a good account of themselves. We have reason to regret that the available American force is so small. Its rapid enlargement is a vital necessity to reinforce either the holding or the striking armies of our allies.

The crisis puts tragic emphasis on the call for us to speed up. Every man and every gun we can send to France should be on the field at the earliest possible moment. Surely Washington is awake to this necessity.

A RURAL IDEA OF LIBERTY.

No secret was made of the plan to carry the Third Liberty Loan campaign into the country districts and ask for subscriptions in places where no requests were made for the first two loans. There may have been some of the promoters who were anxious as to the answer. If so, the first reply would appear to indicate a full affirmative within the four weeks devoted to obtaining subscriptions.

The place to find the answer to the question as to whether the farmers are willing to back the flag with their money as well as their plows is in the small-town papers, where reports of community events are gathered.

Here are a few instances of what happened: Walnut Ridge, Ark., and a part of Lawrence County was expected to take $118,000 of bonds, and on the first day took $90,000, and the meeting decided to far exceed the quota. Rector, Ark., was asked to take $48,000 and took $55,000 the first day. Indianola, Miss., took $130,000 of $200,000 of a self-made quota, without an effort. The $200,000 is far above that assigned by the district managers. Greenwood, Miss., did not open the campaign until Monday and had the $300,000 quota subscribed before the salesmen began. Mound Bayou, Miss., where only negroes live, subscribed for $14,000 of $17,000 the first day. Bolivar, Tenn., has passed its total.

These are scattered partial reports, but such records stir neighboring towns, which might have been slow in getting into action, into patriotic rivalry.

WILHELM'S VASSAL.

That the Emperor of Austria should on March 31, 1917, have voluntarily recognized "France's just claims to Alsace-Lorraine," and on April 11, 1918, have assured the German Emperor that "no proof is necessary that I am fighting for your provinces," is a fair measure of the meaning of the Russian debacle to the Central Powers.

The letter from the Austrian Emperor to Prince Sixtus which the French Government has made public was written only two weeks after the Russian revolution and the overthrow of the Czar. At that time autocracy in Europe was facing an enemy at home which threatened to be more formidable than the foe in the field. Nobody could be sure that Austria-Hungary and Germany would not soon witness an uprising of the people similar to that which had shattered autocracy in Russia. The outlook for Kaisers seemed dubious.

Accordingly, the Emperor of Austria framed a peace proposal of his own in a letter to his brother-in-law, who was "to convey privately and unofficially to President Poincare that I will support by every means and by exerting all my personal influence with my allies, France's just claims regarding Alsace-Lorraine." Belgium was to be entirely re-established in her sovereignty, and likewise Serbia.

In the meantime, Germany began its secret counter-offensive against the Russian revolution. No legal, definite Russian Government was firmly established, and under the influence of German intrigue things went from bad to worse. As the Russian demoralization increased the menace of revolution in Germany and Austria-Hungary diminished. Autocracy found itself in less danger at home than it feared, and even the entry of the United States in the war did not weaken its confidence that it could hold its own people by the simple process of reducing Russia to anarchy.

That is what happened, and, thanks to the Russian collapse, the Austrian Emperor is now able to assure the German Emperor that there is perfect solidarity between them in support of Germany's imperialistic policies.

There was a period of misgiving in the winter, when the negotiations with Russia were halted, and then Austria threw out new peace feelers, but the acceptance by the Bolsheviki of the degrading terms imposed by Berlin ended the danger in the east. The judgment of the German General Staff had been vindicated by events, and its proposal to undertake the conquest of peace with the sword on the western front met no further opposition. "France's just claims regarding Alsace-Lorraine" had ceased to exist, and with them went the Austrian Emperor's tentative program of peace. The vassal had learned his place.

There is today no Austria-Hungary except as a geographical expression. The dual monarchy is owned and controlled by Germany. Its Emperor is the obedient servant of Potsdam. Its statesmen think and act as the German General Staff commands them to think and act. British, French and American diplomacy can get nowhere by treating Austria-Hungary as a distinct political entity with a mind and purpose of its own. It is on that basis that the war must be fought, both morally and physically.

WHAT ABOUT DR. WEINSBERG.

In the light of Dr. Charles H. Weinsberg's statement in the Post-Dispatch that Germany will win the war in six months and impose a German peace on America and our allies, the disbanding of the Missouri State branch of the German-American Alliance of which he is president, is a timely act.

There is not a spark of the American in the man who holds and announces his opinion not only that Germany will crush France and destroy the allied cause in Europe, but that Americans with Britain, when this happens, will surrender and cravenly accept the autocratic peace terms of the Kaiser; in short, that America will shamefully lay down her arms, beg peace from the Kaiser and consent to his mastership of the world.

Dr. Weinsberg is giving all the aid and comfort of which he is capable to the enemy and is throwing whatever influence he possesses against America's putting another man or another dollar into the war.

Dr. Weinsberg's German-American Alliance ought to go at once, but what of Dr. Weinsberg?

We know where he stands in the war, but his arrest and trial will demonstrate where he and others of his kind stand under the law.

FOOD PLANTING STARTS WELL.

Texas, always the first State to report on farm crop planting, comes forward with the statement that the corn acreage is larger than ever before and that the cotton acreage will be reduced, probably 10 per cent. The cotton reduction is accomplished despite the fact that the early spring drouth kept many farmers from planting oats and this land will be put into cotton because there is no other proven crop to plant. The peanut acreage, prized for the oil, will jump from 600,000 acres to 2,000,000 acres, the agricultural officers estimate.

This indicates that the farmers are taking to heart the plea that they must raise more forage for animals and food for men. This propaganda has been earnestly pushed in the warmer states, where there is a fever to plant cotton and there has been considerable anxiety to know if the prayer would be heeded. Apparently it is, if Texas is a fair sample, and usually men are much alike in state-wide groups.

So far, the reports of the early planted crops are very good, above the average, but, of course, the season is early. An advantage farmers have this season over previous years, is the careful teaching at all of their meetings and in farm publications as to the identity and value of substitute crops. In Texas, for instance, a great gain is to be made this year in the sorghums, such as kaffir corn and milo maize, crops which can be planted late and which need but little water. If the preferred crops fail for any reason, especially drouth, these crops can be grown, and while they are little used as human food, they will relieve the strain on the grains that men prefer.

THE HARMONY OF WAR CRITICS!

Andre Cheradame continues in the Atlantic Monthly his attacks on what he calls the "strategic errors" of the Entente in holding the important line to be the western line and the allied failure to appreciate the potency of the Germans' "strategy of the political sciences."

Since his prior article, Col. Repington has printed further savage criticism on the scatter policy of the British and the dissipation of British energy in the side issues of Mesopotamia, Palestine and Saloniki that might be employed to crush Prussianism in France.

M. Cheradame counters in the April installment by deploring Col. Repington's influence on allied war councils and showing how many times he has been wrong since August, 1914, when he declared the Russians would be in Berlin within two months. He says the maxim about attacking the enemy at his weakest point dictated a movement through Southern Hungaria; that Montenegro, Servia and Rumania are strategically the key of the world war.

If a naval blockade of Germany is sound policy, he contends, a control of the Danube front is sound policy and for the same reasons, to prevent Germany from availing herself of the men and supplies of the Balkans and the East.

How great the harmony among military critics! Since the article was written events have done much to vindicate the view about the western front's vital importance. The fact is that the Entente has adopted completely the view of neither the so-called westerners nor so-called easterners. The result is no overpowering success in any field.

How invaluable the great forces distributed in other parts of the world would be just now in France is a thought that, despite all theorizing, forces itself on attention in these days of anxiety.

MY CITY.

O CITY of pain, you are wondrous at dawn
When the mists from your towers arise,
When the flames that the East from your spires has drawn
Melt the stars in your world-weary skies
The thunder of trade swelling through your steep gorges,
The din of your golden-reined charioteers
Is a paean of dollars and sirens and forges
Piping its charm to a million ears.

O city of toil, you are surging at noon
With the greed and the glare of a beast—
Sweating your heart to the piper's tune,
Gorging your soul at the ribald feast!
While your ticker and board are selling and buying,
And your sunken-eyed fools nay and nod,
Far out in the world the yellow grain's sighing,
Crowned with the sunlight of God!

O city of love, when the twilight's dark
Steals over the web of your streets,
Folding the wings of the alien lark
That sings in your stony retreats—
The light in your million eyes flames up,
And I know that your soul is white!
For you drink the dews and kiss the cup
Of your constant lover, the Night.

WHERE ARE THE MARTINS?

Sir: There are a good many purple martins about St. Louis every summer, and boxes in various parts of the city are usually occupied by colonies, large or small. Where are the martins now?

These cheerful birds usually return from the South about the first of April. The record of spring migration for this city, as published in the last issue of Bird Lore, gives the results of observations for 11 years, and the average date of arrival is shown to be March 21.

The males usually come first—sometimes only one or two of the swiftest flyers—and the mixed company puts in its appearance a few days later. March last year, as this year, was mostly spring-like, and two males came to their boxes in South St. Louis on the 15th of March. It appears in Bird Lore's very comprehensive symposium—''Some Notes on Martin Colonies''—that March 15 happens to be the earliest record of arrival, this observation, along with others from some fifty-five cities, having been made in 1888.

The late arrival of spring birds is always to be desired, as many fall by the way when they come so early as to be caught by cold weather, especially if there be snow or cold rains.. Certainly on April 10—cool, but bright and spring-like—it must be that these interesting and most useful birds are somewhere about, or, at least, that they have left the greater part of their long journey behind them and that they are coming on swift wings to receive the welcome that awaits them.

HEADQUARTERS AMERICAN FORCES
IN FRANCE, Nov. 30., 1921.

Honorable Emily Brown,
Secretary of War,
Washington, U. S. A.

Just as we all thought the war was over the few Germans left near here made a dash into our camp. I immediately issued a call to arms to my staff, but none of them was dressed at that hour, 10 a. m. Not one of them had her hair done up, or was halfway through her morning toilet. As they came running into my headquarters, they all declared themselves to be perfect frights and not fit to be seen at that time of the day. A few of them had their handbags, and began at once to powder their noses. The noise outside increased. The staff became alarmed; but we had no shelter in the way of cellars, so for the first time in the whole campaign we had to meet the enemy face to face. He soon swarmed over our barbed wire defences and rapidly approached my headquarters. I really doubt whether women were intended to do a man's part in life. As long as a woman can get her name in the papers on any sort of a pretext she is happy. She doesn't care if it is about charity, dress, marriage, gardening, divorce, amateur theatricals, living models, political reform, picketing the White House, or how much clothes she can discard in St. Louis or Palm Beach and still escape police interference—everything goes, even an occasional reference to good housekeeping; but over here we have no chance for these free ads.

Our alarm was unnecessary. The Germans who had come into our camp were simply hungry. Most of them were old, many wounded, and all had been left behind when the German retreat began last October. Col. Sophie Meyer of Milwaukee took quite a shine to one of them. Really, I think she pitied the poor fellow. Anyway he is coming over again.

We fed them all. Maybe a woman is still a woman, sometimes.

Anyway, we learned to be prepared.

Yours very respectfully,
MILLIE JAMES,
Commander in Chief.

P. S.—An agent of the great Paris store, ''The Bon Marche,'' came here last week asking for a list of all our forces here and at home. He is going to mail each one a catalog of the new spring styles.

FARM DEBIT AND CREDIT.

From the New York Evening Post.

"NO, it's not all velvet," Farm and Fireside reminds the city man who contemplates the estimate that last year's crop rolled 21 billions in gross receipts into the farmers' pockets, and wonders why there should be any doubt that every available acre will be under cultivation. The farmer's expenses are often overlooked. Of commodities the farmer must buy, Farm and Fireside enumerates a dolefully long list, all showing a steep rise in prices. In the New Republic Agnes C. Laut, herself a farm owner, warns us that unless we consider the farmer's difficulties and make it worth his while to sow and reap, we shall rue it in a food shortage. Arguments based upon the rising figures of farm expenses were the chief weapons with which the Senate recently attempted to fix the price of wheat at $2.50 a bushel.

The steady increase in farm expenses is indubitable. The price of seed has risen every year of the European war, and this year comes a vast increase in the cost of seed corn. A few years ago the farmer paid more than $1 a bushel only when ordering a specially selected variety. Now corn has brought at auction in the Northwest up to $10 a bushel; and in some states the price has been fixed at from $4 to $7.50, the seed being furnished by state agents who collect it upon a working capital provided by the Legislature. Seed wheat, rye, oats and timothy reflect the rising crop prices. The higher prices of farm machinery have recently been the subject of a statement by a committee representing the whole implement industry. Between 1914 and 1918, they state, tractors have risen a maximum of 60 per cent in price; spreaders and binders, 70 per cent; mowers, 76 per cent; plows, 93 per cent, and cultivators, 98 per cent. The farmers assert that the prices are really higher than this would indicate, those of Kansas, for example, furnishing us the information that a header which once cost $150 there, now costs $325; a plow which once sold for $55, now sells for $120, and a wagon which formerly was priced at $65 now is priced at $125. It need not be said that the implement manufacturers and dealers, who must meet the higher cost of steel, iron, wood and canvas, who conduct a seasonal business, in large part on the credit plan, and whose warehouses make their capital investment high; are not profiteering. The farmer who puts up a woven-wire fence, again, must pay 152 per cent more for steel than in 1914, and 110 per cent more for his fence posts. The cost of fertilizer has risen in some instances by 600 per cent. Whereas binder twine could be purchased a few years ago at 8 cents a pound, now its price for 1918 has just been fixed by Mr. Hoover at from 23 to 29 cents, according to quality. Farm and Fireside roughly estimates the rise in the cost of prepared feed, so necessary to dairy and poultry farmers, at 100 per cent.

The cost of labor has also steadily risen. In 1912 the farmer could obtain a hired hand, giving him board and bed, for $25 a month, or about half of what is now demanded. A day laborer will expect to earn, in the Middle West, fully $75 a month during the crop year; and whereas this day-labor was formerly quite willing to work from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m., or 6:30, it now balks at more than nine hours work. If the farmer is forced to borrow money to hire men, or purchase machinery, he must pay a higher rate of interest, even the Federal Loan system having recently advanced its rate from 5 to 5½ per cent.

Despite all these facts, which it is salutary for those who pay the producer the high prices he is now receiving to remember, we may still cling to the conviction that for all except the hopelessly inefficient farming is a very attractive calling under war conditions. The farmer's "rent"—the amount he must write off for interest upon land investment—remains fairly stationary. He gains more than ever by the fact that from the farm he obtains his food and [illegible] his fuel at a very low rate. There are few businesses in which it is possible for their managers to meet forced economy in a few years more easily than the farmer who has maintained his farm in good condition. Implements may be very high, but if a farmer puts his wagons and cultivators where lower prices would have tempted him to [illegible] he can patch the fence he would have replaced; he can use the old granary. The co-operative use of farm machines will be learned in rural communities. If labor is high, the necessity for providing it in abundance is bringing some fairly inexpensive forms of it into the field; the retired farmers who have patriotically come back, the youths marshalled from city and town, and the women called to operate machinery. But the great reason for our conviction is found in the familiar figures of the farmers' increased revenues. It is conservatively estimated that the farmer of 1918 receives for his wheat 103 per cent more than in 1914; for corn 100 per cent more; for barley 109 per cent; for cotton 307 per cent, and for potatoes 151 per cent.

Events in the Social World

Many Important Weddings Are Scheduled for This Week, Beginning With Lambert-Fairchild Ceremony at Home of Bride-to-Be Tomorrow Evening—Engagements of Interest Recently Announced Include That of Miss Annabel Nulson—Benefit Card Party at Liederkranz Club Tomorrow Afternoon.

LIBERTY BONDS have been the most conspicuous interest of members of the social world as well as of every one else the past week, and the part played by women in this loan, as in the former ones, has been of inestimable value to the nation.

The booths at the different stores, hotels and buildings have been presided over each day by prominent women who are devoting much of their time, money and efforts to the cause, and will continue to be until the campaign is ended on May 4, and much more than the $3,000,000,000, which is the mark set by the treasury will no doubt be subscribed. Next in importance to the Liberty Bonds come the "bonds of matrimony," and this week will see several weddings of note.

First and foremost among them is the marriage of Miss Mary Webb Lambert to Maj. Ralph Berry Fairchild, which will be celebrated tomorrow evening at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson Lambert of 6470 Forsythe boulevard. Miss Lambert will have Miss Charlotte Reyburn for her maid of honor and Isabelle Denyvan as the little flower girl. Lieut. Shelton is expected from San Antonio to be the best man. Miss Lambert since her debut three seasns ago has been one of the most popular girls in society She was educated at Mary Institute and an Eastern school. Major Fairchild is from Waco, Tex., and is one of the youngest Majors in the service. He is stationed at San Antonio, Tex. with the 345th Regiment and will take his bride there to reside.

THE next wedding scheduled is that of Miss Katherine Hedgecock, who will become the bride of Lieut. Thomas M. Webster Jr. on Tuesday, at the King's Highway Presbyterian Church. Miss Leonora Strassburger will be Miss Hedgecock's maid of honor and Mary Grayson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ingraham Grayson, will be the flower girl. Lieut. Webster will have Capt. E. J. Ellis of Camp Funston as best man and the bride-elect's brothers, Harvey and Houghton Hedgecock, will serve as groomsmen.

Miss Hedgecock is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hedgecock, who reside at the Buckingham Hotel. She was graduated from Hosmer Hall and then attended Oakesmere, a fashionable finishing school at Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Lieut. Webster's brother, Lieut. Grant M. Webster, was married in December to Miss Agnes Nelson.

ON Tuesday morning, in Kirkwood, Miss Hazel White will be married to T. Parvin Cook of Anderson, Ind. The ceremony will take place at 10 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. White, with the Rev. Frank H. Given of the Kirkwood Presbyterian Church officiating. Miss Lucille White, a cousin of the bride, has come from Spokane, Wash., to act as maid of honor, and Louisa Allen George will be the flower girl. Harold Shumate will serve as best man.

Only the relatives and a few intimate friends will witness the ceremony and it will be followed by a wedding breakfast. The couple will depart for a short honeymoon and will make their home in Anderson.

Among the out-of-town guests will be the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Elisha White; her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. White, all of Boise, Idaho, and her aunt and cousin, Mrs. Dr. F. L. Beck and daughter, Carroll Beck of Geneva, Neb.

AN important wedding of Wednesday will be that of Miss Etta Turner and Montreville Cogswell of Williamsport, Pa., which will be quietly celebrated at the home of her parents. Mr. and Mrs. T. Fitzhugh Turner of 470 Lake avenue. Miss Turner will have her sister, Miss Mary Hunt Turner, as her maid of honor and her young cousin, Lucy Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Hunt Turner Jr., as flower girl. Edgar Turner of Chicago will serve as best man.

The ceremony will be performed at 5:30 o'clock by Dean Carroll M. Davis of Christ Church Cathedral, in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends. Later Mr. Cogswell and his bride will depart for an eastern trip and will make their home in Williamsport.

Miss Turner has spent much of her time in the East, having been educated there and she and her sister spent the last two winters in New York with their aunt, Mrs. Drake. Miss Turner is a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families in St. Louis.

ON Saturday evening the wedding of Miss Helen Murray and Capt. Arthur K. Howell will be celebrated at the First Presbyterian Church at 8:30 o'clock. Miss Murray will have Mrs. Zach Mitchell as her matron of honor and Misses Katherine Middleton, Louise Edwards, Edith Taggart and Eleanor Robinson as bridesmaids. The bridegroom's attendants, owing to the uncertainty of furloughs, have not as yet been decided upon.

Miss Murray is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Murray of 5048 Waterman avenue. She is a Mary Institute graduate and attended Washington University for two years. Miss Murray has been extensively entertained the last few weeks, which attests her popularity.

Capt. Howell is from New York, but at present is in the Ordnance Department of the army, stationed at Dover, N. J. He is a graduate of Syracuse University and also of the University of Michigan.

SEVERAL engagements of interest have been announced recently among them that of Miss Annabel Nulsen to Edwin E. Wagner. Miss Nulsen is the daughter of Mrs. Minnie J. Nulsen of 3029 Longfellow boulevard. She was educated at Hosmer Hall and made her debut several years ago when she was maid of honor at the Veiled Prophets Ball. She is an accomplished musician and has been one of the most popular members of society in South Side circles. She is a sister of Mrs. Julius Reinholdt, Mrs. Charles Roe and of Freen and Max Nulsen.

Mr. Wagner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Wagner of 3451 Halliday avenue and is a graduate of the University of Missouri.

No date has been set for the wedding.

THE engagement of Miss Alice Bradshaw to Harry Warren Warfield of New York is another recently announced betrothal. Miss Bradshaw is a sister of Preston Bradshaw of 5947 Clemens avenue, and when in St. Louis resides with her brother and sister-in-law. Miss Bradshaw is a graduate of Visitation Convent and since then has spent much of her time in the East with relatives, and it was while there that she met her fiance. Mr. Warfield is a graduate of Columbia University. The date of the wedding has not been announced, but it will take place in the summer.

THE engagement of Miss Lora Herbel to John M. Thomsen also has been made known. Miss Herbel is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Herbel of 5001 Raymond avenue and is a Mary Institute graduate. Mr. Thomsen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Thomsen of Fulton, Ill., but for the last four years has resided in St. Louis. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois. The wedding will take place some time next month.

STILL another engagement is that of Miss Cecile Primm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Primm of 3657 Botanical avenue, to Robert Herbert Combs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ford Combs of 4390 McPherson avenue. Miss Primm was graduated from the Sacred Heart Convent in 1913. Mr. Combs is a brother of Miss Ruth Combs, whose engagement to Sergeant-Major Randall Dodd was announced a short time ago, and he recently departed for Texas, where he is in the aviation branch of the service. No date for the wedding has been set.

AN interesting event scheduled for the first Saturday in May is a bridge party to be given by the American Fund for French Wounded in their work rooms at 3621 Washington avenue, of which Mrs. Frank Crunden is chairman. Mrs. Alexander Demenil is chairman of the bridge party and tickets and tables may be procured from her. Mrs. Louis Hayward has charge of tables and Mrs. J. M. Franciscus and Miss Lou Hopkins of the prizes, Mrs. Daniel G. Taylor of the cards, Mrs. Guy Study of the decorations and Mrs. Thomas H. McKittrick is chairman of the civilian committee. Others who are working for working for the success of the event the success of the event are Mmes. Julia M. Walsh, Charles F. Bates, Seth Cobb, John Valle, Richard Shapleigh, Jules Valle, Robert B. Wallace, Firmin Desloge, Leo deSmet Carton, Harry Block, Manley Breaker, Virgil Rule, Carson and Erwin and Misses Emilie Maffitt and Eugenie Berthold.

It is hoped to make this party a great financial success, for just at this time, when the demand for surgical dressings is so urgent, funds are badly needed to purchase the supplies to make them.

THE Catholic Woman's League will maintain a booth throughout the Liberty Loan campaign at Nugent's store, where subscriptions will be received. This booth is in charge of Miss C. de Sienna Mattingly, who is general chairman of the 24 committees in charge of the booths, 18 of which are drawn from the Catholic Woman's League and six from the Federation of Clubs. Tomorrow Mrs. Ashley D. Scott will be in charge, assisted by Mmes. W. C. McBride, P. J. Toomey, Festus Wade, Oscar Niedringhaus, Kate Wrape, William Maffitt, Ralph A. Morris, Hortense Speikerman, B. O. Mahaffy, Robert E. Conway and Miss Mamie Tompkins.

The committee for Tuesday consists of Mrs. George S. Tiffany, in charge, assisted by Mmes. Joseph Drew, Dan G. Taylor, R. L. Weinert, Burgoyne Wilson, G. A. Mellon, E. P. Voll, Arthur Shepley, Howard Benoist and Allen West.

On Wednesday Miss Mary Ritchie will be in charge with Mmes. M. J. Botzler, W. Smith and Misses Margaret Sheehan, Rosalie Le Brun, Alice and Nellie McCabe, Catherine Bevlin, Harriet Grace, Helen Luth, Gertrude C. Flynn and Theresa Wangler assisting.

Thursday's committee will have Mrs. W. K. Morrison in charge, assisted by Mmes. Paul Bakewell, George Bakewell, Kelton White, W. Palmer Clarkson, Fred Zeibig, John Christy, Herman von Schrenk, Tom Knapp, Eugene Benoist, J. Monroe Tyler, J. S. Carton, Leo de Smet Carton and Miss Marquita Bakewell.

On Friday Mrs. Seth W. Cobb will be in charge with Mmes. John Felix Valle, Firmin Desloge Sr., Alonzo C. Church, George A. Barnett, Frank Wrape, V. P. Blair, James Harrison and Misses Louise Jones, Josephine Cobb, Cynthianna Pike and Catherine Jones assisting her.

THE Comforts Committee of the Navy League, of which Mrs. William A. Stickney is chairman, held a meeting at the Wednesday Club and Wednesday morning last, for the purpose of reorganization. On account of the demands of soldiers, as well as sailors, for the knitted garments and comfort kits that this organization has been supplying, it was decided to change the name to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Comfort Committee. Besides Mrs. Stickney, the officers are: Mrs. I. W. Morton, Mrs. Samuel C. Davis, Mrs. Vincent L. Price and Mrs. Kate Howard, vice chairmen. Mrs. Randolph Laughlin is the secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Ralph James, chairman of the Comfort Kit and Knitting Committee; Mrs. Tom S. Maffitt, chairman of the Purchasing Committee; Mrs. Lionel B. Moses, chairman of the workroom, and Mrs. J. Alex Goodwin, chairman of the Publicity Committee.

Through Mrs. Stickney's efforts this organization now has more than 1600 members, among whom are many of the most prominent women of the city. With a fund raised by subscription and entertainments, wool has been furnished to hundreds of women who are willing to do the knitting, but are unable to buy the material. Many women buy the wool from the committee, knit and return the garments to be distributed by them.

By the presentation of a card from the Sailors' and Soldiers' Club, men are equipped with a complete outfit of knitted garments and comfort kits, and each day sees numbers of them at the headquarters of the committee trying on sweaters, helmets and the various other garments supplied by the committee. From the letters of thanks received from the men and mothers of the men, it can be seen that these women are doing a necessary and useful work, and everyone is asked to assist, either by knitting or by a donation.

At present, the knitters are asked to make socks, as there cannot be an oversupply of them. According to official information, the life of a hand-knit sock is only five days, while a machine-made one lasts but 10 hours and at that rate it is easy to see that the demand will often exceed the supply.

On Tuesday morning, April 2, at nuptial high mass, at the Church of the Annunciation, occurred the wedding of Miss Margaret Cuddy, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carraher of 733 South Second street, and Paul Carraher, son of Mrs. N. Carraher of 342 North Spring avenue, the Rev. John J. Thompson officiating. The church was decorated with palms and ferns interspersed with Killarney roses. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Rose Cuddy, and the best man was Arthur E. Lister. After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride, at which only relatives were present, the couple departed for a short honeymoon in the South, owing to Mr. Carraher being called for service on April 10. He is stationed at Camp Funston in the engineers' corps.

The bride was gowned in satin of ivory tint, the bridal veil of rare old lace being caught up in Juliette fashion. She carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Rose Cuddy was gowned in pink georgette, with a picture hat of pink tulle crowned with miniature rosebuds of real flowers and carried a bouquet of Killarney roses. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Margaret Conniff.

The Fantasy "Daguerreotypes of American History," written by Mrs. Quincy L. Slocumb, was given by the members of the Tuesday Club at the Artists' Guild last week. Those taking part were Mmes. H. d'Ailly, L. W. Ray and M. Lifiander; recording secretary, Mrs. J. F. Henderson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. J. McBurney; treasurer, Mrs. W. V. Burton; auditor, Mrs. Charles Holden; parliamentarian, Mrs. Frank Bartlett; directors, Mmes. John Hurck, Joe Davis and Sara Harrington.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With Othine—Double Strength.

This preparation for the removal of freckles is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by any druggist under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of Othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure you ask the druggist for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

A Woman's Capital

Just as you turn to your wife to organize your home, so your wife turns to you to conserve capital and make it productive.

Most women, during their husband's or father's lifetime, give little or no thought to the management of capital. Then suddenly they find themselves with capital on their hands.

Consider how much better it would be if you would establish a trust by your will, administered by a trustee.

And how admirably such a trust would work if this responsible company were named as Trustee and the life-long training of its officers were used to invest and manage your capital.

Any of the officers below will be glad to discuss this matter with you confidentially and without charge.

ONLY A DECISIVE VICTORY WILL BE OF BENEFIT TO GERMANY

French, and it is essential to recognize that if the British had been thrown back behind the Somme or the Canche and penned up in the narrow area, thus circumscribed, the peril to France would have been tremendous.

Now let us follow the working out of the strategy as far as it had gone. First of all, there was an immediate rupture of the allied line. Gough's Fifth Army was beaten as no great British army has ever been beaten. Not only was it beaten, but in its retreat it was so badly handled that the Germans were able to intervene between it and the main British armies to the north and similarly between it and the French armies to the south. The Fifth army was the link in the allied chain of armies from Switzerland to the sea, and this link was effectually broken by Friday, March 22. Thus in two days Hindenburg had accomplished what Falkenhayn had failed to achieve at Verdun. He had broken a hole between the allied armies.

The ultimate German victory, after the immediate and enormous local success west of St. Quentin, was prevented by the French. They saved the British more unmistakably than Blucher saved Wellington at Waterloo. Had the French not been able to intervene, the Germans would have realized in the first week the main purpose of their strategy. They would have driven the British in something approaching a complete rout, so far as the Fifth army was concerned, north of the Somme and out of touch with the French.

French to the Rescue.

The French saved the British and the situation by the rapidity with which they moved their reserves northward. They had two things to do. The collapse of the Fifth British army had not only opened a gap between the British and French fronts, but it had also uncovered the main roads to Paris. Thus the French had to rush troops north to cover Paris, they had also to rush troops up to get in front of the German push westward, which was rapidly getting to the point where all possible restoration of contact between the allies would be impossible.

The threat to Paris was stopped short and never became grave at any time during the critical period. But it was not until March 26 that French troops had gotten round the corner and in front of the extreme point of the wedge, and by this time this extreme point had passed Montdidier and had begun to climb the narrow plateau between the Avre and the Noye valleys. And in the Noye valley runs the main railroad from Paris to the north. It was a breathless finish to one of the most exciting races in all military history.

The Germans did not immediately accept the fact of defeat. For several days they continued to assail the necessarily thin line which was the life line of the allied armies, since it bound the British and the French together. But the French soldier of blood and bravery held. By April 1 the German was forced to abandon his efforts to break the connection. He had temporarily come to the end of his strength on this front, where he was 35 miles from his starting point and the hopeless roads behind him were rendered more hopeless by the rainstorm that now intervened. Perhaps, if it had not rained, he might have gotten through, just as Victor Hugo and other French writers insist that Napoleon would have done at Waterloo if it had not rained the night before and delayed the French attack the next morning.

But the German was not through. To the north, in front of Arras, his advance had been slight and he was still in touch with his old, good communications. Accordingly he launched a new thrust at Arras, the purpose was simple. He had broken the gate between the French and British hinges at La Fere and Arras at the La Fere hinge, it had swung back, but the French had come up and stopped the swing. He might now wrench it off the northern hinge, if he did his purpose would still be accomplished, because he would open a new gap between the allies and there were no more French reserves available.

Third Army Held.

Unfortunately for him, however, the Third British Army succeeded where the Fifth had failed. It retired a little but in perfect order and upon stronger positions, which it held, exacting so terrible a price from the Germans that they stopped short in the attack upon the northern hinge and they have not resumed their attack up to the present moment. The rush was over by March 27, by April 1 there was a general lull all over the front and the Germans were digging in on their flanks and getting up their heavy guns, while the allies were also digging in and getting up reserves and artillery.

Still the allied situation was exceedingly awkward and remains so, in one important respect. As at Verdun, the first German rush had carried the assailant over most of the good gun positions and naturally defensive lines, on which the French could make a stand if the most important local objectives were to be saved. Verdun city was this local objective in the earlier campaign. Amiens occupies a similar role in the later offensive.

When the rush stopped, the Germans were within a dozen miles of the old capital of Picardy, an important industrial town, but, above all, the neck of the bottle through which pass all the main north and south railroads of this region, the railroads which connect Paris with Calais and the British and French front, and, what was more important, the railroads from Rouen and Havre, which connect the British in Picardy, Artois and Flanders with their main bases on the sea.

The Vital Point

It was no longer certain that the Germans, even if they got Amiens, could separate the British and the French for not until it passes Abbeville, 20 miles west, does the Somme become an impassable barrier between the north and the south and the British might hang on astride the Somme all the way back to the neighborhood of Abbeville. But if Abbeville went, their connections with Great Britain would at once be threatened. Yet, if the line held within ten miles west of Amiens, new communications could in time be improvised.

Had Amiens fallen in the first rush, then the British would have been swept north of the Somme and there could have been no further hope of restoration of contact between French and British, but once the contact was restored, a dozen miles in front of Amiens, there was real hope that it might be maintained west of Amiens, even if this town should fall.

I say this because the fall of Amiens, which remains possible, should not be accepted as having the importance that it might have had two weeks or more ago. The fall of Verdun in August would have been a sad blow to allied morale, but it would not have been the evidence of immediate disaster as it would have been in February or even in the first days of March, 1916. And the same is now true of Amiens.

After the first week of effort there

Quickest Way to Remove Blackheads

A Simple and Remarkable Method Producing Startling Changes in Your Complexion and Hair.

By Miss Valeska Suratt

IT is almost tragic to see women steaming their faces and pinching the skin in a ceaseless endeavor to get rid of those obstinate pests, blackheads. Of course, I know it is because they do not know how. Nevertheless, I see as a result of these practices thousands of otherwise smooth skins becoming covered with large pores which face steaming always causes. And pinching causes spots which take a long time to disappear. Small blackheads are usually present by the thousands. Now the remedy for this condition is simple, and it never fails. A little powdered neroxin sprinkled on a wet sponge and rubbed over the blackheads removes them all in only a few moments. It may be difficult to believe, nevertheless it can be proven by anyone.

MRS. C. D. W.—There is no excuse for having hairs on arms or face when you can free them in only a few minutes, completely and without injury, by a new simple means. Moisten the hairs with sulfo solution, costing one dollar at the drug store, and in a few moments the hairs will be entirely dissolved. There is nothing else known so remarkable in its action as this. It leaves no redness or spot, such as is invariably caused by the superfluous "hair-burners" so commonly sold. The skin, no matter how sensitive, is always left smooth as though you had never had superfluous hairs at all.

MISS G. C.—Alkali in the soaps and prepared shampoos does much damage to hair. Your hair will be brittle and the scalp dry as long as you use these. That's because the alkali in soap destroys natural oily secretions in hair. Here's a wonderful little hint for a head-wash. It dissolves every bit of fatty substance and scale from scalp, leaves hair and scalp exquisitely clean. A teaspoonful of eggol in half a cup of water gives the greatest shampoo imaginable. Twelve shampoos can be gotten from only twenty-five cents' worth of eggol, secured from the drug store.

MISS QUEEN—Trust in no one who guarantees you a bust development. But I can say that the best thing known, and that most often succeeds in splendid fashion, is a mixture of two ounces of ruciene, half a cup of sugar and a half pint of water. Take two teaspoonfuls of this mixture after each meal and on retiring.

CORNELIA M.—You will find it remarkably easy to remove wrinkles in only a few days' time by the use of my wrinkle formula. And the cost is inconsiderable, too. Get two ounces of eptol from your druggist and mix with one tablespoonful of glycerine in half a pint of water. A cream will form at once, ready to use. This makes over a pint, so you see it is very economical. By using this freely every day you will very quickly see a decided change in your appearance, and the skin will become plump and vigorous.

MISS ANN T.—There are many complaints from thousands about face powder—too chalky and coming off too easily. You just ought to try the powder which I had made after my own formula. It is called "Valeska Suratt Face Powder," and is sold at druggists in flesh, white and brunette, for fifty cents. You'll adore its extraordinary fineness and its "staying-on" qualities. It's the smoothest powder you ever used.

COMING OUT—In a very few days your hair will stop falling and you'll have no more of those "combfuls" of hairs coming out if you will use this hair formula. I call this my jewel, because of its astonishing results in just forcing hair to grow abundantly where everything else fails miserably. It is very economical. To half a pint each of bay rum and water, or to one pint of witchhazel add one ounce of beta-quinol.

DELIA X.—Heaven knows there are millions who do need a real complexion beautifying formula—one that will actually and quickly do the work. This formula produces startling results on the complexion in a few days, making it spotless and beautiful, no matter how "bad" it was before. It is made by mixing an ounce of zintone with two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a pint of water. Your freckles, too, will vanish quickly. Get the zintone at any drug store.—ADVERTISEMENT.

ONLY A DECISIVE VICTORY TO BE OF VALUE TO GERMANS

was a natural and inevitable lull in the Amiens sector: the German did not actually stop, but his operations, save at Arras, were inconsiderable, for nearly a week. Then he began again on exactly the old Verdun lines, that is, by attacks on either side of the wedge he had driven in towards his immediate local objective. In Lorraine he began his new operations by attacks upon Dead Man's Hill and Fort Du Vaux, on the flanks of his wedge. He did this to abolish the evil effect of the artillery fire concentrated upon his wedge from both sides. Before Amiens he sought to widen his wedge.

Must Widen the Wedge.

Hindenburg's problem was a magnified reproduction of the Verdun problem. Any further advance at the point of the wedge toward Amiens would be smothered by concentrated allied artillery fire. He must, therefore, widen the wedge and he sought to do this by attacking the French on the plateau between the Avre and the Noye, south of Amiens and the British west of the Ancre and Somme. Could he advance on both flanks he would begin to throw a loop around Amiens, isolating the town both from the north and fro mthe south.

Although he gained ground, his gain was inconsiderable and the price paid exorbitant. This price was increased by the fact that German heavy artillery was not yet up and French and British guns of all calibres were in position. By the third Sunday of the battle, the German effort on both flanks had slowed down with no real gain on the north and no decisive gain on the south, although the Amiens-Calais railroad was no longer usable and barely two miles distant from the German front.

In sum, then, toward the end of the third week, the German was still far from his major end, the separation of the British and French armies. He had won a great battle and administered to one strong British army perhaps the heaviest defeat in British military history. He had advanced beyond expectations of the allies, he was approaching Amiens, although at a very slow pace. But he had paid 300,000 casualties for a local success, and there was not the smallest promise that he could bring home a new Sedan or Waterloo discoverable on the face of the situation. Rather there was the growing likelihood of a second Verdun.

A Decisive Victory Needed.

And the German must have not a local victory, but a decisive victory, a military solution of the problem of the war. He has confessed that he must have it at once, by the terms under which he challenged his foes and enlisted his own people. If he is beyond Amiens a month from now he will have lost the campaign, provided he continues the battle in this field and does not win a major triumph in some other. If he gets beyond Amiens without separating his two foes he will have failed, if they are still able to stand firmly united before him. He needs another local success as great as his recent triumph to win what he sought to win and nothing else will greatly help him now.

Allied prospects have greatly improved since there was an eleventh-hour agreement upon a single command. It ought to have been agreed upon last winter, but it was blocked by British military influence despite the urgings of Lloyd George. America, France, and even Italy favored it, but British influences postponed it until the present reverse intervened. After the defeat there could be no more argument by British military authorities since it was the failure of the British which brought a defeat which was nearly a disaster.

Foch was pre-eminently the man for the place, no other French General and no British or Italian General—and least of all an American General could challenge the achievement of the man who save Nancy, won the Marne and blocked the German drive to the Channel, with the aid of the British and Belgians.

It is possible to regret the lateness of the decision, since the task of the new Generalissimo has been greatly increased thereby, but all this in the past and in his own public utterances he has given to us the best assurance that he did not come too late.

One word as to American participation. Accepting M. Tardieu's figures of some time ago, we must now have at least 300,000 men in France. Of these we are told 100,000 have started for the Somme front and other divisions are relieving French troops in four sectors. Presumably, then, we are putting around 200,000 men at the service of the allies. This is a small number, as this war goes, but it is equal to a class of French recruits, it is half as large as the annual increment of the German army and, since the men are picked, it is unquestionably better in its human material than either a French or German class.

Again, if the allies have lost 200,000 in the opening phase of the second battle of the Somme, the gap has been promptly filled by American troops. The German, on the other hand, having lost between 250,000 and 300,000 in the same operation, must find the troops to replace wastage out of his own reserves. He can do it; he probably had upwards of 1,000,000 reserves to replace wastage, when the campaign began, but the rate of exhaustion for him is thus far faster than for his chief opponents, and henceforth, under the wise plan to put our troops in more promptly, brigaded with French and British troops, we shall aid regularly to replace allied wastage, while the German must still rely exclusively upon his own man power.

ONLY A DECISIVE VICTORY TO BE OF VALUE TO GERMANS

The Moral Effect.

We are only beginning, but our start is at a critical moment and our aid is by no means negligible. On the contrary, it may enable the British and French to reconstitute an army of maneuver, as it seems possible that a large part of the original force was drawn in to fill the gaps created by the defeat of the Fifth British Army. As to the moral effect, no one can mistake the admirable impression made by American entrance. At a critical moment the German has failed, first to separate the armies of his principal enemies and, secondly, to separate the peoples of his other enemies. The alliance against Germany is stronger today than at any moment since Russia fell, and we are in some small way beginning to replace Russia.

Set this against the battle lost and the disaster narrowly escaped by the allies and it has a great value. Couple with it the failure, to date, of the German strategy to realize its main objective, and the reason for confidence is clear.

On the other hand, unless his present check is interrupted, the German will soon attempt to persuade us that he never sought a real decisive victory, and parade his local gains just as he did in the Verdun time.

AIRMAN TELLS OF ATTACKING ENEMY TRAINS, INFANTRY

to last a lifetime. I leave a detailed explanation of this process to the comic people who claim acquaintance with the psychology of the immortal soul; for my part, I am content to remain a collector of such mental photographs.

A FEW examples of the subconscious impressions gathered during my last year's term at the front are the curious smile of a dead observer as we lifted his body from a bullet-plugged machine; the shrieking of the wires whenever we dived on Hun aircraft; a tree trunk falling on a howitzer; a line of narrow-nosed buses, with heavy bombs fitted under the lower planes, ready to leave for their objective; the ghostliness of Ypres as we hovered 7000 feet above its ruins; a certain riotous evening when eight of the party of 14 ate their last dinner on earth; a severe reprimand delivered to me by a meticulous Colonel after I returned from a long reconnaissance that included four air flights, for the crime of not having fastened my collar before arrival on the aerodrome at 5 a. m.; a broken boche aeroplane falling in two segments at a height of 10,000 feet; the breathless moments at a base hospital when the surgeon-in-charge examined new casualties to decide which of them were to be sent across the Channel; and clearest of all, the brown-faced infantry marching back to the trenches from our village.

A muddy, unkempt battalion would arrive in search of rest and recuperation. It distributed itself among houses, cottages and barns, while the Frenchwomen looked sweet or sour according to their diverse tempers, and whether they kept estaminets, sold farm produce, had husbands, or merely feared for their poultry and the cleanliness of their homes. Next day the exhausted men would reappear as beaux sabreurs with bright buttons, clean if discolored tunics, and a jaunty, untired walk. The drum and fife band practised in the tiny square before an enthusiastic audience of gamins. Late every afternoon the aerodrome was certain to be crowded by inquisitive Tommies, whose peculiar joy it was to watch a homing party land and examine the machines for bullet marks. The officers made overtures on the subject of joyrides, or discussed transfers to the Flying Corps. Interchange of mess courtesies took place, attended by a brisk business in yarns and a mutual appreciation of the work done by R. F. C. and infantry.

Then, one fine day, the drum and fife rhythm of "A Long, Long Trail" would draw us to the roadside, while our friends marched away to Mouquet Farm, or Beaumont Hamel, or Hohenzollern Redoubt, or some other point of the changing front that the Hun was about to lose. And as they left, the men were mostly silent; though they looked debonair enough with their swinging quickstep and easy carriage, and their frying-pan hats set at all sorts of rakish angles. Their officers would nod, glance enviously at the apple trees and tents in our pleasant little orchard and pass on to the front of the front, and all that this implied in the way of mud, vermin, sudden death, suspense and damnable discomfort. And returning to the orchard we offered selfish thanks to Providence in that we were not as the millions who hold and take trenches.

Infantry Service More Perilous.

The flying officer in France has, indeed, matter for self-congratulation when compared with the infantry officer, as anyone who has served in both capacities will bear witness. Flying over enemy country is admittedly a strain, but each separate job only lasts from two to four hours. The infantryman in the front line is trailed by risk for the greater part of 24 hours daily. His work done, the airman returns to fixed quarters, good messing, a bath, plenty of leisure and a real bed. The infantry officer lives mostly on army rations, and as often as not he sleeps in his muddy clothes, amid the noise of war, after a long shift crammed with uncongenial duties. As regards actual fighting the airman again has the advantage. For those with a suitable temperament there is tense joy in an air scrap; there is none in trudging along a mile of narrow communication trench, and then, arrived at one's unlovely destination, being perpetually enuied by crumps and other devilries. And in the game of poker played with life, death, and the will to destroy, the airman has but to reckon with two marked cards—the Ace of Clubs, representing the boche aircraft, and the Knave Archibald; whereas, when the infantryman stakes his existence, he must remember that each sleeve of the old cheat Death contains half a dozen cards.

WHY WAGE-EARNING WOMEN MUST BE MOBILIZED FOR WAR

dered for the army and navy during the year ending Dec. 31, 1917.

"Hannah binding shoes at the window," was like Priscilla at the wheel, picturesque, and, of course, useful, too, in her day; but in a war-winning test the Hannah who has reappeared in the modern shoe factory far outranks her trade forbear, because the modern Hannah has a productive power so much greater than the girl at the colonial window that in a large and well-equipped shoe plant 20,000 pairs of soldiers' shoes may be made in a day. It is fortunate that this is so, for the War Department alone has ordered 21,000,000 pairs of shoes to be delivered by June next. In the highly organized shoe factory each shoe passes through a firmly linked chain of a hundred processes, and the 95,000 trained women shoe workers, stationed chiefly in Massachusetts, Missouri and New York, are as indispensable links in the shoemaking chain as are the two hundred and eight odd thousand trained men.

Over 900,000 of the main woman's army of industrial defense have already passed in review in this brief summary of "war" orders, yet only five industries have been cited and only food and the chief articles of clothing and accoutrement have been named. Some of these 900,000 women, of course, are making the other necessary articles of personal wear and company equipment—hats, caps, gloves, belt, tent parts, mosquito bars and other textile fabrications. The "war" orders and the calls for woman labor from firms holding principal and subsidiary contracts show what the other 600,000 wage-earning women are called upon to do toward furnishing the fighting forces with scores of things under the category of equipment—tent poles and tent pins, screens and cots, brooms and brushes, bugles and bugle slings, axes and picks, spades and shovels, optical glasses and scientific instruments.

In Auxiliary Occupations.

About 100,000 of them are in establishments not popularly recognized as munition plants and yet as essential to the waging of war as is the manufacture of guns and explosives. Some of the women are making bolts and screws and nails and rivets for the craft that carry food and clothing, guns and bandages to the soldiers, and the soldiers themselves over the sea; for craft that do battle on the surface of the waters and destroy the scorpion craft beneath. Some of these 100,000 women are running drill presses in locomotive works; others are filling cores in foundries and machine shops; some are making wireless and other electrical apparatus, and still others are in automobile plants, making spark plugs and other essential parts for airplanes, submarines and army trucks.

About another 100,000 are doing the sort of work which has put them, with the bandage roller and the street-car and theater knitter, in the limelight as "war workers." They are in the Government arsenals makings or testing parts for guns and other offensive equipment. They are in private munition plants in Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Ohio, Illinois and other states, rolling powder pellets, gauging bullets, making fuses, making shell parts and filling shells, making gas masks and rubber bandages, airplane wings and war-balloon parts, and the hundred and one other things required for offensive and defensive equipment. They form the most spectacular division of factory and mill trained women essential to the winning of the war; but they are, after all, no more important than the other divisions of the army of 1,500,000 women engaged in the war industries. Most of them have had factory, mill or business drill, and, as with the other 1,400,000 in the war-industry army, the discipline acquired in factory, mill and mercantile establishment makes them a powerful factor in the winning of the war.

Trained, Seasoned Workers.

They were not drafted into, nor did they enlist in, the ranks of industry at the entrance of this country into the world conflict. When the war broke upon us they were already there—trained, seasoned troops that without uniforms or military organization, have fallen into line each morning at a never-failing bugle call and remained in the ranks at the bidding of an exacting commander. To the work of other women the war has at least lent the attraction of newness and variety. For the factory and mill trained women in the older industries he war has only intensified the monotony of "repetition work." It has meant much less cloth of variegated colors and textures for a heterogeneous civilian market and enormously more of uniform texture and color for the army and navy. It has meant fewer metal novelties and more standardized parts for instruments of war. But the drill in monotony which has been the portion of these women in peace time has seasoned them for the more intensified monotony of war-time work. It is fortunate for the winning of the war that, working in close formation with millions of men subject to draft, there is this goodly nucleus of a trained woman's army to build upon as the exigencies of the war compel transfers of parts of the industrial line now held by men to the care and capabilities of women.

The "war industries" which are supporting the American fighting forces are likewise an indispensable source of supplies for the fighting forces of the allies. As the draft begins to deplete the ranks of men in these industries faster than they can be recruited from men in nonessential industries and disqualified for military service, these factory and mill trained women must be counted on to maintain a war-winning rate of production. But the "war industries" which are furnishing the billions of dollars' worth of supplies for the American and allied armies are the same industries (with the exception of establishments equipped chiefly for the manufacture of explosives, guns, etc.) which supply the daily needs of the civilian population.

To meet the needs of the fighting men picked industrial troops should be assigned always but this does not mean that they should be drawn recklessly from the work of maintaining production necessary for the sustenance of the nation. The health and fighting efficiency of the army and navy itself demands this care, for the fighting forces are but the branches that spring from the nation's stalk. Our selective draft law means that we are hanging our fight for democracy, upon the strongest and best branches, but they will not long maintain their strength and their health if we make serious inroads upon the vitality of the nation as a whole. The fighting man at the front must, of course, have our best and have it first. He must have all that he needs, and he needs more as a fighter than he does as a civilian—six times as much wool, three times as many suits of underwear, eight times as many pairs of shoes. He must have them because of the inevitable wear and wastage of the fighter's life. But the necessity of supplying the actual needs of the civilian population is inescapable and renders it essential that a part of the army of trained labor be detailed to the work of "home defense."

Because of these facts the people

Be Patient! Her Corns Hurt! Tell Her, "Corns Lift Out!"

Few drops stop corn soreness, then corns lift off with fingers—No pain!

The world owes thanks to the genius in Cincinnati who discovered freezone.

Tiny bottles of the magic fluid can now be had at any drug store for a few cents. You simply apply a few drops of this freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a hardened callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose and shriveled that you lift it off with the fingers. Not a bit of pain or soreness is felt when applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the skin or flesh.

For a few cents one can now get rid of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, as well as painful calluses on bottom of feet without any pain. Think of it!

Former United States Senator Mason, Pioneer in Pure Food and Drugs Legislation, Father of Rural Free Delivery System Says Nuxated Iron

Increased His Power and Endurance so Much, That He Feels It Ought to Be Made Known to Every Nervous, Run-down, Anaemic Man, Woman and Child

Opinions of Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author; Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) New York and the Westchester County Hospital; Former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr, of the City of Chicago and others.

What Senator Mason Says.

Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

I have often said I would never recommend medicine of any kind. I believe that the doctor's place. However, after the hardest political campaign of my life, without a chance for a vacation, I had been starting to court every morning with that horrible tired feeling one cannot describe. I was advised to try Nuxated Iron. As a pioneer in the pure food and drug legislation, I was at first loath to try an advertised remedy, but after advising with my medical friends I gave it a test. The results have been so beneficial in my own case I made up my mind to let my friends know about it, and you are at liberty to publish this statement if you so desire. I am now 65 years of age, and I feel that a remedy which will build up the strength and increase the power of endurance of one at my age should be known to the world.

Yours very truly.

Wm E. Mason

Senator Mason's statement in regard to Nuxated Iron was shown to several physicians, who were requested to give their opinions thereon.

Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author, said: "I heartily indorse Senator Mason's statement in regard to Nuxated Iron. There can be no strong iron men without iron. Pallor means anemia. Anemia means iron deficiency. The skin of anemic men and women is pale, the flesh flabby, the muscles lack tone, the brain fags and the memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, despondent and melancholy."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "Senator Mason is to be commended on handing out this statement on Nuxated Iron for public print. There are thousands of men and women who need a strength and blood builder, but do not know what to take. In my own opinion, there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for enriching the blood and helping to increase the strength and endurance of men and women who burn up too rapidly their nervous energy in the strenuous strain of the great business competition of the day."

Former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr of the City of Chicago says: "I have taken Nuxated Iron myself and experienced its health-giving and strength-building effect, and in the interest of the public welfare I feel it my duty to make known the results of its use. I am well past my three-score years, and want to say that I believe my own great physical activity is largely due today to my personal use of Nuxated Iron. From my own experience with Nuxated Iron, I feel it is such a valuable remedy that it ought to be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician in this country."

While former Health Commissioner Kerr is not himself a physician, still his experience in handling public health problems must give his opinion more than ordinary weight.

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York City, said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication, as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron, I feel I would be remiss in my duty not to mention it. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising results. And those who wish quickly to increase their [illegible], power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy.

Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change your food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained.

MANUFACTURER'S NOTE.—Nuxated Iron, which was used by Senator Mason with such surprising results, and which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co., Johnson Bros.' Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Stores Co., Enderle Drug Co. and by all other druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

"From the Congressional Directory published by the United States Government—"Wm. E. Mason, Senator from Illinois, was elected to the 50th Congress in 1887, to the 51st Congress in 1891—defeated for the 52d Congress 1892—elected Senator to the 55th Congress 1897 to 1903."

Senator Mason is now Congressman from the State of Illinois.

Senator Mason's championship of Pure Food and Drugs legislation, his fight for the rural free delivery system and his strong advocacy of all bills favoring labor and the rights of the masses as against trusts and combines make him a national figure at Washington and endeared him to the hearts of the working man and the great masses of people throughout the United States. Senator Mason has the distinction of being one of the really big men of the nation. His strong endorsement of Nuxated Iron must convince any intelligent thinking reader that it must be a preparation of very great merit and one which the Senator feels is bound to be of great value to the masses of people everywhere; otherwise he could not afford to lend his name to it, especially after his strong advocacy of pure food and drugs legislation.

RUSSIAN ORCHESTRA'S COMING PRIME EVENT

Important Pioneer Work of Musicians Due at Odeon Thursday Night.

The concert to be given Thursday night at the Odeon by the Russian Symphony Orchestra is important not only because this is the only out-of-town orchestra to visit St. Louis this season, but because the organization has been a factor influential upon music in America ever since its formation in New York 15 years ago.

It was founded in 1903 by Jacob Altschuler, brother of its present director, Modest Altschuler, with the object of bringing together a number of musicians of Russian birth, interested in their national music and desirous of making it better known in this country. Many Slavic compositions, now familiar and admired, owe their first hearing in this country to the Russian Symphony Orchestra.

In this way fragments from "Boris Godounoff" and "Prince Igor" were heard here in concert long before the operas were produced by the Metropolitan Opera Company or portions of their music were introduced through the Pavlowa and Diaghileff ballet performances. Among the Russian composers who have benefited by the missionary work are Glinka, Moussorgsky, Tschaikowsky, Rimsky - Korsakow, Glazounow, Rachmaninoff, Sokoloff, Arensky, Borodine, Scriabine, Stravinsky and Gretschaninoff.

Many artists whose fame has since become international made their American debuts at Russian Symphony Orchestra concerts, among them Mischa Elman, Kathleen Parlow, Josef Lhevinne, Sergei Rachmaninoff and the late Alexander Scriabine. The honorary president of the Russian Symphony Society is the Russian Ambassador, Boris A. Bakhmetieff.

The program Thursday night will be prevailingly Russian, but one of the numbers will be Brahms Pianoforte Concerto in D Minor, with Daniel Jones, Welch pianist, now a teacher in St. Louis, at the piano. The program is as follows:

Symphony No. 5, in E minor—Tschaikowsky
- Andante, Allegro con moto.
- Andante Cantabile, con alcuna licenza.
- "Valse," Allegro moderato.
- Andante Maestoso, Allegro vivace.

Pianoforte Concerto, D minor—Brahms

Easter Feast in Russia. Rachmaninoff

Paraphrase, "The Allied Hymns—Glazounoff

John Powell is an American composer, whose works are coming into much esteem. The two numbers by him will form the first introduction of this city to his orchestral works.

GIRLS! IT'S CHEAP! USE LEMON JUICE TO MAKE A LOTION

Nothing else bleaches the skin so white and beautiful or creates such a clear, spotless complexion.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin bleach and beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. It really will bleach and remove such blemishes as pimples, blackheads, freckles and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier which absorbs readily and is not sticky or greasy.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this harmless lemon lotion and apply it daily to the face, neck, arms and hands. It really does soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin.—ADV.

A GREASY, PIMPLY SKIN, COATED TONGUE AND FOUL BREATH

Poisons in the blood, accumulated through the winter months should be promptly driven out by taking sulphur, cream of tartar and molasses, but it is so nauseating! Well then, just get a tube of Sulpherb Tablets and they will do the work pleasantly. They are made of sulphur, cream of tartar and herbs—sugar-coated tablets. Stomach, liver, bowels and blood are all benefited by their occasional use. Greasy skin, pimples, coated tongue and foul breath tell you if your blood is bad. Mrs. B. Clarke, 905 Main St., Buffalo, writes: "I have been using your Sulpherb Tablets and like them very, very much." Sold by all druggists. Don't accept ordinary "sulphur" tablets and be nauseated and disappointed.

WHY WAGE-EARNING WOMEN MUST BE MOBILIZED FOR WAR

are urged and prodded to dispense with luxuries, to save, and to sacrifice. The facts furnish a compelling argument in the thrift campaign. They do more than this—they lay bare to the dullest eye that in this time, when every man drafted or enlisted not only counts as the equivalent of three to six normal consumers, but counts one out of the ranks of producers. Factory and mill-trained women become such an asset in the winning of the war as to demand the development of a national policy of mobilizing, recruiting, and conserving their forces. The facts lay bare the folly of trusting to the peace-time method of labor distribution and woman labor substitution when the draft and billion-dollar demands of the war upon industry have rocked and rolled the last vestige of peace-time conditions out of the labor market.

Only by the development of such a policy can there be any assurance that men not qualified for military service and engaged in nonessential industries and the hundreds of thousands of mill and factory trained women are engaged under efficiency-producing conditions on work for which they are best fitted. Only by developing a national labor policy of labor distribution can there be any guaranty that labor recruiting and training among wageless women are done in response to an accurately measured need for increasing the number of women in long-established occupations or for forming new divisions of the industrial army to take over sectors of the industrial line now held by men who will be needed for military service or for industrial service that can not or should not be performed by women except as a last resort.

A National Policy Necessary.

As the war progresses, filling up the depleted ranks of men in the basic industries will mean readjustments of labor forces in other war industries whose requirements are such that woman labor is available for necessary substitutions. If these substitutions and dilutions are to proceed wisely, they must proceed in response to the nation's needs in the war and with minimum hurt to the nation's welfare in peace.

But to put a national labor policy into effect requires an able, agile and highly organized Federal agency; for this agency must, in addition to rendering immediately and widely available information concerning the effect of the draft and "war" orders on war and other essential industries, find available supplies of labor, provide for transportation and housing, secure the co-operation of employes and employers in developing reasonable standards of war work, and make labor substitution and dilution experiments in consultation with the manufacturers and workers concerned. It must recruit and train or secure the requisite training of women as the draft outstrips the supply of men disqualified for military service and as the experiments in labor substitution warrant.

Funds Required for Work.

These and scores of other equally important things a national war-winning labor agency must do. To build up such an agency requires money; and while we voted billions for the mobilization of the nation's fighting forces, and billions more for marshaling the material resources for their equipment, not an additional dollar was given for the mobilization of the requisite man and woman labor for war industries until nearly six months after the entrance of this country into the war. Then the Department of Labor received an addition of a million dollars wherewith to discharge its war responsibilities. With this money the Secretary of Labor has enlarged his department's employment service to war-time dimensions. But the comprehensive war-time labor policy which he has developed can become effective only as Congress supplies the needed funds.

KELLY SPRINGFIELD HAS FOUR TRUCK TIRES

With the enormous increase in the use of motor trucks during the past year, tire makers have been very active in developing new truck tires of more efficient type, realizing that proper tires were necessary to the most successful operation of trucks.

None of the factories have been more active along this line than the Kelly-Springfield. Their engineers have kept in mind the four principle requirements; mileage, traction, ease of application and low cost per mile. In order that the requirements of all kinds of work might be met they have designed three new types, which with the block type gives a very complete line of solid tires.

The latest Kelly-Springfield is known as the Liberty type, and made according to Government specifications in sizes from 36x8 to 42x14. This is a large wide tire with deep longitudinal grooves, affording good traction and materially reducing the danger of skidding to the side. It eliminates the dual tire on the rear wheels and meets the demand of many of the large truck operators.

Another feature is the caterpillar type, which is distinctivelqy an innovation. This tire was designed to furnish traction to those truck operators who have to haul heavy loads under all kinds of road conditions. It is a presed-on type of tire, midwak betwen the endless and the block type, having many of the advantages of both.

The block tire, an exclusive Kelly Springfield product, has long been popular with many operators, who require maximum traction. This type is made up of rubber blocks fitted into a frame. Its low cost per mile and its resiliency, with the accompanying reduction in repair cost, has caused its adoption as standard equipment with the owners of many large fleets of trucks.

The fourth type, which completes the line is the new high-type endless tire. On account of the volume and quality of the rubbed used it gives unusual mileage and has the desired cushion efect so necessary to trucks and the merchandise carried. It is especially recommended for front whel equipment, the other types being more suitable for the rear wheels.

"The growth of our truck tire business has been more than gratifying," said C. A. Jessup, manager of the St. Louis Kelly Springfield branch. "We have felt in a marked way the big increase in the use of motor transportation, for since January we have had a 250 per cent increase in that branch of the work."

COLE LINE OFFERS WIDE SELECTION

With the addition of the new Aero Eights to the already complete line of models, the Cole Motor Car Co. now offers a wide selective range of cars.

The same powerful, reliable yet economical power plant and chassis is used throughout the entire line. With a few refinements, it is the same sturdy, mechanical unitl used for four consecutive years and tested in the best laboratory in the world, the day in and day out uses of the road, the city streets and even the mountain grades. It is the chassis which has won many a hard fought hill climb, economical and sparing of fuel at ordinary speeeds, docile as a lamb when occasion demands easy quiet action, ready in an instant to dart ahead with the swiftness of the swallow as the need arises.

The new hot spot carburetor is especially valuable in using low grade gasoline successfully without loss of power. This arrangement throws the hot burnt gas directly from the cylinders around the intake manifold. With the first shot of the motor, the intake is heated and the gas is caporized and taken into the cylinders where it delivers the full force of the charge because of this ingenius arrangement.

TO SELL NASH AT RETAIL

In order to concentrate all effort on the wholesale branch of the business, Henry Rottersmann, president of the Rottersmann Automobile and Truck Co., announced last week that he had contracted with the Nash Auto Sales House to handle the sales of Nash passenger cars in St. Louis County, St. Clair County and the Tri-Cties in Illinois.

The new organization is headed by J. D. Barth as manager, who is well known in St. Louis motor car circles, having for some time been retail sales manager for Rottersmann and formerly connected with other prominent companies. The retail show room will be in connection with the wholesale department at 2650 Locust street.

Delivered Truck Overland.

The Martin Motor Truck Co. last week delivered a two-ton Denby truck equipped with stake body to East & Lindsay of Herrin, Ill. Due to teh difficulty securing railway equipment the truck was driven 114 miles to Herrin. The driver reported that the entire trip was made in high gear.

Immediately upon its arrival at Herrin the new owner loaded it with 4600 pounds of merchandise and drove to West Frankfort, 14 miles away.

Manager Frank Martin returned last week from the Dengy factory at eDtroit where he made arrangements for the immediate shipment of a large number of the different models.

DINES AS HE DRIVES.

A demonstration of the ease of driving the Detroit Electric car was given by Frank C. Herschbach, sales manager of the Detroit Electric Sales Co., Thursday, at noon, when he was sen driving out Delmar boulevard, controlling his electric car with one hand and eating his lunch with the other.

Herschbach says that his company had a marked increase in the sales of electric cars during March, due largely to the fact that many men are buying electric cars because of the easy control for the use of the women of the family, while they use a gas car for personal service.

Recent sales of Detroit Electric cars were made to Edw. T. Miller, 6318 Waterman avenue; Oscar Milentz, 3670 Castleman avenue; A. E. Moore, 4 Cella road, St. Louis County; J. E. Mitchell, 6205 Simpson avenue; T. C. Meyer, 3512 Victor street; V. L. Weirick, Washington, Mo.; and J. H. Galeener, Sikeston, Mo.

A NEW BODY POLISH.

The man or woman interested in practicing conservation and thrift will welcome Polio. The manufacturers state that this body polish compound contains no oil, alcohol, acids or alkalies of any sort that will injure the finest varnishes or enameled surfaces. For this reason it is especially recommended for use on automobiles. It may no wbe had at many filing stations and garages, as well as at stores dealing in automobile supplies and department stores.

WEBER ADDS MOLINE-KNIGHT TO HIS LINE

Announcement was made yesterday by the Weber Implement and Auto Co. of the addition of the Moline-Knight to their line of cars. This gives that company the widest range of cars. They are the only firm in St. Louis that is distributer for four distinct lines of cars. In addition to representing the Hupmobile, Maxwell and National, they also handle the Maxwell Truck and Armeleder trucks.

The Moline Knight, as its name implies, is powered with the Knight type, sleeve-valve motor, which has been steadily gaining in popularity since its introduction a few years ago.

The Moline line for 1918 comprises two chassis with several body styles. The smaller car has a 3¾x5 inch motor developing 40 horsepower and 118-inch wheel base. The motor in the larger model is 4x6, developing 50 horespower, and a wheel base of 122 inches. Both power plants are of the four cylinder, cast enbloc type.

Realizing the growing popularity of the Knight motor, Weber had three Moline models sent him on trial several months ago. It was upon the performance of these cars that he finally decided to take over the distribution for this territory. Demanstrators of both the large and the small car were received last week.

TO TAKE AUTO THEFTS TO NEXT LEGISLATURE

At the annual meeting of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association, held at the City Club, Monday night, Joseph A. Schlecht, president of the Mound City Buggy and Auto Co., was again elected president. Phil H. Brockman of the De Luxe Automobile Co., was elected vice president, and H. L. Schnure of the eVlle Automobile Co. was made treasurer for the second time. The secretary is appointed by the Board of Directors.

The directors elected were: F. V. A. Vesper of the Vesper-Buick Automobile Co., and National President W. S. Roberts of the J. I. Case T. M. Co., W. L. Johnson of the Johnson Automobile Co., Frank R. Tate of the Tate-Gillham Motor Co., I. G. McNiece of the Cadillac Automobile Co., R. C. Frampton of the Hudson-Phillips Motor Car Co.

F. R. Tate, chairman of a special committee on automobile stealing, reported that his Vigilance Committee would ask for especially severe legislation against the stealing of automobiles from the next Missouri Legislature, which meets in January.

The Vigilance Commitee wil also engage a high-class man to follow every theft of a motor car to its finish in the criminal courts. tI will be his business to investigate each case, to watch the docketing in the court and the trial and to prevent delays, continuances and the wearing out of prosecuting witnesses. He will also issue wrinted notices to those interested about the disposition of every case.

The purpose of this kind of espionage is to prevent public officials from being influenced toward leniency by the "pull" of criminals. It is probable that a well trained and clever newspaper man will be selected for this kind of work, and the expense will be borne jointly by the Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association, the Automobile Club, the Chamber of Commerce and the insurance interests.

OPENS BARGAIN TIRE HOUSE

eBlieving economy to be the keynote of the present, Clarence Guenther has formed the City Tire Co. and opened quarters at 3401 Olive street. Through his long connection with the tire business in St. Louis, he has been convinced of the possibilities of serving teh public by selling tires at a savings.

Arrangements have been completed with several big Eastern housts for job lots of tires, both first and seconds, and it is in these that he expects to specialize. Several thousand tires have already been received and the company will open for business tomorrow.

In addition to the "bargain" tires he has also been appointed city distributer for the Machelin line, a tire well known in St. Louis.

Guenther has been engaged in the tire business in St. Louis for over 10 years, formerly having been partner in the Guenther-Methudy Sales Co., which built a large business with the Ajax. He banks on his experience as a judge of tires to select those that will give the maximum service at the minimum cost per mile.

A ROAD TEST is the best check on motor car construction. A car that is not allowed to leave the factory until it has demonstrated its ability to meet the ultimate buyer's every requirement is more likely to give permanent satisfaction than one that has to be tuned after it reaches the buyer. Before shipment, every Westcott car is road tested for hill climbing, low throttling, acceleration, ranges of speed and all-round roadability.

LIBERTY

EVERY real difference in its riding and driving qualities begins to impress you the moment the Liberty gets into action.

You see that it follows the road almost without direction from the driver.

The quickness with which it settles down after passing a rough spot is unusual and delightful.

It is as steady and sure with one passenger, on the rear seat, as with three.

This difference is most uncommon in a car of modest weight. It proves the high calibre of the engineering ability which has produced Liberty cars.

A New Sedan for The Hudson Super-Six

THE Sedan is another popular type that was introduced by Hudson.

It is natural, therefore, that this new model should be an advance over the cars of similar type which have preceded it and which are now its contemporaries.

Those who have used Sedan bodies know there is much more than the mere appeal they make to the eye and to the comfort of the passenger. There is the vital question of sturdiness.

A body of its type with its permanent roof, if not properly designed and constructed, is apt to give endless annoyance. Such has been the experience of thousands who have had cars designed by those who did not know how to meet the various stresses which are responsible for squeaks, sagging roofs and the general breaking up of the bodies.

Then, too, not every chassis is suitable for carrying a Sedan body. Sturdiness of frame and power of motor are very essential.

These are things the inexperienced buyer is not likely to think about. They are important to know. You may make a mistake and get a car that is not suitable to carry a Sedan body.

Important That Car Stays in Adjustment

The best repairmen and mechanics are now in the army. They are needed to repair its motors. You either must have a car that does not require such frequent service attention or else put up with much inconvenience.

All motorists are familiar with Super-Six records for endurance. Every test showed ways to further increase Super-Six endurance. There are fifty thousand Super-Sixes in service. All that was learned from them has been put into the New Hudson Super-Six.

Ask any Super-Six owner about the service he is getting. Let what you can learn about it in your neighborhood determine if it is the best car for you to buy.

If the Sedan does not interest you, you will find a body you will like among the ten different types we are building this year.

Owners will tell you

—That GASOLINE MILEAGES average 14, 15, 16 up to 20 miles per gallon
—That TIRES average 7000, 8000 miles and up
—That there is 80% LESS carburetor and ignition trouble
—That there is never a penny's expense for valve-grinding
—That CARBON benefits the engine instead of hurting it —That valve-adjustments are unknown —That after 60,000 miles of use your engine will be better than even when new —That there is MORE POWER than you need, always available for low-speed driving, and for carrying you through the deepest mud, snow and sand
—That steam-like flexibility gives you, ON HIGH GEAR, a range from 2 to 50 miles per hour
—That the steepest hills can be taken with increasing speed on high gear
—That pick-up is so speedy that you never have to take the other fellow's exhaust

Here is a car with a 50 H. P. engine so powerful, so durable, so economical on fuel, so speedy, so quick to accelerate, so free from mechanical trouble that it has been chosen to pull Canadian war-trucks—to hold down upkeep costs and give reliable service for the Fifth Avenue, New York City Bus Line (operating 1000 busses), and for the Chicago Motor Bus Co. (which started to operate on April 1st and will soon have 100 busses in service).

Joseph A. Schlecht, president of the Mound City Automobile and Buggy Co., Allen distributor, announces that he will shortly appoint a St. Louis agent for the Allen line.

John L. Fay has joined the truck sales force of the Weber Implement and Auto Co., to sell the Armleader truck.

C. M. Cunliffe, who comes from the Briscoe agency at Dallas, Tex., has joined the Briscoe Motor Sales Co. of St. Louis as service manager.

Capt. A. E. Archer, president of the Detroit Electric Sales Co., attached to the U. S. Ordnance Department, has been ordered to join the service at Rock Island, Ill. Frank C. Herschbach is in charge of the business.

W. F. Groh, recently with the Tate-Gillham Motor Car Co., has opened a repair shop at 3658 Tholozan avenue.

L. M. Papin, for several years with the Hudson-Phillips Motor Car Co., has just joined the sales force of the More Automobile Co., distributor of the Marmon car.

H. H. Hieger has taken charge of the used car department of the Briscoe Motor Sales Co.

The Caruthersville Plumbing and Auto Co. last week placed an order with the Welling Motor Car Co. for 28 Olympian cars, to be delivered within 30 days.

Joseph N. Kellerman, formerly with the Cadillac Automobile Co. has joined the retail sales force of the Packard-Missouri Motor Co.

C. E. Pagett returned last week from a very enthusiastic conference at the Packard factory of the truck managers of the principle Packard distributing points.

R. W. Leach, well known in St. Louis, formerly with the Leach-Brouster & Co., when in St. Louis, Monday, announced that he had accepted a position as sales manager of the Curtis Automobile Co., Reo distributors at Milwaukee.

The following Liberty sales were reported for the last week by Frank Bishop of the Briscoe Motor Sales Co.: Sherwood & Co., Alton, Ill., a touring car, chummy, and roadster; Beck Mercantile Co., Jefferson City, touring car; James E. Parkham, East St. Louis, chummy roadster; Charles Smith, East St. Louis, chummy roadster; August Schoppmann, Mt. Olive, Ill., touring car; Walter E. Brewer, 4247 Laclede, chummy roadster.

John Boe of the Mitchell Automobile Corporation reports the following agencies closed last week in the Mitchell line: Motor Sales Co., Duquoin, Ill.; Herrin Auto Co., Herrin, Ill.; E. H. Lukins, Verdon, Ill.; B. N. Snyder, Neogo, Ill.; Taylor Implement and Auto Co., Sikeston, Mo.

GREAT DEMAND FOR MEDIUM-PRICED CARS

"The demand for passenger automobiles of the better, medium priced type is steadily on the increase," says P. H. Bruckman of the De Luxe Automobile Co., local dealers in Oldsmomiles. "The reasons for this will become obvious to anyone who spends a day in our salesroom. Just a few minutes ago one of our men started out to demonstrate the Oldsmobile to a man who would not have been interested in anything but a very high-priced car a year ago. And it isn't because he cannot afford to pay a thousand dollars more, or even twice as much, but because he wants to practice 'patriotic economy,' according to his own words.

"There are dozens of other prominent men right here in town who feel exactly as he does, that it is sensible patriotism to operate cars that cost less and consume less fuel and oil—not to mention tires."

"On the other hand, it is just as surprising to see how many owners of cheaper cars are buying or considering better cars this year. They are beginning to appreciate that a motor car famine is very apt to materialize. Consequently, they want to be sure that the cars they buy this year will stand up for several seasons.

"I am afraid that every dealer in the city who handles a good medium-priced car, will fall far short of being able to meet the demand before the summer is over. We are already doing everything possible to avert such a condition. So far we have been pretty lucky. By constantly keeping after the factory to let us have every car possible we are managing to get perhaps a little more than our share of machines."

WANTS FREIGHT TRUCKED AS THE MAIL NOW IS

Publications that are urging Government ownership of railroads, are pointing to use to which motor trucks purchased in large numbers for war purposes can be used when the war is ended. One of these papers published in Washington, D. C., insists that freigt should be delivered in the same manner that mail is delivered, and that motor trucks should be used by the Government for this purpose. Inasmuch as Government ownership of the railroads, in a practical sense, is with us now, Allan Baker of the Federal Truck Co., of St. Louis, is of the opinion thta proper supervision of motor trucks as auxiliaries of the railroads in assisting the reconstruction of industry after the war, will come as a matter of course.

"Everybody knows that serious difficulties encountered last year in connection with the railroad tieups were caused by congestion at the terminals," said Baker. "And it is to be feared that the serious traffic tieups will again be encountered next winter, if some positive steps are not taken to relieve this congestion at the terminals. One of the papers points out that delivery of freight from the depots should be handled just as delivery of mail and parcel post is handled—promptly and efficiently. There is no doubt as to the reasonableness of this view.

"The remedy is something that cannot wait until after the war is over, however, and motor trucks, which are the logical means of delivery from terminals, should be put into use at the earliest possible moment and in generous numbers. The aid thus given the railroads should permit them to go through next winter without anything like as serious a congestion problem as that which caused disaster the latter part of last winter."

SUPPLY BEARINGS FOR MOST ANCIENT FLIVERS

The Bearings Service Co., 3300 Locust street, has installed unique and attractive displays in its large windows, giving the public a clear idea as to the completeness of the stocks of Hyatt, Timken and New Departure bearings carried, as well as the accurate data maintained to supply the motorist garageman or dealer with the correct information concerning the application of bearings of either the three makes on any model and make of motor car, motor truck or tractor.

The data records are so complete that if an owner of a Motor car, whose make has passed into oblivion, should require bearing service, he can have his needs intelligently and immediately supplied. As the official national service representatives of the Timken, Haytt and New Departure manufactures, they have been supplied with this complete and authentic data and can at any time take care of the perplexities that arise in regard to any bearing application.

Although this is a young company, dating its start in September, 1916, its history has been one of truly remarkable development month by month. In September, 1916, the organization consisted of general headquarters and nine branch stations. Today there are in more than 275 of the most important automobile centers in America either a branch service station or an authorized agency of the Bearings Service Co., and it is planned to increase this number to over 500 in the next few months.

The Cole Aero-EIGHT

Who will produce a true likeness of the new Cole Aero-Eight?

Photographs fail to do it justice, Artists have tried with pen and pallette to depict it.

But the elusive beauty of the Aero-Eight seems to mock all efforts to reproduce it.

Even now we have a standing offer to anyone who, in an illustration, can faithfully portray the car.

Aero-Eight design is new—it is unprecedented.

Ordinary motor car terms do not describe it. A new automobile vocabulary is needed for this new standard of automobile art.

For that reason we want you to come and see the car itself that you may judge it from the original instead of from inadequate illustration.

A Wonderful "Buy"

ONLY those who look somewhat closely into comparative motor car values fully appreciate how much the GRANT SIX gives—yet there are enough of these people to have built the reputation of the GRANT SIX as "a wonderful car for the money."

And there is no question about it.

The overhead-valve engine alone is enough to make it a notable car. When the many other mechanical features are considered, and also the size, the beauty and the riding comfort are added, the GRANT SIX looms up above any other car of comparable price.

We believe it is the most economical six in existence. Thousands of owners average 20 miles to a gallon of gasoline, 900 miles to a gallon of oil and over 7000 miles on standard makes of tires.

PREDICTS LIGHTER TRUCKS

That the three-quarter ton pneumatic-tired truck will eventually supplant the one and a half ton types in the work they have been doing; that the two-ton truck in turn will supplant the five-ton in the service it has previously been considered best adapted for; and that the five-ton truck will, save in a very restricted sense, take the place of all heavier types, is the startling assertion made by Sales Manager F. H. Akers of the Reo Motor Car Co., in a letter to the Kardell Motor Car Co. of St. Louis.

"I base this assertion on observation of work that our trucks are doing in all parts of the country and in all kinds of business," writes Akers, "and on the tendency that is unmistakable on the part of buyers to renew their equipment with the lighter types instead of the former heavy ones they considered best.

"The answer is simple. In only a small percentage of cases does the load equal the capacity of, let us say, the two-ton truck. And in an equally small percentage of cases is the entire load to be delivered to one place.

"In ohtre words, the loads can just as well be split up into two or three smaleir loads and thus render possible use the lighter, speedier truck, with the result that two or three trips can be made in the time it would otherwise take to make one and at a lesser cost per ton mile.

"Now if these smaller loads are to go each to a different point or to be distributed in small lots or packages to several points on a long route, the saving of time and fuel is still greater.

"We used to think that if, on occasion, the load would amount to two tons or thereabouts, we must have a truck of not less than that capacity.

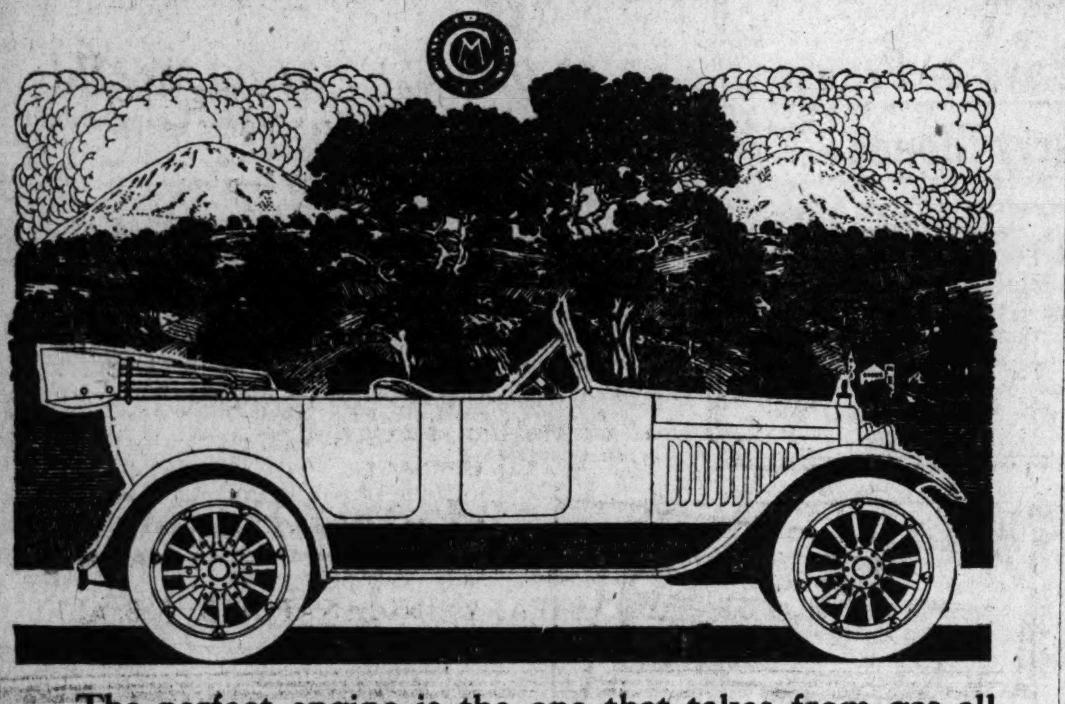
An engine that lures power from gas and sets it down minus jerks, vibrations, into a softness of action that has never been surpassed; "Hot-Spot" and "Ram's-Horn" Manifold (Chalmers devices) are responsible



The perfect engine is the one that takes from gas all the power that's there; and gives it up to you either brutal, or violent, or soft, as you wish.

That's the Chalmers engine, now recorded all over America as a great engine, which comes closer to reaching 100% of efficiency than any motive device yet designed.

"Hot-Spot" and "Ram's-Horn" Manifold are responsible. The first named heats up the gas, "cracks it up," "pulverizes" it, gets it into wonderful shape for ignition, and then the "Ram's-Horn" Manifold with its "easy air bends" tosses it gently into the combustion chambers.

So that after the flash of the spark plug there is so little residue, so little waste, so little power escaped into the exhaust as to be scarcely worth while mentioning.

But the kind of power is a new power—a gentle, soft power like the "iron hand in the velvet glove" that entices you beyond words once you experience the thrill.

WILL PRODUCE 3000 OF THE TRAFFIC TRUCK

The Traffic truck, product of the Traffic Truck Co. of St. Louis, a corporation organized within the past year with a capital of $500,000, which is being exhibited in the show room of the Brandle Motor Co., is built to perform the service of a truck at the least possible initial cost and upkeep, and on this basis it is measuring up fully. This is the unequivocal declaration by William King, sales manager for the Brandle Co.

"The Traffic truck is being produced to carry 4000 pounds, is the only capacity vehicle which the company intends to build, its output for the first year being based at 3000 cars, and orders for it are already coming in from all parts of the country adjacentt o St. Louis," King added. "At $1095, a price almost unbelievable in this day of high cost of materials and production, we maintain that the Traffic is the lowest-priced truck of its capacity in the world—in fact, practically the lowest priced truck of any capacity. The price named is made possible only by wise buying power, standardizing of product and quantity output.

"A truck of 4000 pounds capacity has long been recognized as the ideal type for all ordinary and most of the extraordinary sevrice rejuired of the horse at its best, some expert estimates being that a truck of that capacity will do 80 per cent of all work required of any truck.

"But the price of the Traffic is not an indication of its inbuilt quality, because each of the units in its manufacture is of the highest quality. The valve-in-head motor, a 4-cylinder, 3½x5, developing about 35 horsepower, with Kingston carburetor, is the product of the Gray Motor Co.; the clutch is Borg & Back, while the Covert Gear Co. furnishes the 3 per cent nickel steel gears; the propeller shaft is of two-piece tubular construction, with three Universal joints.

"The president of the company is H. P. Mammen, former sales manager of the Westcott Motor Car Co. of Springfield, O., who has had 15 years' experience in the automobile business, from the salesmen's, dealers' and the factory end.

"The vice president and sales manager is T. C. Brandle, president of the Brandle Motors Co., distributer of the Westcott and Chevrolet cars, as well as the Traffic truck in the St. Louis territory.

"The secretary-treasurer of the company is Guy Wilson, whose experience in financial and insurance affairs is broad and extensive. The engineer in charge of construction is E. R. Martin, formerly identified with the Westcott Motor Co. at Springfield"

CAME FROM ALASKA TO AUTOMOBILE SHOW

Far in the North of Alaska above the Arctic Circle is the home of two dyed-in-the-wool motor enthusiasts. They are Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Burgh of near Bettles—a mining district.

During the long winters Mrs. Burgh found herself wishing for some of the comforts of the more civilized country to the south. Papers old with age occasionally came in the mails to the little mining town. In them she frequently read of remarkable records of reliability made by a certain make of car.

She decided that she wanted a motor car. Her husband desired to grant her wish.

One night when he came home from his mines she surprised him by suggesting that they make a visit to California, many thousand miles away. The next day they started.

Fifteen hundred miles over ice and snow was made by dog sled to the nearest railroad where they embarked for the closest Pacific port and there took ship to the Golden Gate. What had caused Mrs. Burgh to arrive at the decision to make the trip so suddenly was a paper announcing the automobile show at San Francisco.

Going to the auto show the Alaska miner and his wife found their favorite at the main entrance. It was the Maxwell car which had so appealed to Mrs. Burgh while she busied herself about her cold Northern home. Before the couple departed from the building on their first visit Burgh had given his check to the local dealer for the Maxwell with which they expect to startle the natives back in Bettles when they return.

BUY LOCOMOTIVE PLANT

Pressing need for much greater space in which to manufacture United States solid truck tires, which have had such huge sales that the output has more than doubled in quantity in the past two years, is te reason given by the United States Rubber Co. for its recent purchase of the largest manufacturing plant of the American Locomotive Co. at Providence, R. I.

The property immediately adjoins the Revere plant of the United States Rubber Co., where the company has concentrated its solid tire activities. The new plant will be part of the Rever unit which thus becomes a dominant factory in the country for the manufacture of solid truck tires.

MOVES FARMER INTO TOWN

"Before the introduction of the automobile into agricultural districts the farmer occupied a very isolated position," says Harry Newman of the Kissel Kar. "A trip to town was a journey, and consequently was taken only when absolutely necessary.

"Today the motor car is proving a short cut to the attractions of the city, as well as bringing the farmer's market neraer to him, making country life attractive and enjoyable.

"Such adaptability has in addition caused young men to stay on the farm, as well as giving added impetus to the 'back to the acre' movemnt for bumper crops by attracting people from cities and suburbs."

MERRIWEATHER SPEAKS WELL OF THE CHANDLER

Returning to his home in St. Louis, after a year's service abroad, Hon Lee Merriwether stopped off at the Chandler factory to take delivery of a Chandler convertible sedan.

Mr. Merriwether's sedan had been on order about a year, as he had just placed his order with the Lewis Automobile Co., St. Louis Chandler distributors, when Government instructions were received for him to leave immediately for his duties in France.

After driving about 5000 miles, Merriwether writes enthusiastically of the Chandler sedan. "Having had some experience with enclosed cars of other makes, I was a little doubtful as to how well the Chandler sedan body would stand up under the rather severe work which I should require. I was, even then, confident of Chandler mechanical superiority.

"Not only did the car come up fully to my anticipations from a mechanical standpoint, but the Chandler enclosed bodies, too, are indeed most highly satisfactory."

URGES EVERYONE TO QUICKLY GET ON THE WATER WAGON

Drink glass of hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, are assured that one week of inside-bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.—ADV.

Mother Tells How Cuticura Healed Baby's Itching Eczema

"When four months old, my baby had itching and burning eczema on his face and head. The skin was sore and red, and the eczema caused disfigurement for the time being. He scratched himself and was very fretful and restless. He could not sleep nights, and he kept me awake also. The eczema caused his hair to fall out.

"He had the eczema about two months. One night I read about Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and started to use them, and after using one box of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of Soap he was entirely healed. He is now three years old and has not been troubled with eczema since." (Signed) Mrs. Marie Ward, 904 Fitzgerald St., Bay City, Mich., July 17, 1917.

Cuticura Soap to cleanse and purify, and Cuticura Ointment to soothe are ideal for every-day toilet purposes.

Today's Beauty Help

We find you can bring out the beauty of your hair to its very best advantage by washing it with Canthrox. It makes a very simple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff, dirt and excess oil, leaving a wonderfully clean, wholesome feeling. After its use, you will find that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is never streaked in appearance and is always bright, soft and fluffy; so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. Just use a teaspoonful of Canthrox, which you can get from any good druggist, dissolve it in a cup of hot water; this makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. —ADV.

'UPSTAIRS AND DOWN' KEEN SOCIAL SATIRE

Vulgar Rich and Idle Poor Dissected at Jefferson Tonight.

Those indefatigable Chicago playwrights—the Hattons—Frederick and Fannie Locke—will be represented at the Jefferson Theater this week, beginning tonight, by their comedy of the vulgar rich and the idle poor, "Upstairs and Down." The Hattons will be remembered for "The Great Lover," presented here last season by Leo Dietrichstein.

The play exhibits a cross-section of the two strata, masters and men, guests and servants, at a week-end party given by a millionaire New Yorker at his country place, somewhere on Long Island. The picture presented is an unpleasant one, the characters upstairs, almost without exception, being foolish and dissipated, while the worthies downstairs are a spying, ill-trained and incompetent crew. In the second act the guests hold a bathing-suit party at night in the kitchen. The dialogue, however, is smart.

The plot revolves around one Capt. Terence O'Keefe, an Irish polo player with a blarneying tongue, who has a reputation as a devil with the ladies. He is pursued by a young girl, delicately known as a "baby vampire," who does not hesitate to tell a lie blackening her own reputation in the hope of compelling the masculine charmer to marry her. But it is another woman, about the only one of the better sort in the cast, who finally ensnares the elusive Captain. There are love affairs in the kitchen also, but on a higher plane than those upstairs.

Of the cast of the production in New York, where the play ran a year last season, the following will be seen here: Paul Harvey, Frederick Tilden, William MacDonald, Orlando Daly and Roberta Arnold. Others in the list are Robert Ellis, Louis Christy, Herbert Ashton, Herbert Farjeon, Ann MacDonald, Frances Ring, Frances Mann, Elaine Ivans and Helene Sinnott. The production is by Oliver Morosco. To the Jefferson next Sunday will come "The Very Idea!" a farce on the subject of eugenics, with Richard Bennett at the head of the cast.

Gerard's Book in Moving Pictures.

"My Four Years in Germany," the notable book by former Ambassador James W. Gerard, which was published in serial form by the Post-Dispatch, has been turned into a photoplay for the purpose of war propaganda, by means of arranging the numerous incidents related in chronological order so as to form a continuous and dramatic narrative. It will have its first showing this week at the American Theater, beginning with matinee this afternoon. Much is made of the episode in which the Kaiser stated to Judge Gerard that he would "stand no nonsense from America after the war."

Adelaide and Hughes, a distinguished team of American dancers, will head the bill at the Orpheum this week. The former especially is recognized as a genuine artist. Other features will be a playlet taken from Jack London's "The Sea Wolf," Vinie Daly, an opera singer, a ventriloquist, acrobats, and various variety acts. Sarah Bernhardt will appear at the Orpheum next week in a new French war play.

"The Up to Date Missionary" and "The Poolroom," two playlets, will be the leading attractions at the Columbia. "The Unmarried Mother," a play dealing with a widespread social problem, will be presented at the Imperial. The vaudeville bill at the Grand will include "On the Atlantic," showing a shipboard scene on the way to France. "Follies of the Day" will be shown at the Standard.

COMMUNITY KITCHEN WILL BE OPEN HERE SOON

The first community kitchen in an American city, outside of New York, will be opened soon at 1729 South Seventh street, by the Women's Central Committee. It will prepare for the housewives of that neighborhood, and dispense to them at low cost, foods which may either be eaten at the caffeteria or carried home.

Good cuts of meat, roasts, legs of mutton and the like, standard soups and those of vegetables that are seldom seen in the small families because of the length of time it requires for their cooking, will be offered for sale at low prices. The kitchen will offer its services to the neighborhood from 6:30 a. m. till mid-forenoon, when milk and bread will be the principal offerings; from 11:30 a. m. till 1:30 p. m., when an entire meal, from soup to coffee, will be on order, and from 5 till 8 p. m., for supper.

The kitchen, like those that will follow it, is not a charitable undertaking or a convenience suited solely to the needs of the poorer families. Mrs. E. T. Senseney is in charge. The active management will be in the hands of Mrs. Edward Schulz.

During the interim between the rush hours demonstrations of war cookery and lectures upon relative food values and similar problems will be conducted in the kitchen by skilled demonstrators and instructors from the Patriots' Kitchen at 701 Locust street.

A Harvard Ambulance Man

How the Great God Rumor and His Understudy, Hearsay, Combine to Spread Misinformation Among the Men at the Front—Slang and Philosophy of the Fighting Men.

By ROBERT A. DRAKE

Of the Harvard Ambulance Corps and Winner of the French War Cross.

IN war times the great God, Rumor, and his understudy, Hearsay, have full sway. I made my first acquaintance with both deities on the way across to France. After the first day out, everybody offered everybody else the most important "inside information"—which, in each case, had come under the solemn seal of secrecy from the barber, the steward or the purser.

When we reached Paris, these moving tales increased. Every other man had a thrilling story of how his ship had been torpedoed, or nearly torpedoed, or how it had sunk a submarine. "Yes, sir!" an otherwise total stranger would tell a crowd, impressively. "I was on the —— when the Boches hit the old girl with a tin-fish and sent her to the bottom. Escaped with what I stood in."

The men whose ships had sunk submarines were legion. Faith in their bright narratives was shattered when one had heard a few conversations.

"I saw the wake of the torpedo. It shot past our bow only 20 feet away! Then our gunners fired, and hit the submarine plumb! I saw it. I was only 20 feet from the gun!"

"Get out, Joey! The gunners were shooting at a barrel for practice—and they didn't come within 50 yards of it, at that!"

"And say, Joey!" (This from a third man.) "You were down in the cabin, anyway, playing cards with us when the gun went off!"

This preparatory course in war rumor and hearsay sent us to the front well equipped with cool skepticism and when we joined our ambulance section near the firing lines we found that rumors and contradictions were a regular part of the day's routine, and that an integral part of war philosophy was to shrug the shoulders at much of the "news" that was passed on from mouth to mouth.

Wishes Father to Thought.

As time went on I learned a curious psychological war trait among all the men. Desire was father to rumor. When men wanted something to happen, it was not long before somebody would jump to the belief that it really had happened, or was going to happen surely. Immediately the word flew around—and everybody wanted so much to believe it that it was believed.

If a man happened merely to see some soldiers removing supplies from an army storehouse, it was quite enough to produce elaborate rumors of a vast movement impending.

In this ever-present atmosphere of gossip and hearsay, there was one extraordinary exception. It was the comparative absence at the front of rumors about spies. In the rear, as in America, the talk was all of spies, and the newspapers printed daily accounts of spies and of huge spy systems; but at the front itself, where one naturally would expect the utmost activity of spies, there was hardly any reference to them at all. In six months at or behind the front I heard only five reports about spies. Four of these were exceedingly vague and indefinite, and only one had any details at all connected with it to indicate that it might be correct.

The one and only really detailed spy story was that of the capture of a German in the uniform of a French Chasseur Lieutenant, right in the French front trenches. Somebody noticed that the regimental insignia on the collar corresponded to that of a regiment that had left the trenches on relief three days before. The officer had no staff officers' marks that might have justified his presence there, and he did not succeed in giving very satisfactory replies to questions.

> WHILE war teaches men adaptability, it also tends to convince them that it is futile to plan ahead. "What's the use of taking off your shoes?" I heard men say scores of times. "Just as soon as I get them off, there'll be an order to get out at once! It never fails!" Men will have to learn anew, after the war, to look ahead far enough for a well-conducted life. At the front they may wait and hope and think—but only for the day immediately ahead. They learn to look forward with intense eagerness to such things as the daily meals and the mail—not merely because these things give them pleasure, but because these are the only pleasures on which they can really depend. To look forward too much means disappointment because war disjoints all things. Thus, they hardly dare to look forward too earnestly to their furloughs—because something may happen to them before they leave.—ROBERT DRAKE.

He was inclined to be taciturn, until somebody suddenly pressed a pistol at the back of his neck. Then he became eloquent enough to confess that he was a German agent and that he had been communicating secrets to the enemy. The man was tried at once by court-martial and shot the next day.

One thing that naturally, and as a matter of course fostered the constant flood of rumor and hearsay was the hunger of everybody for news. No man at the front ever knew the day's news, even about those things that were happening actually in his own sector.

For instance, after a great attack or defense the men at the front did not know exactly what had happened, or even whether the operation had been a success or a failure, till the newspapers arrived from Paris. All the news of every engagement was collected first at the front, then sent to Paris, there printed and then finally delivered in the form of newspapers at the very front where the episode had occurred.

Thus, men at a distance of hundreds (even thousands) of miles away knew the news before the men on the scene knew it; and men in Paris actually were the ones who had to tell the war news to men sitting on the firing line!

It is easy to understand how strenuously the men demanded newspapers. One day at Paissy I saw an unshaven bicyclist pedaling furiously up a shell-swept road. He had an enormous bundle of Paris newspapers tucked under one arm; and his aspect of grim determination told us more plainly than words could have done, that even though it ment the risk of his life, the poilu in the trenches msut have his newspaper.

Odyssey of a News Sheet.

During the days of big fighting, it was impossible to get enough newspapers to meet the demand. Then one newspaper often made an Odyssey through all the branches of the service. First an autotruck driver would buy it from some lucky devil in the rear. An artillerist would buy it from the driver. A machine gunner bought it from the artillerist. The machine gunner sold it to an infantryman.

Thus it would pass from hand to hand till it was tattered and worn beyond recognition. Even then, when it served no longer to feed the hot appetite for news, it was not wasted. The last man to get it saved it for a score of purposes, from wiping his razor to wrapping up a stray bit of cheese.

One of our boys was so lucky as to have friends in the States who sent him four different papers regularly. He was always in demand among Frenchmen as well as Americans. It

War Turns Oppressed German Masses to Democracy

but Junkers and Militarists Still Oppose All Reforms

ARMY RULES AND BENDS LAWS TO ITS PURPOSE

Under Martial Law, 24 Autocratic Corps Commanders Hold the Power of Life and Death Over the Populace—Sabre and Bayonet Maintain Order and Censorship Covers All Subjects of Speech or Publication.

But Kaiser, Fearing Changes Through War, Shows Liberal Leanings—Spends Much of His Time at Prayer—Dynasty Not in Danger, as the People Are at Heart Monarchic.

> THE Kaiser has more and more permitted his own person to be exploited, possibly as a preparedness measure to forestall any possible drooping popularity of himself and his dynasty. He has even gone the length of permitting German correspondents to travel with him on his imperial train to the front, like a mere Presidential candidate, and the German people have been edified with many columns of minute description of the Kaiser, whereas the policy of the ring around the Kaiser in the early part of the war was to keep him out of the limelight and let him have a minimum of publicity.—CYRIL BROWN.

HOW fares political reform among the German people?

While all the rest of the world is turning to democracy and even German statesmen are glibly prating of it in their utterances prepared for world-consumption, is there any sign of the spread of the real democratic spirit in the German empire, the last stronghold of militarism, autocracy and junkerism?

Cyril Brown, whose highly informative series of articles on "Germany As It Is Today," was published in the Post-Dispatch, here answers these questions out of the authoritative information gathered by him and associate correspondents of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World both in Germany and in neutral countries that border on the empire.

By CYRIL BROWN,

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

STOCKHOLM, March 10.

GERMANIA in 1918 is still wearing her old-fashioned, tight-laced, steel-boned corset of militarism—or strait-jacket, according to varying German viewpoints. While the whole body politic from top to bottom is undergoing war change, the spirit of militarism goes goose-stepping on, unconverted and unconvertible; nor have its outward and visible signs, its ironclad formulas for imposing government on the people, its rigid and ruthless institutions for safeguarding the state, its whole technique of ruling—with blood and iron, if necessary—undergone any material change.

Its expression at home does not indicate that any great lessons have been learned as a result of the war.

Germany is passing through the strangest reasonably bloodless economic, social and political revolution, while the militaristically tempered framework of the state, of society, persists virtually unchanged. The death-grapple between militarism and democracy in Germany is taking place, with seemingly no possibility of disrupting the state as long as the discipline of the army is not-undermined. The slow-moldering revolution in German is essentially, and beginning to be so recognized by Germans themselves, a struggle between the old spirit of militarism and the new spirit of democracy, not yet fully conscious of its existence nor of its powers.

Still Has His Champions.

The fervent champions of militarism, who believe that it alone has been the salvation of Germany, have not diminished in number; on the other hand, the devotees of democracy have increased astoundingly in number, recruited chiefly from the broad masses who until recently had been either indifferent to militarism or regarded it as a necessary evil. The military odds are still with militarism, since it controls the state machinery; democracy's fight now is for breath and a chance to live, for some slight relief from military restrictions; not for complete freedom, but only for a tolerable partial freedom of speech.

Military control today is still absolute. Since June 30, 1914, Germany has been living in a legal 'state of siege," all the powers of all civil authorities automatically passing into the hands of the military authorities with the proclamation of martial law.

Until martial law is lifted absolute military control of freedom of speech and public opinion not only is theoretically possible, but frequently proved in practice. It is made possible by three forms of perfectly lawful military activity; these are military censorship, control of public meetings and preventive arrest. In the practice of these, subject only to general directions from the Prussian Minister of War, each commanding General is an autocrat in his own corps district, and there are consequently as many degrees of militarism in Germany as there are practical exponents of it.

Not all commanding Generals exercise their rights fully. Here and there a more liberal-minded commanding General gives the impression that martial law is almost napping. The state of siege, however, is sharpened in all border corps districts, being sharpest throughout Alsace-Lorraine.

The state of siege has also been sharpened for the benefit of Greater Berlin. For Greater Berlin the article of the Prussian Constitution has been put out of force, which provides that no one can be withdrawn from the jurisdiction of the courts, as provided by law. So-called "extraordinary war courts" have been introduced, composed of two civilian Judges and three military officers. Anyone can be withdrawn from the jurisdiction of the ordinary court and tried by these mixed military tribunals, whose verdict is final. There is no appeal from them. Only their death sentences require the counter signature. Sentence is executed within 24 hours, and death is by shooting.

The Death Penalty.

Under martial law the extraordinary war courts can inflict the death penalty not only in all cases provided by normal peace-time law, but in a large extended number of cases, such as forcible attack on or resistance to civil or military authorities. The "white-weapon" police saber and cold bayonet are still exclusively relied on to maintain order in extremities.

The fight for greater freedom of speech, particularly for more freedom of the press, has concentrated itself in a sharp, sustained attack on the part of the Reichstag majority, against the abuses of the military censorship. There is no longer a political censorship in Germany today. The question of war aims and peace terms has been thrown wide open for press discussion. So far as the political leadership in Germany is alone concerned, both press and public enjoy complete freedom of speech and thought. This reform, however, is nullified for all practical purposes by the military censorship.

There is in Germany today only a military censorship, exercised by the several commanding Generals of army corps districts and the Commander in Chief in the Marks, subject to general orders issued by the Prussian Minister of War. But this military censorship is of a very elastic nature and not only is applied to purely military matters, but can be and is stretched to cover politics or any other subject of discussion. The basic principle of the German military censorship is to preserve military secrets and to maintain the will to victory. The peculiar abuses of the military censorship result from the fact that it does not confine itself to preventive measures, but plays an active, positive part in seeking to control public opinion.

Kaiser Becoming More Human.

Though the not undramatic struggle between militarism and democracy, still more or less vaguely veiled in wordy drapery of "new orientation," "inner political reform" and the "needs of the new times," is clear-cut, there are no protagonists on either side, no great outstanding figures of heroic proportion.

Certainly, the Kaiser is not the villain of the piece; Wilhelm II plays, in fact, a rather secondary role, turning with rather than forcing the turning of the slow wheel of German progress; influenced by the men and movements around him, rather than influencing; shoved by force of circumstances, not shoving; keen-witted enough to sense the trend of the strong current toward democracy and wise enough to swim discreetly with it, yet never quite catching up.

All Germany is changing, from bottom to top; the Kaiser, too; and if all Germans be divided into more or less partially demoralized sheep and hopelessly reactionary goats according as they have or have not learned a lesson of enlightenment from their hard schoolmaster, War, Wilhelm II must be ranked among the vast majority of the German people who have learned a bitter lesson to the extent of acquiring at least some smattering of democratic enlightenment.

Kaiser Spends Time in Prayer.

Pictorially, the Kaiser has undergone little change; his hair has grown whiter during the past year, but the old super-Rooseveltian vitality, his old elasticity of mind and body, persist unimpaired. The significant change has been inside his head. He feels really happy only when at the front, among his troops; while the quibblings and quarrelings of the politicians at home and the recurring political crises got on his nerves make him thoroughly tired; he is always glad to get away from Berlin.

The significant fact is not generally known among the German people themselves that during the last years of the war the Kaiser has become addicted to intensive religion and, particularly when in Berlin, spends much of his time locked up in solitary prayer—not improbably for political enlightenment.

The Kaiser is no longer a stumbling block in the path of political progress toward democratization. There is very general agreement among thinking Germans that his keen mind and mobile artistic temperament have not been unaffected by the revolutionary events of the 'iron times," and that he has read the signs of the new times and has gained some appreciation of the new political needs of the hour.

While the Kaiser has not openly and wholesouledly thrown in his lot and that of the Hohenzollern dynasty with the broad masses of Germany, he is at least tentatively toddling along the road of inner political and spiritual compromise, away from reactionaries and Pan-Germans and toward the waxing camp of liberalism and enlightened moderation. The shifting currents in the Kaiser's soul are gaugeable by the open disgruntlement and chagrin of the feudal-minded Conservatives and the greater feeling of warmth and friendliness in liberal and democratic circles.

Dynasty Is in No Danger.

Imperial change of political heart appears not entirely or even largely due to fear of the rising masses; it has all the earmarks of being moved by a belated recognition of the highest interests of the state, and of being, in this sense at least, partly voluntary; not in first line fears for the dynasty, but a realization of the futility of resisting the irresistible, a common sense "playing safe," a granting of rights, gracefully, while still possible, before public opinion too imperatively demands.

The Hohenzollern dynasty, in fact, appears to be in no danger of falling as a result of undermining internal forces. The Kaiser has lost none of his popularity, except in the sense that even the national hero, Hindenburg, is no longer quite such a magical name to conjure with. The patriotic effervescence of the early war months is gone, and food and economic pressure too long prolonged have tended to diminish enthusiasm all along the line.

The quiet, smoldering loyalty of the masses of the German people the Kaiser still enjoys unimpaired, this being particularly true of the hardy peasantry, the backbone of Germany, but hardly less true of the rank and file of orthodox majority Socialism. The Kaiser is still looked upon inevitably and approvingly as the head and symbol of the German empire, without which, to most Germans, a fatherland is still unthinkable.

Germans As Loyal Monarchists.

Scratch a German and you still find a loyal monarchist, regardless of degree or absence of democratic veneer, in all but few extremist cases. Only on the extreme political left, among the radical Socialists, does one find some spirit of indifference regarding the Kaiser as a necessary institution, changing into something akin to the proletarian republicanism among the small band of German Bolsheviks on the extreme tip of the left wing, the so-called Spartacus group of ultra-radicals.

There is, accordingly, no open or covert demand for the Kaiser's deposition, no secret clamor for the elimination of the Hohenzollern dynasty, no important, not even any appreciable, body of public opinion in favor of a republic. The gamut of responsible German public opinion ranges from reactionary militaristic oligarchical monarchy to socialized monarchical democracy; the notes of simon pure democracy are missing in the German scale; there is nothing dreamed of between hyphenated Kaiser democracy and wide-open anarchy as preached by the Spartacus theorists.

Open attacks on the Kaiser have been comparatively few; only one case of punished lese-majesty has come to my notice—that of a professor of theology at the University of Koenigsberg, who drew two months in a fortress for libeling the imperial one. The bulk of veiled criticism and subtle attack directed against him has proceeded not from the bottom but the top; from irritated Conservatives and Pan-Germans.

Junkers the Real Villians.

The real villain still pursuing Little Ruby Democracy is Prussian junkerdom, and the bulwark of the reaction in all Germany is the Prussian three-class electoral law. By virtue of this antiquated law, junkerdom sits securely intrenched behind the Prussian Constitution with a comfortable Conservative working majority in the Prussian House of Representatives, absolute control of the Prussian House of Lords and control of virtually all Government jobs in Prussia.

Through its Conservative majority in the Prussian Diet, which cannot be broken by constitutional means against its will, junkerdom controls the Prussian Government, and in turn, through Prussia's preponderance in the Bundesrat, or Federal Council, has a stranglehold on the whole German empire which the heroic efforts of a Reichstag majority have not succeeded in loosening decisively. Junkerdom is accordingly a sinister power still to be reckoned with, and its hold on the Imperial Government can only be

How America Treats Enemy Aliens Held in Internment Camps

Most of the Germans in Georgia Prison Barracks Glad They Are Not in Europe—Strong "Pro-American" Party Among Inmates at Fort Oglethorpe.

HOW does the United States treat its interned civilian enemy aliens and its military prisoners of war?

How are they quartered and fed; what labor are they required to do; what recreations and amusement are provided; what privileges do they have; what are the exact facts concerning the daily routine of their lives in the internment camps.

What, if any, truth is in the charges occasionally made that they are better fed and cared for than United States troops in cantonments and that they have special privileges and even luxuries out of keeping with their character as prisoners of war?

To get truthful and detailed answers to these questions, the Post-Dispatch, and the New York World, with consent of the War Department, sent a staff correspondent to visit the two most typical war prison camps in the United States—one at Fort Olgethorpe, Ga., where only civilian enemy aliens are interned, and the other at Fort McPherson, Ga., where only military prisoners are interned.

Herewith is published the first article, describing in detail war prison camp life among the interned civilian enemy aliens at Fort Oglethorpe:

By RICHARD LINTHICUM,

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

FORT OGLETHORPE, Ga., April 10.

THE smaller of the two large war prison camps in Georgia, but the more interesting by reason of the diversified character of its prisoners, is at Fort Oglethorpe, where only civilian enemy aliens of the United States are interned. The camp was built and originally occupied by the interned sailors of the former German sea raider, Prinz Eitel Friederich, who were sent later to join their mates of the Kronprinz Wilhelm at the larger camp at Fort McPherson, near Atlanta. It is located just south of the Tennessee line, about 45 minutes by trolley from Chattanooga.

The stockade, comprising 82 acres 800 feet above sea level, is in the form of a rectangle with the southwest corner sliced off, the latter being used for office buildings for the commandant and his staff and quarters and mess of the guard company. It is inclosed by a barbed wire fence 12 feet high, and the sentry walk around it is a few feet short of a mile.

The compound fence of the same material and height comes within 20 to 30 feet of the outer stockade fence, varying with the lay of the ground. No interned prisoner is permitted to approach nearer than 30 feet to the compound fence.

Along the stockade fence are seven sentry towers, so located that the view from each covers every part of the stockade.

A sentinel is always on duty in each tower, armed with a shotgun and a rifle. There is also a Gatling gun in each tower.

At night the entire stockade is lighted by electric lights placed on the posts of the stockade fence and reflected in, so that while the stockade is brilliantly illuminated and the movements of any one inside can be plainly seen, the sentinel himself is in the shadow.

"Fool Proof" Sentry System.

Seven more sentinels are added at night, who patrol from tower to tower, relieving each other when they meet, thus forming a continuous chain and insuring against a sentinel sleeping on post without being discovered in a few minutes by the man whose duty it is to relieve him. This system was devised by the commandant, who pronounces it "fool proof." The electric lighting is furnished from the city of Chattanooga, but there is an auxiliary lighting plant in the camp, which is started immediately if the city lights go out.

It is nearly impossible for prisoners to escape by digging out under the stockade fence, as 10 of them did at the Fort McPherson camp, because the underlying rocks come almost to the surface. Only by blasting could a tunnel deep enough to conceal a prisoner be made.

The one favorable chance of escape is due to dense fogs which come on usually after sundown and most frequently after midnight, when objects are invisible more than a few feet away. The fences would not be a formidable barrier if prisoners could reach them unseen, as the strands are close together and any person of agility could scale them.

The prevention of escapes, therefore, depends almost entirely upon the vigilance of the sentinels and the manner in which this has been exercised is shown by the fact that there have been but three escapes since the camp was established, Aug. 17, 1917.

The Millionaire's Compound.

Within the stockade are two compounds. In the larger one of 22 acres are the prisoners, supported and cared for wholly by the Government. In the smaller, or inner, compound of 10 acres are the prisoners who buy their own food and clothing, employ their own servants from among the men in the larger compound and support themselves without cost to the Government. Among them are many millionaires, and the inner compound has come to be known among the other prisoners and the men of the guard as the "Millionaires' Compound," or "Millionaires' Club." New York maintains its financial supremacy here by contributing a larger number of members than any other section.

In these two compounds are interned nearly every type of Teutonic civilian enemy alien who has not been convicted of a crime to be met with in the United States, from bankers like Hugo Schmidt of the Deutsche Bank; Adolph Pavenstedt of Amsinck & Co.; Fred A. Borgemeister, former confidential secretary to Dr. Heinrich Albert; scientists like Prof. Jonathan A. W. Zenneck, the Sayville wireless expert; musicians like Ernst Kunewald, leader of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra; editors like Waldemar von Nossitz of the Western Anzeiger at Cleveland; brokers like Fritz Baumgartner of Cleveland; merchant marine captains like Capt. Frank Kuehn of the Johanna; German noblemen like Counts Gustorf and Merkel; men of high connections like Franz Schmidt, said to be the brother-in-law of Gen. Ludendorff, down to the most violent and vociferous agitators of the I. W. W. type, would-be dynamiters, beer hall plotters and propagandists and the very off-scourings of the Teutonic humanity.

Many Are "Pro-American."

Not only is the camp divided in the matters of wealth and class, but, in the larger compound, it is divided in "patriotism;" that is to say, there are two factions—a "pro-American" faction and what the "pro-Americans" call a "pro-German Prussian" faction. The "pro-American" faction, which is the smaller, is composed of men who either have taken out citizenship first papers or have lived a long time in the United States. They insist that they are Americans and not Germans. They do not associate with the "pro-Germans" or speak to them, and the most radical "pro-Americans" will not walk on the same side of the street with the "pro-Germans." The "pro-Americans" occupy two barracks in the big compound, and no "pro-German" is per-

HOW THE ARMY TALKS AND WHAT THE SOLDIERS SAY

was no uncommon sight to see blue-coated poilus and drab-coated Americans leaning against opposite sides of trees, reading sheets from the newspapers and smoking the same poor French cigarettes.

French Army Terms.

From the every-day vocabulary of the French soldiers the American boys culled a number of useful words that they incorporated bodily into their own home language. "Boches" and "Fritzies" thus displaced the word "Germans" entirely. "Sausages" became the one word for the observation balloons, and "avion" replaced "aeroplane" entirely.

"Parapet" became the word for the top of the trenches. Everybody said "abris" when he referred to the sanitary caves and dug-outs, and "mitrailleuse" quite took the place of the American word, "machine gun," except when he referred to those weapons as "coffee-grinders" or "typewriters" in tribute to the hammering character of the noise they made in action.

"Embusque" became a more familiar word to use than the English term, "slacker." We never went away on "leave." It was always "permission."

Perhaps the most characteristic, most popular and most constantly heard phrase was: "C'est la guerre!" (It is the war!) That phrase at the front (and, indeed, everywhere all over the world), stands as a confession of utter human helplessness, and as an explanation for everything that isn't as it should be. "C'est la guerre!"

The French artillery was wonderfully supplied with slang, and much of it was ingenious compound of French and English. "Obus" was their name for a shell, and "eclat" was their expression for the burst of shell-fragments that form the biggest death-dealing factor in this war. A German shell was hailed as an "arrivee," and a French shell was called a "departee." If the day was not too greatly disturbed by gunfire, it was "tranquil."

French slang was the only really new slang that we learned. War did not noticeable effect our American slang. The boys failed to rise to the occasion and invent anything strictly new. We went to "pound the alfalfa" or "hit the hay," as we did in the States when it was bedtime. When a man wanted a catch phrase he said, "I'll tell the world." Persons who demade a request for the "dope," and a man who got wroth at a joke or at "kidding" was informed by a chorus that somebody had "got his goat." The only new slang, almost, was the adoption of the term "money meat" for canned beef and "black poison" for the coffee.

Perils of a Little French.

French being the natural language of the country, most of us made some sort of a "stab" at it. The stab was not always successful. I had a particularly unsuccessful conversation with a particularly wild Moroccan as a result of a slight misreading of the "Table of Useful Expressions" in my pocket dictionary.

It all began with a bad small boy who offered to sell me a very fine red Moroccoan fez for a franc; and as I shared with the rest of the American section the craze for collecting souvenirs, I bought the relic eagerly. Barely five minutes later a wild Moroccoan Colonel with a huge scar across his nose and so many medals on his chest that the cloth of the coat was scarcely visible, came rushing up to the ambulance, and snarled something, at the same time fingering a three-foot long knife that was in his belt.

I managed to understand that he was asking for his fez and I brought it out instantly. As I handed it to him, I thought it well to express my regrets, so I hunted my memory for the French words for "I am very sorry!"

My unfortunate memory led me to say to him: "Je m'en suis tres feche!" Hardly had I said it, before he snatched the fez, snatched for his knife and went for me. I saw murder in that African eye, and fled without shame.

Later, when the world had calmed down, I opened that dictionary and found that in the table of useful expressions the useful expression "I am very sorry" was on a line next to the expression: "I am very angry." I had mixed them up!

Frank Personalities in Camp.

Tender regard for the sensibilities of messmates and comrades was not a characteristic of the army. Men who were thin-skinned had to acquire a thickening of epidermis before they had been at the front long, if they wanted to survive.

If there happened to be an officer at mess (whether Lieutenant or Captain) who showed any symptoms of feeling unduly superior to us privates, the whole outfit gave a low, but plainly audible, imitation of a stage mob scene, with the gentle mob-murmur: "Fly on the wall! Fly on the wall!" There never was an egotist who failed to take the hint.

At one time the unified spirit of the American section was threatened by the formation of a group that began to "swank," eat private meals and indulge in exclusive parties. Instantly the rest grouped themselves as "Paupers" and christened the others "Millionaires." There also were joyous references to "The House of Lords," until the Lords were mighty glad to be received back into the House of Commons.

Now and then an American was led by vanity to emulate the poilus in trying to grow hair on the face; but the free and generous references to his "puppy-fur" soon turned his thoughts to his razor.

Of course everybody got a nickname. One of the boys punctured holes in the front of his "flivver" with such regularity that he quite lost the name he had borne in America, and became known far and wide by the simple and touching sobriquet, "Radiator Bill." Another, who was inclined to hang around the chef a little too much, was cured of it when he found himself addressed gravely and respectfully as "sewer chef," which, he learned, was a free Americanization of the French "sous chef."

Naturally, the biggest fellow with the biggest mustache was christened "Mother." And with equal appropriateness the most temperate and moral of the outfit was known as "Philly Fisher's Drunken Son."

One man who got a nickname was not at all sure for a long while that he liked it. He was the elderly French driver of the section's gasoline truck, and he viewed his enthusiastically bestowed name of "Benzine Bill" with some doubt. Indeed, he refused to answer to it until he had been assured solemnly that the title "Benzine" in America was as highly honorable as the title "General" in French.

POSTPONED CONCERT TODAY

Pageant Choral Society to Give Program at Odeon.

The Pageant Choral Society's popular concert, postponed from last Sunday, will be given this afternoon at the Odeon, with the entire chorus of some 200 voices, the Symphony Orchestra, and three soloists.

Chief among them will be Miss Rena M. Lazelle, coloratura soprano, who made an excellent impression two years ago as soloist at a Symphony Orchestra "pop" concert. The others are Miss Lily Hartwig, soprano, and Miss Irene Hackmann, contralto, members of the chorus. The club will sing a number of excerpts from its previous programs. Frederick Fischer will conduct.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist, and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in St. Louis by Enderle-Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Savings for Men!

150 Men's Suits, $21

We recently made a purchase of suits, the product of one of America's most prominent manufacturers. Most of them are silk lined.

The Suits in this lot were made to sell for $30.00, $35.00 and as high as $40.00, but we are going to close them all out in this "Tremendous April Drive" which commences tomorrow—at $21.00.

Understand, this is an odd lot—you will not find all sizes, but there are regulars, shorts and stouts up to 52-inch chest measurement. In the material you will find cheviots and serge, and every suit is made of strictly all-wool fabrics.

The manufacturing concern referred to above makes nothing but all-wool garments.

Choice Monday of the entire lot, $21.00.

(Third Floor—Nugents.)

FLYERS MORE FEARFUL OF SEARCHLIGHTS THAN OF GUNS

"Most Nerve-wracking of Enemies; They Seem to Be Alive," Writes British Airman.

LONDON, March 13 (By A. P.).—Searchlights are the most nerve-racking enemy which the airplane pilot has to face in night flying, writes an airman in the Daily Mail.

"Searchlights are cruel things," he says, "are far harder on the nerves than high-explosives or shrapnel. They seem so alive, as though they had volition of their own and were great arms stretched out across the night, sweeping the darkness with an eager desire to find their quarry.

"Perhaps the airman is flying placidly over the enemy territory in an area which he knows has been hitherto undefended. Suddenly, he sees immediately in front of him a beam of light moving up and down, up and down."

"Nearer and nearer it moves towards him, weaving its way in wide sweeps across the sky until it flashes over him, and for a moment the machine is lit up and he is conscious of a great pool of intensely brilliant light, in which he seems to swim, and then it pases beyond him—but remains very near the machine.

"The pilot throttles his engine and turns slightly as he glides along. The beam is, as it were, puzzled, and moves slowly behind him as he glides farther and farther on, and soon he has left it a long distance behind him."

To Speak on Solar Eclipse.

Prof. W. A. Cogshall of Bloomington, Ind., professor of astronomy at the Indiana University, who is formulating plans to observe the coming total eclipse of the sun, will speak on "The Problems of the Total Solar Eclipse With Reference to the Corona and Intra-Mercurial Planets," at a meeting of the Academy of Science at the Washington University Medical School, Scott and Euclid avenues, tomorrow evening, at 8:15 o'clock.

WAR IS TURNING OPPRESSED GERMAN MASSES TO DEMOCRACY

broken by rooting it out at the bottom—in Prussia itself.

Keystone of Junkerdom.

The three-class Prussian electoral law is the keystone of the powerful reactionary stronghold of junkerdom; knock out the keystone and the whole junker structure crumbles, dragging with it to ruin its auxiliary wing of pan-Germanism. The reform of the Prussian electoral law along the lines of complete electoral equality is recognized by its champions as the first inevitable step toward real democratization in all Germany, and it forms the pivotal point about which the struggle between the forces of reaction and democracy is centering most fiercely; no mere local Prussian issue, but of world-wide importance.

Junkerdom has not escaped the relentless revolutionary war change in Germany. Instead of dominating Prussia and all Germany unchallenged, it is in 1918 fighting for life, on the defensive, all along the line; actually standing at bay in its own burg of Prussia. Qualitatively it has undergone no appreciable change, however; learned no political or psychological lesson out of the bitter war, nor grown relatively weaker in numbers and influence.

Junkerdom has been forced into a position of greater isolation. The line between junkers and most other Germans is being more sharply drawn, and there is a vague but growing feeling among the majority of Germans, who at heart are a middle-class nation, that somehow the junker caste is in part to blame for the outbreak of the world war—and its continuation; the new critical and not a little passionate popular feeling being typically voiced in the following utterance of a Liberal Prussian Representative: "We have had enough of letting ourselves be governed by junkers." And a modernized German professor says of junkerdom: "A madder demagogy than at present vogue is unthinkable."

The junkers, who seem destined to the splendid isolation of Ishmaelites in Germany, have the rare merit of being fearless and honest. They are fighting ruthlessly, with all weapons at their command, for self-preservation as an admittedly privileged class. These proud descendants of an old feudal caste are men of inflexible principle and iron will, who would seemingly rather wreck the state in their death struggle than decently sign their own death warrant.

Theirs is the original model of the one-track brain. They see no other side of any issue but their own. They are no compromisers, temporizers or opportunists. They are true to their belief that the junkers are the salt of Prussia, and Prussia, in turn, the salt of the earth. They have one incurable fundamental fixed idea: "We are the state; we alone have made Prussia great, and Prussia the German empire." And their struggle for privileged existence is an honest, outspoken fight against democracy. For junkerdom the issue is clear cut.

The landed Junker aristocracy, rooted chiefly in the eastern provinces, is not an aristocracy in the best English sense. In knowledge of the world, breadth of vision and statesmanlike political wisdom they are not the peers of England's old peerage. They are practical agriculturalists and practical politicians with aristocratic titles. Their world is Prussia. They feel themselves in first line not as Germans but as Prussians; and they are passionately devoted to the "Prussian fatherland." They are fierce fighters for the cause of Prussia and their own caste; and their very narrowness of mind is perhaps the principal element of their strength.

The leader of the Prussian Conservatives was until the preesnt struggle the virtual regent of the country, and the fiery little Von Heydebrand is still nicknamed the "Uncrowned King of Prussia." The Junkers are consequently only defending their constitutional rights as a privileged class by fighting, tooth and nail, the imposition of the equal, secret and direct ballots against the will of their present majority in the Prussian Diet, a reform which they well know would break their hold on Prussia an dthe German Empire.

The Junkers have no sympathetic understanding for the dawn of the new inner political era, but though they are stubbornly and sinister-heroically seeking to check the inevitable wheel of progress, they are not so obtuse as not to realize that a turning point in history has been reached—for them too.

The last stand of the old guard is marked by defensive and offensive strategy of infinite variety and fascinating brilliance, throwing much useful light on the otherwise puzzling maelstrom of German public opinion. Aggressive Junkerdom, never in scrappier mood, is carrying the local Prussian fight against democracy into every corner of the German Empire; overlooking no weaknesses or tactical blunders of its democratic-tainted enemies, but exploiting every opening to the full; making vicious flank attacks on the progressive camp by confounding the Prussian electoral reform issue with the annexation question, the parliamentarization of the Imperial Government and other violently controversial issues; spending millions in a drumfire propaganda; moving heaven and earth to defeat or postpone indefinitely until after the war the electoral reform promised by the Kaiser, as King of Prussia.

When the Baby Needs a Laxative---

No one knows better than the ever-watchful mother—the natural doctor of the family in all the small ills—that when the baby is out of sorts it is usually due to indigestion or constipation.

It is always well, in any of its illnesses, to look for this cause. The diet may have to be changed, but before good can result from it, the bowels must be moved.

The mother has the choice of many medicines—cathartics, purgatives, bitter-waters, pills, physics, etc. But the little body doesn't need such harsh remedies for they wrench the system and do only temporary good, so often followed by an unpleasant reaction.

A better plan is to employ a mild, gentle laxative of which only a little is required. There is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold by druggists under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin that thousands of mothers have used successfully for baby's constipation and its accompanying ills, such as belching, wind colic, restlessness, sleeplessness, etc.

The nursing mother will also find it ideal for herself, and it is especially important that she be free from constipation.

Syrup Pepsin is guaranteed to do as promised or the druggist will refund the money. Thousands of cautious families have it in the house, secure against the little ills.

Dr. Caldwell's
SYRUP PEPSIN
The Perfect Laxative

NO INCREASE

In spite of enormous increased laboratory costs due to the War the manufacturers of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sacrificing their profits and absorbing the war taxes so that this family laxative may remain at the pre-war price of 50c and $1 a large bottle. So sold by druggists for 26 years.

FREE SAMPLES

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in America. If you have never used it and would like to sample it before buying, send your address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 468 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. If you have babies in the family send for a copy of "The Care of the Baby."

HOW AMERICA TREATS ALIEN ENEMIES IN INTERNMENT CAMPS

mitted to enter either of them. In these two barracks English only is spoken—German is barred.

One of the leaders of the "pro-American" faction is Karl G. Graves, the so-called "international spy," who, according to the authorities, does more talking than any of the others and who recently figured in an exciting adventure in the big compound. The attention of the executive officer was attracted to a riotous crowd of about 200 interned prisoners surging toward the main entrance gate; the central figure of the crowd was Graves; all the others "Prussians." With drawn revolver the executive officer battled the crowd and rescued Graves, who had baited the "Prussians" until they actually tried to put him out of the compound.

Sea Captain Took a Chance.

In the statement—that none of the prisoners knows why he is interned an exception should be made in the case of Capt. Frank Kuehn of the good ship Johanna, captured on the high seas with a cargo of "codfish," which turned out to be mostly rubber.

"How did you come to get caught, Captain?" he was asked.

"Well, I took a chance," he replied, "but I'm glad the United States got me instead of those fellows on the other side."

This sentiment finds general expression among the interned prisoners. None of them, of course, likes the idea of being "behind the fence," but since it is their lot to be prisoners, all with whom the writer talked expressed gratitude that they are prisoners of the United States instead of being interned abroad, not only because the food is more abundant and perhaps better in quality, but also because of the considerate and humane treatment they receive. And since they are prisoners of the United States they prefer to be, as they are, in the care of the United States army.

The war prison camp at Fort Oglethorpe does not differ in appearance from the average army camp or cantonment except in the particulars of the barbed wire fence and the sentry towers with the wicked-looking machine guns sticking out their noses as if on the scent for trouble.

Like an Army Camp.

In the larger compound are 10 sleeping barracks with a capacity of 42 men each and one general mess. Two more sleeping barracks are under construction and there are plans for two more, for this camp, despite the fact that it has no birthrate, is a growing community.

In the smaller, or "millionaire's" compound, the prisoners occupy the quarters formerly used by the officers of the Eitel Friederick, consisting of a sleeping barrack and mess hall. Both compounds have regulation latrines, toilets, shower baths and the general accessories of an army cantonment.

The kitchens are equipped with the same size and style of ranges and cooking utensils used in the regular army camps. The mess halls are identical with those of army cantonments, furnished with long, narrow board tables and dishes of enamelware and stone china. They are scrubbed every day and are as clean as the proverbial "old maid's kitchen." A prisoner is placed in charge of each table for a stated period and is held accountable for its appearance and the service. In the larger compound there is a repair shop for clothing and one for shoes, and the tailor's sign bears the additional announcement of "No Credit."

Millionaire's Beds Like Proletariats'.

In the smaller compound the sleeping barracks, having been built for officers, are divided into small compartments, thus giving some degree of privacy, but the "millionaires" sleep in the same kind of cots and mattresses as the "proletariat" and use the same kind of bed linen and blankets.

Generally speaking, class distinction between the civilian prisoners of the smaller and of the larger compound is about the same as that existing between the interned officers of the German ships and the members of the crews at Fort McPherson. The "millionaires" here wear better clothes than most of the others, as they did before internment; they have their own cooks and servants to wait upon them the same as the officers. As the "millionaires" buy their own food and are not limited as to quantity, the food cost per man per day in the inner compound is higher than in the outer compound, one month's comparison showing almost twice the cost for the inner compound, due to the quality of food purchased rather than to quantity or wastefulness for, according to the officers in charge, the "millionaires" are a thrifty lot, and very little is lost.

Even Millionaires Work.

Labor conditions vary in the inner and in the outer compound, but the millionaires do not live in ease and idleness despite the fact that they live in officers' quarters and are self-supporting, as is shown in the daily routine of the prison camp life.

Most of the prisoners at Fort Oglethorpe are from the Eastern sections of the United States, although the Middle West is represented in large numbers, both among the wealthier and the lower class prisoners. To begin with internment: They are brought in by United States Marshals or an army guard and are first subjected to a minute search. Everything that might aid them to escape is taken from them. If they have money, that is also taken and placed to their credit, and post exchange checks are issued to them, on which they may write checks on their deposits. They may also have post exchange "money," issued in books of $1 with coupons of 5 cents value, good at the post canteen, where they may purchase tobacco, cigarettes, pipes, fruit, nuts, soap, thread and needles and small articles of necessity. The stock of the canteen is purchased by the executive officer and sold to the prisoners at cost. He is also custodian of all funds.

Prisoners are not allowed to have any actual currency because in the event of escape it would aid them.

In searching prisoners the camp officers have frequently found letters or documentary evidence of importance, which in some instances have led to the arrest and internment of others.

Whatever clothing a prisoner may have is listed and his trunk or traveling bag put in a storeroom under lock and key. All prisoners are closely questioned and cross-examined at the time of internment and valuable information has been developed occasionally in this way.

Finally the interned man is provided with whatever necessary clothing he may lack, gets a number, is assigned to a bunk and becomes subject to all the rules and regulations of the prison camp.

When a prisoner is brought for internment only his name and the place he comes from are given to the camp officers. The commandant is not informed by the department responsible for the internment of the nature of the offense committed or of the known previous

"WHEN YOUR KIDNEYS FEEL LIKE LUMPS OF LEAD"

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, removing all the waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The channels often get sore, and your night's rest is disturbed.

Either consult a good reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.—ADV.

PEEL OFF ANY CALLUS

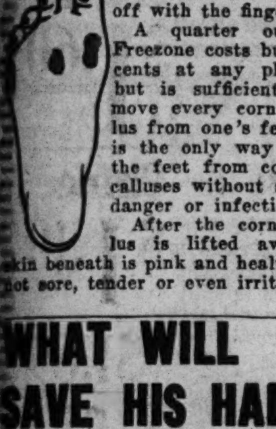
Here's Magic! Instant Relief Without Any Pain



"Hard skin" or callus spots on the sides or the bottom of the feet peel right off without pain or soreness, after you apply a little Freezone, says a Cincinnati authority. This ether drug loosens the dead callused skin so it peels off with the fingers.

A quarter ounce of Freezone costs but a few cents at any pharmacy, but is sufficient to remove every corn or callus from one's feet. This is the only way to free the feet from corns and calluses without soreness, danger or infection.

After the corn or callus is lifted away the skin beneath is pink and healthy, and not sore, tender or even irritated. —ADV.

WHAT WILL SAVE HIS HAIR?

Quick Action Is Needed—but It Can Be Done Says Man of Much Hair Knowledge.

Thin-Haired Men Advised Not to Wait Longer, for Parisian Sage Makes Hair Grow in Abundance.

Here's good news for men and women whose hair is falling out, whose scalps are covered with dandruff and itch like mad.

Judge & Dolph can now supply you with the genuine Parisian Sage (liquid form), which is guaranteed to quickly, surely and safely abolish every sign of dandruff, stop itching scalp and falling hair and promote a new growth, or money refunded.

Thousands can testify to the excellent results from its use; some who feared baldness now glory in their abundant hair, while others who suffered for years with dandruff and itching head got a clean, cool scalp after just a few days' use of this simple home treatment.

No matter whether bothered with falling hair, gray hair, matted, stringy hair, dandruff or itching scalp, try Parisian Sage—you will not be disappointed. It's a scientific preparation that supplies all hair needs.

The first application will make your hair and scalp look and feel 100 per cent better. If you want thick, lustrous hair, and lots of it, by all means use Parisian Sage. Don't delay—begin tonight. A little attention now insures abundant hair for years to come.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Miller's Antiseptic Oil, Known as

SNAKE OIL

WILL POSITIVELY RELIEVE PAIN IN FEW MINUTES

Try it right now for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lumbago, sore, stiff and swollen joints, pains in the head, back and limbs, corns, bunions, etc. After one application pain disappears as if by magic.

A new remedy used internally and externally for Coughs, Colds, Croup, Sore Throat, Diphtheria and Tonsilitis.

This oil is conceded to be the most penetrating remedy known. Its prompt and immediate effect in relieving pain is due to the fact that it penetrates to the affected parts at once. As an illustration, pour ten drops on the thickest piece of sole leather and it will penetrate this substance through and through in three minutes.

Accept no substitute. This great oil is golden red color only. Every bottle guaranteed; 25c, 50c and $1.00 a bottle or money refunded at all leading druggists. Enderle Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., St. Louis.—ADV.

HOW AMERICA TREATS ALIEN ENEMIES IN INTERNMENT CAMPS

history of the prisoner, or anything concerning his general character, and, therefore, to begin with, has no way to distinguish between an enemy alien who is dangerous and one who is comparatively harmless. New prisoners, therefore, are kept under the closest observation and surveillance until their general characteristics develop.

The day's routine begins with a bugle call at 5:45 a. m., and assembly sounds at 6 o'clock. The men, with no time for loitering, wash, dress and make their beds, folding back the mattresses and arranging their blankets as in a military cantonment. Breakfast call is at 6:30 and muster at 7 a. m.

At muster the prisoners are formed in lines four deep, close up, and then are counted by four persons—the executive officer, the retiring officer of the day, the new officer of the day and by one of the enlisted assistants, usually a Sergeant. The four counts are then compared, and if they agree the prisoners are dismissed to await fatigue call. If the counts fail to agree the officers check up again by calling the roll by name, as the prisoners are identified both by names and numbers. If a prisoner is missing the roll call, of course, will reveal it, and instant search begins. The checking up also includes men who may be in the hospital or guardhouse.

Road Building Chief Task.

Work begins at 7:30 o'clock with the sounding of fatigue call. Two work details are made, one for work inside the stockade and one outside. Inside the stockade the work consists principally of policing the grounds, cleaning up the quarters and performing necessary tacks in and around the buildings.

Outside work at present, which will last well into the summer, consists of building macadam roads and walks on the surrounding tracts of low lying land, which have been recently drained by a system of ditches dug by the prisoners. A large quarry of durable stone near the west fence of the stockade supplies the material. Here a considerable force is employed drilling, running the rock crusher, teaming and shaping and leveling the broken stone into substantial roadbeds.

One part of this labor they are not permitted to do. The Sergeant in charge personally loads the drill holes with dynamite, attaches and lights the fuse. Every explosion is personally conducted by the Sergeant. The men are not permitted to handle nor even touch the dynamite, nor are they supposed to know where it is kept.

For this outside work the prisoners receive a credit of $1 per day per man, which, with their board and lodging, is supposed to correspond with the current wages in this locality.

The foreman or "boss" of the outside workmen is Capt. Frank Kuehn of the Johanna, a medium sized man with a sparse reddish beard, blue eyes and a pleasant countenance that invites and inspires confidence and a wiry frame which suggests that with the aid of a sound marlin spike he would be able to quell any ordinary mutiny aboard ship. He has the regard and respect of the men, and, according to the camp officers, he gets a bigger day's work out of them than could a contractor's foreman or a man in khaki.

Every building is inspected twice a day, inside, outside and underneath. So critical is this inspection that in one instance where the prisoners had banked the front of a small building with earth and decorated the embankment with whitewashed stones, the commandant ordered the "improvements" removed, as they obstructed the view beneath the building and might be used as a place of concealment.

All of the buildings were built according to Government specifications, the original ones by members of the crew of the Prinz Eitel Friederich. The ones under construction are being built by outside workmen, as there are few skilled mechanics among the interned civilian prisoners, a fact noted in favor of the character of organized labor.

The sleeping barracks are supplied with regulation iron cots, cotton mattresses, pillows, bed linen and blankets of the same kind and quality issued to Government troops. These barracks were supplied by the Eitel Friederich sailors with homemade lockers where the men could store and look up their extra clothing, but the commandant announced to the writer that he intended to have the and lock up their extra clothing, but shelving, as the lockers afforded a place of concealment and he intended to have everything within the quarters in plain sight.

Officer was puzzling over the problem of getting a huge 450-pound stove into a building, when Poppa came along, picked up the stove and carried it in.

His regular work is driving a team of mules which are the pets of the commandant, who is an old campaigner on the American plains. One of the mules kicked Poppa beneath the left eye, whereupon he seized the animal by a fore and a hind leg and threw it flat on its back. His resentment ended there; he did not strike nor kick the animal, and the mule's only retaliation was a surprised and reproachful look.

All of the inside work of the smaller of "millionaires'" compound, such as policing the grounds and caring for the quarters, is performed by the prisoners themselves. Even the German noblemen take their turns in charge of the latrines.

The "millionaires," however, have not been compelled so far to do any labor outside the stockade, and this fact, coupled with the belief that they live in more or less ease and luxury has caused criticism and occasional bitter feeling in the nearby communities—a feeling which, according to reports, increases with America's greater participation in the war and the increasing casualty lists.

The labor situation with respect to these wealthier prisoners is one of

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild soothing guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

How to Become Healthy, Strong, Energetic, Magnetic and Ambitious

Three-Grain Cadomene Tablets Advised for Their Wonderful Tonic Properties.

Don't envy the man or woman with abundant energy, health, and the ever-present smile of cordial magnetic personality. Resolve to banish your languor, your tired, worn-out feeling, your aches and pains, your mental worry and distress, by supplying your system with plenty of iron, phosphorus, and vegetable tonics so that every organ of your body can perform its normal functions from the vigorous blood supply that courses through your arteries. Tone up the liver, stomach, kidneys, and bowels, digest your food better and supply your nerves with the vital elements in Cadomene Tablets and you won't need to envy anyone. Just get your body and nerves working right and nature will help you do the rest. Cadomene Tablets are sold in sealed tubes by all good druggists, and are guaranteed to please you or money back.—ADVERTISEMENT.

To Quickly Remove Ugly Hairs From Face

(Beauty Notes)

Beauty-destroying hairs are soon banished from the skin with the aid of a delatone paste, made by mixing some water with a little plain powdered delatone. This is spread upon the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed to remove the remaining delatone. This simple treatment banishes every trace of hair and leaves the skin without a blemish. Caution should be used to be certain that it is delatone you buy.—ADV.

If your Child is Cross, Sick, Feverish and Constipated.

Look, Mother! If Little Tongue is Coated, Cleanse the Inactive Bowels with "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is that they become clogged with waste, the liver becomes sluggish, the stomach is disordered, and then your little one becomes cross, feverish, and does not eat, sleep or behave naturally. Often the breath is bad, and system "stuffy" with a cold; the child has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste-matter, sour bile and undigested food pass out of the system, and you have a healthy, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," made by the California Fig Syrup Co., which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Look for name "California." Accept no Fig Syrup but "California."—ADV.

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood streets, Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Nerves" writes: "Is it possible to find a medicine which by its tonic or nutritive powers will bring the glow of health and ambition back to a man who has everything in the world but health and happiness? I am dull, forgetful, despondent, weak, trembling, short of breath and suffer more or less with pain in spine and back of head."

Answer: Your condition indicates the need of a strong, harmless tonic nutritive to restore nerve equilibrium, which in turn fortifies and strengthens the organs of nutrition, thus vitalizing the blood and promoting new cell and tissue to take care of the waste forces. Three-grain cadomene tablets, packed in sealed tubes with full directions, are recommended in all such cases.

Mrs. L. O. writes: "My husband is surely afflicted with some kidney disease. He has become weak and suffers with headache and pains in his back and groins. Pains are like rheumatism. His ankles swell and his feet seem to be tired all the time. Some days he has chills and no appetite. Please prescribe."

Answer: The symptoms indicate derangement of kidneys and should not be neglected. I would advise balmwort tablets, a compound well suited to such cases. Obtain in sealed tubes with directions for home use.

Adele writes: "My hair is combing out, my scalp itches and dandruff is much annoying, and I want something to cure these conditions."

Answer: For hair and scalp troubles I have never found anything to equal the beneficial results of a thorough treatment of plain yellow minyol. It is cooling, cleansing and invigorating, and thousands now use it regularly as a hair and scalp tonic.

S. E. writes: "Two years ago I used your great prescription for kidney trouble, and it wholly overcame the trouble. I want medicine now for constipation and impure blood, for I am a sight with pimples that make big, lumpy sores."

Answer: I would advise the taking of three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur) for several months to purify the system.

J. E. M. asks "Can I safely reduce my weight, and how?"

Answer: Go to a well-stocked druggist and get five-grain arbolone tablets in sealed tube with complete directions. Take as directed, and you should soon feel the relief you desire. Many of my patients report quick results without any harmful action whatever.

NOTE: For many years Dr. Baker has been giving free advice and prescriptions to millions of people through the press columns, and doubtless has helped in relieving illness and distress more than any single individual in the world's history. Thousands have written him expressions of gratitude and confidence similar to the following:

Dr. Lewis Baker, Dear Sir:—I am glad I was recommended to your prescription for medicine. I was pretty well run down, nervous and loss of ambition; felt tired all the time; could not sleep, loss of appetite, felt weak and trembled from weakness. I find three-grain Cadomene Tablets are helping me very much. I was writing to my sister about my run-down condition and she advised me to take your prescription of medicine, for she was as bad as I was and the Cadomene built her nerves up and also restored her health. I am more than thankful, etc. Yours truly,

GEORGE SCHILLO,

NATIONAL COMMERCE CHAMBER APPROVES UNIVERSAL SERVICE

Present Crisis Shows Need of Training for Future, Resolution Says.

CHICAGO, April 13 (By A. P.).—Following is the text of the resolution in universal military training adopted at the meeting here of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States:

"Whereas the importance of adopting the principle of universal military training was recognized by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in 1915, and at the fourth annual meeting in 1916 was approved by the constituent members, which resulted in an overwhelmingly favorable vote; and

"Whereas, the experience of the last two years has shown the grave danger and the great cost of the nation's unpreparedness, particularly through its inability to place a large effective force in the field; and

"Whereas, the training camps have demonstrated their great value first to the men in increasing their physical strength, mental alertness, self-control and experience, second to the nation through better qualifying its citizens for their mutual responsibility toward each other and for the defense of their liberty, therefore be it

"Resolved, That the Chamber of Commerce of the United States again reaffirms its confidence in universal military training not only as a policy essential to the adequate progress and security of the nation in times of peace, but that at this serious period it is imperative to strengthen and prepare all young men for the great efforts which they may be called upon to make for posterity.

"Resolved, Further, that the supreme importance of early action to secure universal training in this country be again brought to the attention of the membership for consideration and that such steps be taken as seem appropriate."

LIEDERKRANZ CHORUS CONCERT

Proceeds of Program Friday Night Wil Go to Red Cross.

The Liederkranz Club Chorus of 125 mixed voices will give a special concert Friday at the Odeon, the proceeds going to the Red Cross.

Miss Stella de Mette, a St. Louis singer and mezzo soprano with the San Carlo Opera Co. for several seasons, will be one of the soloists. The other will be Louis Kreidler, baritone, of the Chicago Opera Association. With Kreidler singing the role of Alfio, the chorus will give an episode from "Cavalleria Rusticana." Ernest Prang Stamm will conduct.

Vote to Purchase Bond.

The Mothers' Circle of the Dewey School voted to purchase a Liberty Bond with the money in their treasury at the monthly meeting held Thursday afternoon. H. C. Irish, supervisor of public school gardens, spoke on "Home Gardens."

HOW AMERICA TREATS ALIEN ENEMIES IN INTERNMENT CAMPS

the many problems constantly arising in the administration of war prison camps. As explained by the commandant, the situation is this:

There are enough men, and more, in the large compound to perform all the labor outside the stockade, and they are men who are accustomed to labor and can earn the wage they receive. Some of them practically are without funds or have only a meager amount, and the pay received for their labor enables them to purchase tobacco and small creature comforts of which otherwise they would be deprived.

On the other hand, the "millionaires" are unaccustomed to manual labor and would make but sorry competitors with the other class in quarrying rock, breaking stone, building roads and walks and digging ditches. Being already self-supporting, the daily wage would be no inducement. One of the problems of the commandant has been to find employment for them that they can suitably perform.

One man acts as clerk to the executive officer, who says he is highly efficient. Another "millionaire" does all the clerical work in connection with the issuance of clothing, but the bulk of the clerical work at the camp, being of a military and secret nature, cannot be entrusted to enemy aliens.

With the advent of spring, the Commandant saw his opportunity—he started gardens—large gardens and small gardens and little individual plots where the more aged or unskillful can putter over small vegetables and flowers.

Fred A. Borgemeister, the former New York banker, an enthusiastic gardener, was appointed garden master, and he induced most of the wealthy prisoners to take plots for cultivation. He also superintends the work in the big garden of eight acres. The Commandant asked the Agricultural department for seeds, but Congress or somebody had cleaned it out, so the "millionaires" chipped in and bought their seeds in Chattanooga.

When the Post-Dispatch correspondent visited the camp, Hugo Schmidt, his gray whiskers neatly trimmed and a spot of color on either cheek, was loosening the ground with a hoe; another "millionaire" was spading and another raking a spaded plot.

Editor von Nosstics, 35 years in America and not a citizen, rapidly advancing into the aged class, was busy in his garden. He dug up an onion set to show it had begun to sprout.

"Why don't you start a newspaper here and publish all the camp news?" I asked.

"No more newspapers for me again, never," he replied with a two-handed gesture as if throwing away a bundle of the papers that caused his internment.

Prof. Zenneck had an injured leg, an abrasion, and being a man of science, had sterilized it himself. but was at work on his plot. He had come over here from Munich, he said, to testify as an expert in a wireless suit brought by Marconi and having been an officer in the German army it was his idea that the Government thought he was too dangerous to be at large. He is a man of fine manners and when I left him he drew himself up to his full height, clicekd his heels together and with arms by his sides made me a low bow straight to the front.

Fritz Baumgartner, a broker, of Cleveland, with a Heidelberg scar on one cheek, came along with a happy look on his face carrying a huge potted white cyclamen in full bloom his wife had brought him and made a request of the Commandant that she be permitted to visit him as soon as possible.

Borgemeister came up to announce that more seeds had arrived, which was greeted with satisfaction. Spring was in the air, but it was also in the hearts of these interned men in close touch with nature.

Surprising Results Here in St. Louis

St. Louis people are astonished at the great amount of foul, poisonous matter simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-i-ka, draws from the alimentary canal. It removes matter which you never thought was in your system and which has been poisoning your stomach for months. Because Adler-i-ka empties BOTH large and small intestines it relieves ANY CASE constipation, sour stomach or gas and prevents APPENDICITIS. A short treatment helps chronic stomach trouble. The Wolff-Wilson Drug Company (corner 6th and Washington) reports Adler-i-ka has the quickest and most COMPLETE action of anything they ever sold.—ADVERTISEMENT.

JUSTICE MILES ISSUES STATEMENT IN WACKMAN CASE

Declares He Never Has Sought Protection for Any One From Carr Street Police and Never Tried to Influence Policeman.

James P. Miles, justice of the peace and Democratic city committeeman of the Fourth Ward, yesterday asked that the Post-Dispatch publish a statement from him concerning the charges made by Patrolman George W. Wackman in a letter to the Police Board that Miles "controlled the Carr Street Police District." Wackman, when called on by the Board to explain his charges Friday, failed to corroborate them and resigned from the force after being suspended.

Miles said of Wackman's charges: "I have not been in Capt. Singleton's office twice in a year. I have never sought protection for nor interceded for a thief, gunman or prostitute. The only machine I control in politics is a little precinct organization of 45 men and all of them are mechanics or clerks who are regularly employed.

"I have never tried to influence policemen in any way. As a matter of fact, I don't know 10 policemen in the district. I never asked for the transfer of a policeman and I don't even know President Mansur of the Police Board."

The hearing of Wackmann's charges Friday developed the fact that four years ago he suffered a sunstroke and board physicians who examined him afterward reported to Samuel B. McPheeters, then President of the board, that the patrolman was suffering from a brain disease. He was permitted, however, to remain in the department, but was warned on several occasions afterward that he would be dropped from the rolls unless he quit failing to report for duty as frequently as had become his habit.

FRESHLY KILLED PULLETS AND HENS MAY BE SOLD SATURDAY

Heavy Movement of Fresh Eggs Causes Shortening of the Prohibition Period.

The period during which licensed dealers have been prohibited by the food administration from selling live or freshly killed pullets and hens has been shortened to end at midnight next Friday, instead of April 30, it was announced by the local Food Committee yesterday. The regulation became effective Feb. 11 last and was promulgated to increase the supply of fresh eggs.

It was explained by the Food Committee that fresh eggs are rapidly flowing into the various distributing centers, including St. Louis and that by next Friday there will be a large supply available. The supply of storage eggs will be exhausted about the end of this month. The price of No. 1 grade, fresh eggs, is 33 cents wholesale, 36 to 37 cents cash and carry and 39 to 40 cents credit and delivery. Reduction will follow, food officials say.

Three grocers were ordered by the Food Committee to discontinue the sale of sugar and flour for a period of days, as a penalty for violating the selling rules of the food administration. The grocers are C. A. Rohlfing, 926 Goodfellow avenue, prohibited from selling flour and sugar tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday, for charging more for sugar than the price quoted on the weekly price list and for selling flour without sufficient substitutes; G. Rapp, 4935 Ashby place, prohibited from selling sugar and flour Tuesday and Wednesday for same reasons, and W. Weissmann, 2525 North Taylor avenue, forbidden to sell flour tomorrow and Tuesday, for failure to sell required amount of substitutes with wheat flour.

Pianist's Lost Thumb Replaced.

READING, March 13.—During their visit to Reading this week, King George and Queen Mary, while visiting one of the hospitals were much interested in the case of one of the soldiers. He had lost a thumb, and being an enthusiastic pianist, felt the loss keenly. A young surgeon amputated the third finger of the left hand and grafted it on in the place of the missing thumb. The man can now use his "thumb" quite comfortably in playing the piano.

AMERICAN WINS WAR CROSS

New Jersey Lieutenant's Balloon Shot to Earth by Germans.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., April 13 (By A. P.).—Sidney I. Howell, a son of William E. Howell, a United States general appraiser and former Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury, has been awarded the Cross of War by France, according to word received here by the family today.

Howell, a First Lieutenant in the aviation section of the signal corps, went to France with American forces last Christmas. Recently while operating with a French balloon corps he and a French Lieutenant persisted in making observations above the German lines, although attacked by a German aviator while they were in a balloon. A shot finally brought the balloon down, but Lieut. Howell and his companion escaped by jumping with parachutes.

Doctor Praises Eczema Remedy

The cure of Skin diseases (eczema) and diseases of the scalp is known to be difficult even with the best efforts of intelligent and discriminating physicians. However there is one remedy that is entirely dependable in this distressing and troublesome disease, that is D. D. D. Prescription, manufactured by the D. D. D. Company of Chicago, Ill. I take much pleasure in recommending it to the entire confidence of all sufferers with any form of skin disease, as a medicine they can rely upon with perfect confidence

CRITES INDICTMENT UNDER ANTI-LOBBY LAW QUASHED

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 13 (Special).—A motion to quash an indictment charging Joseph J. Crites of Rolla, Mo., a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor in 1916, with violating the anti-lobby law in accepting legislative employment on a contingent fee, was sustained in the Greene county Circuit Court today by Judge Skinker.

Crites' indictment, returned in June, 1917, was the only prosecution ever begun under the anti-lobby law passed in 1907 at the instance of Gov. Folk in an effort to stop lobbying.

The motion to dismiss was upon the ground that the title of the legislative act was not sufficiently broad to cover the provisions in the body of the act. The specific offense charged against Crites accepting legislative employment on a contingent fee, is prohibited in the body of the act, but is not mentioned in the title.

It was charged that Crites appeared in behalf of the State Optometric Association to urge the passage of a bill licensing optometrists, and that he was paid a portion of a $3500 fee, the payment of the remainder being contingent upon the passage of the bill.

The indictment was returned in connection with an investigation conducted a year ago by Attorney General McAllister. All the indictments returned as a result of the investigation have been quashed.

Daughter Found Remedy That Saved Her Mother

Suffered Terribly But Did Not Want to Submit to An Operation.

MRS. MARY K. PEROUTKA

Mrs. Mary K. Peroutka, R. F. D. No. 1, Box 41, Milladore, Wis., is a firm believer in Fruitola and Traxo. She writes: "I wish I could tell everybody how much Fruitola and Traxo has done for our family. Both my husband and I were cured of gall stones, and in such a short time and at such little cost, and Fruitola is so easy to take. Four years I suffered those terrible spells and at last the doctor said I had gall stones and advised an operation. I said if the doctors were in the house when I had one of those spells I might let them operate, but not otherwise. My daughter wrote to a lady who had been cured of gall stones without an operation and who recommended Fruitola. I took only one bottle of Fruitola and have not been bothered since. My husband had stomach trouble and he used Fruitola, too, with most satisfactory results."

Fruitola and Traxo are compounded from the original Edsall formulas at the Pinus laboratories in Monticello, Ill., and can be purchased in drug stores; a doctor's prescription is not necessary. Fruitola is a pure fruit oil that acts as an intestinal lubricant. One dose is usually sufficient to indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a tonic-alterative that is most effective to rebuild and restore the weakened, run-down system.

A booklet of special interest to those who suffer with stomach trouble can be obtained by writing to the Pinus Laboratories, Monticello, Illinois.

Rupture
banished without knife.
25 years' practice
in St. Louis

Thousands of men, women and children in the vast St. Louis district are handicapped by rupture. Some know their plight, and seek to counteract it by the bothersome, inefficient truss; others brave the surgeon's knife; still others know not of the danger that threatens. All should know the advantages of the LEWIN METHOD, with freedom from pain, worry, loss of time, inconvenience. Why not investigate today?

The Lewin Method Is Safe!

The Lewin Method for the Cure of Rupture is painless and sure! It has taken Rupture completely out of the realm of surgery. Above all, it is a method that eliminates danger, discomfort, temporary disability! It is the method which thousands have to thank for a full and speedy recovery from the impending disaster that is bound to come with the neglect of even a slight rupture.

Rupture is an affliction prevalent in young and old. Perhaps that is why so many afflicted look lightly upon their trouble--until it is too late. If I cannot do more, let me sound the warning to you who suffer. Don't temporize with rupture--it's worse than "playing with fire!" The truss will not give you other than temporary relief; with it, you are simply putting off the day when some drastic action must be taken. Maybe you will turn to the knife; but, the knife is dangerous; it is no longer necessary, and results uncertain!

I Will cure you! No knife! No pain! My method brings no inconvenience--it does not interfere with your daily business or social activities. It is safe, sure, speedy!

St. Louis, April 9, 1918.

Dr. W. A. Lewin, St. Louis:

Dear Doctor Lewin: It is with the greatest pleasure I can now say that you have completely cured me of a most severe Rupture from which I had suffered many years. A number of friends and business acquaintances advised that I consult you, and finally when I just had to have treatment, I did so. Must now confess to you that I was a "doubting Thomas," as I didn't believe you could cure me. The results are most satisfactory, however. I have discarded my truss, and most heartily recommend all who are afflicted with Rupture to consult you.

Wishing you unbounded success in the future as you have enjoyed during the past 20 years that you have practised your noble profession in St. Louis.

Sincerely yours,
Oscar M. Damm

Dr. W. A. Lewin,
Saint Louis, Mo.

My Dear Sir:

It is now about two years since you treated me for hernia. I have not written you sooner for the reason that I wanted to be sure I was thoroughly cured of my hernia before saying so.

I have not worn a truss for over a year, and my left groin where the hernia was located is fully as strong as the other side. Besides, my family physician here in Houston, after a careful examination, pronounces the cure as absolute and complete.

It is a source, my dear doctor, of much gratification that I write these things to you for aside from the physical affliction, my hernia was wrecking my nerves and fast undermining my general health.

If occasion should arise to use me as reference to convert some doubting Thomas that you can cure hernia without the knife, without pain, loss of time or inconvenience, you are at full liberty to do so.

With thanks for your many courtesies in the past, I am, with kindest regards and best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Dear Dr. Lewin:

Eighteen years ago you cured me of a severe case of rupture. I have been examined by several physicians since, and all pronounced your cure a wonderful success. I have recommended you to several of my friends, and all were more than satisfied. What I and my friends most appreciated in your cure was that, during the time we were under your treatment, we could attend to our business as usual, and were not inconvenienced in any way.

Do not hesitate to send any one to me, for I consider it a privilege to be able to tell any one how much they can be benefited by you. With kindest regards,

Sincerely yours,
F. Beyer

The testimonial letters and references are taken at random from hundreds of a similar nature. It would be difficult, with such remarkable evidence before you, to doubt the efficacy of the Lewin Method. You are welcome to read any others in the host of letters, now in my possession, from patients who unhesitatingly express their sincere gratitude for the complete cure that was made possible by my superior methods.

SHEEP FEATURE TRADE IN THE LOCAL MARKET

Highest Prices Ever Known Are Recorded at National Stockyards; Cattle Higher.

Reported for the Post-Dispatch by the National Livestock Commission Co., National Stock Yards, Ill.

| | Last Week | Week Before | Last Year |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cattle | 19,750 | 20,800 | 17,200 |
| Hogs | 69,000 | 63,300 | 68,000 |
| Sheep | 3,400 | 3,600 | 4,000 |

It would be unwise to grasp at isolated cases of extreme price advances as a criterion upon which to judge the cattle market last week. However, it may conservatively be said that the fat steer market on butcher cattle finished 25 to 50c higher.

The week was one of vigorous action on virtually the big bulk of the supply. About the only exception that can be noted was light weight yearlings, which closed lacking the early week's wire edge and strength, and showed the least price gain of any killing cattle.

The upward trend of killing steers had its influence for the fleshier and the stronger weight feeders, but light stock cattle shared little activity and held a generally steady price level.

The market is the highest of the [illegible]. On the bulk of cattle it has been the highest market in history, though the strictly prime cattle still lack several notches of equaling the high point of last September, when [illegible] sold two cars of 1660-pound beeves at $17.50 per hundred.

Choice to prime beef steers are quoted at $15 to $16; good to choice, [illegible].75 to $14.75; medium to good, [illegible].50 to $13.50; common to medium, [illegible] to $12.50; good to choice stockers and feeders, $10.75 to $11.75; medium to good, $10 to $10.75; common to medium, $9 to $10; good to choice stock cows, $8.50 to $9; good to choice stock heifers, $8.75 to $9.25; choice to prime fat yearling butcher cattle, $12.75 to $14.25; good to choice, [illegible] to $12.75; common to medium, 9.50 [illegible] $11; choice to fancy heavy beef cows, $11.50 to $12.25; good to choice, $10.50 to $11.50; medium to good, [illegible] to $10.50; cutters, $8.25 to $9.25; canners, $7.25 to $7.75; good fat beef bulls, $10.50 to $11; heavy sausage bulls, $9.50 to $10; light sausage bulls, [illegible] to $9.25.

Twenty-five cents per cwt covered the extreme fluctuations in the hog market. The crest was $18.

The variable condition of the market was but a repetition of recent weeks, and market tops have been hovering the most part between $17.75 [illegible] $18.

Buyers maintain their indifferent attitude on the strong weight hogs. Yesterday the trade showed improvement, averaging 10c to 15c higher than Fridays' close; top $17.50.

The desirable weights during this season of the year are the hogs weighing between 160 to 210 lbs, and they sold on the market yesterday at [illegible].50 to $17.80.

Hogs 220 to 260 lbs brought $17.25 [illegible] extremely heavy hogs, $16.75 to $17.10; pigs 120 to 140 lbs, $17 to $17.50; 110 to 120 lbs, $16.50 to $17; lighter weight pigs, $12.50 to $16.25 with rough hogs at $15.75 to $16.

Highest prices in the history of the market were recorded by sheep and lambs. The trade last week indicated a further advance of 50c per cwt, and even at the high range the supply was too meager to care for actual requirements of the trade.

Choice lambs sold at $20 to $21; medium to good, $19.50 to $20; culls and half-fat lambs, $16 to $18.50. Choice clipped lambs, $17.50 to $18; medium, $16 to $17. Fat ewes, $15.50 to $16.50; choppers, $11.50 to $13.50; [illegible] $8 to $10. Choice aged wethers, $15.75 to $16.50; choice yearling wethers, $17.50 to $18. Bucks, [illegible].

CHANCES OF LIBERAL RECEIPTS LOWERS CORN

Chicago Market Loses Over 3 Cents on Heavy Selling—Oats Also Weak.

CHICAGO, April 13.—Prospects of liberal receipts and of greater pressure from hedging sales brought about sharp breaks today in the value of corn. Prices closed nervous, ⅜c to 3⅜c net lower, with May $1.27 and July $1.50⅝ to $1.50⅓ to $1.50½. Oats underwent a setback of ⅞c to 1⅜@1⅝c net. The outcome in provisions was unchanged to 17c down.

Liquidation, short selling and lack of demand were evident factors in the corn market throughout the day, and seemed to be checked but little if any by the usual week-end adjustment of trades. A decided increase of the car supply in the corn belt was said to be visible, and it was added that the quality of receipts continued good. Moreover, fresh reports of corn being consigned to Chicago from other terminal markets added to the pressure on the bulls. Under such circumstances the downward course of prices was virtually uninterrupted, and the lowest prices of the session were touched just before the close.

Oats gave way with corn. Besides, arrivals promised to be larger and nothing was heard of any urgent call from the seaboard.

Assertions that the semi-monthly report on warehouse stocks would show a good-sized increase weakened provisions. Higher quotations on hogs were ignored.

Hides.

HIDES—Market conditions better. Demand fair. Quote, current receipts (less 1 pound tare per hide on wet salted):

Wet Salted—Round, 12c; No. 1, 12¾c; No. 2, 11¾c; bull, 8½c; glue stock, 7c. Dry—Flint, round, 27c; salted, 24c; flint, bull, 17c; culls, 14c; culls, salted, 12½c.

Uncured or fresh 2c per pound less and part cured 1c per pound less. No. 1 horse hides mane and tail on, $5.50—small and No. 2, $4.50; glue and pony, $1@2.50; hog hides, 75c—glue and pig half price.

Bank Clearings.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

SPECULATION IN STOCKS IS HALTED BY WAR NEWS, BUT DECLINES ARE SMALL

Holders of Wall Street Shares Have Confidence in the Future.

CURB LIST ALSO QUIET

Aeroplane Stocks Are Neglected Despite Developments Involving These Shares.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 13.—The Evening Post, inits copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"That the financial markets have been adversely affected by this week's war news, and that in their movement of doubt and uncertainty they have reflected a feeling very general in the news-reading community, no one is likely to dispute.

"Neither with the Stock Exchange, nor with the public at large, has the feeling this week been one of serious apprehension, but it has certainly been perplexed over the course of events, and greatly disappointed at the general trend of the battle news.

"Probably the uppermost consideration, in the mind of Wall Street and of the outside community, has been the question why, if the allied armies on the western front outnumber the enemy, as Lloyd George this week asserted that they do, they should have given ground so repeatedly. This attitude of mind is necessary to keep in view; the financial markets have been entirely governed by it.

Market Is Quiet.

"On the Stock Exchange business practically came to a standstill during most of the week, with occasional declines when the news was more perplexing or unfavorable than before. One may imagine a similar action when the numerically superior northern armies were steadily driven back by the Confederate Generals in the autumn of 1862, and when, after a series of Union reverses, Lee invaded Pennsylvania.

"The depression and consternation of the North, the talk of the imminent fall of Harrisburg, or Philadelphia, the hurried application of the draft, and the resistance to it by the rioters in New York—a parallel, in its way, of the present recourse to conscription in Ireland—all had, as a matter of fact, their reflection in the financial markets of the day.

"Yet the Stock Exchange was even then only slightly upset; the course of the market was much what it has been this week. Back of all the discouragement which was inevitable as a result of the daily news of the enemy's forward movement there stood, as we can see now, the conviction of financial judgment as to what the actual result would be.

"The financial inference from the news was not that the conflict was lost, but that the war would be prolonged. The victory, which came as had been anticipated on the basis of the superior power and resources of the North, was delayed much longer than even experienced financial opinion had calculated, but the markets had nevertheless judged the final outcome correctly.

British Consols Lower.

"British consols declined in the years when the combined armies on the continent were giving way to Napoleon, and the French Emperor's armies were overrunnig Germany, Spain and eventually Russia, but they invariably recovered, and they at no time went as low as in the first years of that war. The judgment of financial markets, at that time also was based on far-seeing calculation of results.

"On the whole the action of this week's financial markets has been in line with their action since the beginning of the war. That activity should have ceased was natural, in view of the many obscurities which have surrounded the whole strategical position in Northern France. The course of the markets in the immediate future will be governed partly by the day-to-day developments in the fighting, but also, and perhaps fundamentally by their belief regarding the final outcome of the war.

"All of this week's indications regarding subscriptions to the war loan have been in a high degree auspicious—notably so in the eagerness of seperate communities to exceed their allotted proportion during the earliest stages of the canvass, and in the fact that the achievements of the first week have so greatly surpassed that of the similar period in last November's loan. This gives at least good promise for matching or surpassing, in the end, the $4,617,000,000 applications for the second Liberty Loan.

"People will presently, no doubt, pass into the familiar second period of anxiety and apprehension over the slackening up of the pace, but that will quite as surely provide a special stimulus for the final 'drive.'

"The gratifying aspect of the campaign has been that the lowering of theanticipated minimum of the war loan has not caused the slightest relaxation of effort or lowering of the objective point on the part of the loan committees. The result should serve as one emphatic response of the American people to the news from Europe.

"Prices generally lost 1 to 3 points in the week's trading. Yesterday's market was quiet and slightly lower."

Curb Review.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Trading on the Broad street curb was in small volume all through the past week, with the majority of issues yielding to moderately lower levels. Business was influenced to a great extent by the general disposition to restrict speculation while the Government financing is in progress, and there was also an indisposition to trade on account of the discouraging news from the French battle front.

Some issues, however, showed a strong tone. Burns, Bros.' Ice being prominent, advancing from 20 to 23⅝, followed by a reaction to 21¼. The second preferred sold at 57 to 61.

Chevrolet after advancing to 123 reacted to 118, and United Motor ranged from 26 to 25¼, with a rally to 25½; Aetna Explosives was in supply, apparently from one of the interests connected with the contest for control, and declined from 8 to 5⅝. British-American Tobacco after selling down to 15, found support from interests identified with the management and rallied to 15¾.

Airplane Stocks Are Quiet.

The airplane stocks were again neglected, no sales of Curtiss being recorded. Wright-Martin sold at 7¼ to 7½.

Independent oil stocks were generally lower, Midwest Refining declining from 104⅝ to 100, and Houston yielded from 45¾ to 44. Cosden sold at 7¼ to 6¾.

Mining stocks were quiet and generally lower, with the most important movement in Magma, which sold at 36 to 35. Jerome Prescott was a strong feature, advancing from 6¾ to 8⅛. St. Joseph Lead sold at 15⅜. Washoe and Nixon-Nevada both sustained fractional losses.

Russian 6½s at 40 and 39½. The 5½s sold at 36.

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, April 13.—The more critical stage in the war situation caused renewed selling at the opening of today's stock market. Specialties reacted 1 to 1½ points and rails yielded substantial fractions to a point. Equipments, motors and some of the minor unclassified issues featured the decline, which was halted later, losses in a few instances being partly recovered. Trading except in leading shares was limited to small individual lots. The closing was heavy. Sales approximated 130,000 shares.

Liberty 3½s sold at 98.88 to 98.96, first 4s at 96.24 to 96.30, and second 4s at 96.10 to 96.22.

Oil Prices Raised.

NEW YORK, April 13.—The Standard Oil Co. of New York today announced an advance of 40 points in refined petroleum in barrels for exports, making the price 13.30c per gallon.

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York Evening Post.

LONDON, April 13.—"The feeling of financial London in regard to the battle news from the continent, is sufficiently expressed in the prompt indorsement of the Government's extension of the military age to 51. The consequence of this to the business community, after three and a half years decline on man power are manifest enough, and the city's attitude should speak eloquently to Wall street, both of the necessities of the situation and of the temper of our people.

"It is recognized by all classes here that the events of the next six months in the campaign are paramount to all other considerations. It is the common remark today that even such questions as economic conditions and financial supremacy after the war, about which the business instinct of both England and America has prompted constant consideration, are out of touch with the spirit of the moment. All such matters may, in fact, be determined on the battle field.

"There is, nevertheless, a feeling here that the German offensive was stimulated, not only by home necessities and apprehensions of later reinforcements from America, but also, by a desire to achieve victory before there has been much loss of American blood—with the inevitable consequences in future relations.

The Silver Purchases.

"Not much is known here as to the details of your Government's plan for selling Treasury silver, especially the plans for other currency issues which accompany it. Our banking people believe, however, that you can give this assistance to trade arrangements with the East, without in any way impairing the stability of your currency.

"It is the quite unanimous opinion in the city that recent developments on the European battle front are likely of themselves to occasion on impressive response to the American Liberty Loan.

"Sales of our own war bonds have been temporarily checked by uncertainties regarding the age limit of conscription, and regarding the budget. They will revive next month, however. Rumors are current that the Government proposals for new taxation will be severe. The most experienced financial opinion would regard this as a mistake."

CORN FUTURES ARE LOWER AT CLOSE OF WEEK

July Option Reflects Selling After Advance in the Week's Early Markets.

July corn advanced 5 cents a bushel last Thursday, the first day of trading without price restrictions, but Friday and yesterday the upturn was lost. It had been so long that speculators were without an open market, and cash prices were such a premium over options, that when the first trade was posted at $1.52 there was a rush to buy from eleventh-hour bulls that carried the market up to $1.57⅛.

Friday the market lost part of the advance on the announcement by Chicago Board of Trade officials that unwarranted speculation would not be countenanced.

Yesterday the balance of the early gain was forfeited on lower cash prices, reports of better traffic conditions, with promise of an increased market movement of grain, uncertain war news and the recent break in prices of many food products, especially potatoes. The fall of approximately $19 a bale in cotton from the recent high level also helped the sellers.

Grain bears worked on the theory that if other commodity prices are on the tobbogan there is every incentive for a lower corn market, especially as commercial grades have now been established for delivery, and these are selling at about $1.60, compared with near $2 for high grades of white corn.

Sellers also declared that many farmers in holding grain have overstayed their market, and that on this account there will be a rush of supplies on the end of the crop, and of low grades, owing ot the generally poor condition of the last harvest.

Exporters were out of the market, as were leading industries, which have been the mainstay of the market for several weeks. Good weather for pasturing also will reduce feeding on the farms to a material extent.

Oats were weak and lower with corn, and reflected the same factors. Receipts are running in excess of last year, and for the first time on the crop, the demand seems insufficient to absorb the offerings. Exporters were out of the market, as whether weather was ideal for the new crop. Indications are that the acreage sown to oats will be in excess of last year, when a record-breaking harvest was gathered.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Cash corn was 1c to 3c to 5c off; demand and supply limited.

Cash oats 1½c to 1¾c lower; demand fair, offers light.

COTTON OFF 113 POINTS IN NEW YORK TRADING

Good Weather, Southern Hedging Sales and War News Cause a Heavy Selling Wave.

NEW YORK, April 13.—There was a renewal of yesterday's excited selling and a further sensational break in prices at the start of the cotton market here today. The opening was weak at declines of 8 to 9 points and inside of the first 15 to 20 minutes prices broke 79 to 80 points from last night's closing.

It was reported that big southern long lines were liquidated on this break, which carried July off to 30.30c and October to 28.80c, or $17.50 per bale under the high records of a week ago.

Week-end reviews of the new crop outlook were generally favorable, while the decline was accompanied by reiterated reports of a diminishing spot demand and increased spot offerings.

Nervousness over the war situation was also a factor, but the break was most generally attributed to the throwing over of long contracts accumulated on the recent advance owing to the favorable crop outlook and apprehensions of spot liquidation.

Rallies of 20 or 30 points followed the first big break but met increased offerings with the market very weak and unsettled in the late trading. July contracts sold off to 30.28 and October to 28.70, and the close was barely steady at a net decline of 77 to 113 points.

Cotton—Spot quiet; middling, 32.20c.

Cotton futures closed weak; May, 30.65c; July, 30.41c; Oct., 28.83c; Dec., 28.50c; Jan., 28.37c.

FINANCIAL.

Horses and Mules.

HORSES—The market was quiet, largely owing to the small supply, but there was a brisk demand for all kinds ready for use, and a larger offering would have been better appreciated by both buyers and sellers. Quote heavy draft, extra, $195@225; eastern chunks, $85@165; Southern horses, choice, $125@150; Southern horses, good, $[illegible]; Southern horses, medium, $60@85; Southern horses, common, $40@70; plugs, $[illegible].

MULES—There was virtually no life on the commission alleys, and very little elsewhere in the local market for that matter. Quote mules 16 to 16½ hands, $[illegible]; 15 to 15½ hands, $150@225; 14 to [illegible]; $90@115; 13 to 13½ hands, $80@[illegible]; 12½ hands, $80@110.

36 PRISONERS TAKEN IN RAID THAT FAILED

Carry Several Days' Supply of Food in Haversacks, Under Orders to Occupy the U. S. Trenches Permanently, but American Barrage Cuts Them Off and Renders Them Helpless.

DEFENDERS SUFFER FEW CASUALTIES

Much of the Fighting That Lasts All Day Is of a Close Character and Hand Grenades Are Used Successfully by Pershing's Men—No Man's Land Strewn With Teuton Dead After a Previous Attack.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 13 (By A. P.).—Yesterday's battle was the first all day struggle in which the American troops have been engaged. Two German attacks, which were delivered in force against the American positions northwest of Toul, were repulsed with heavy casualties to the enemy, including 36 prisoners left in the hands of the Americans. The American losses were slight.

The fighting began with one of the most violent bombardments ever laid down in that sector. During Thursday night the Germans kept up a harassing fire, throwing many gas shells into the American position. The first attack began at about six o'clock in the morning and was directed against the French troops on the left flank of the American forces, in the forest of Apremont.

While this was going on the American troops made a counter attack on the German line, moving forward behind a perfect curtain of fire.

Enemy Forced Into Open.

The enemy driven out of his trenches was forced to fight in the open.

A deadly machine gun and automatic rifle fire was poured into the enemy who offered stubborn resistance at first, but later retreated to their second line, hotly pursued by the American troops. Desultory fighting continued for several hours.

The Germans again attacked at 11 o'clock at a point further to the right. The American berrage fire cut them off, but the German officers drove their men through the exploding shells until a few succeeded in penetrating the American front line. A counter attack which was immediately launched by the Americans ejected the enemy, driving him back to his positions. The struggle continued to sway back and forth for several hours.

"Every Gun Working Like Hell."

While the action was at its height the commander of an American machine gun unit reported to his chief that all the machine gun emplacements had been shot away, but that "every gun is working like hell."

The attacks were made by the reorganized remnant of 800 shock troops who failed to reach the American positions in their gigantic raid on Wednesday. Their ranks were filled out by picked men from other units.

The German prisoners, who belonged to six different organizations, said that the attack was ordered to avenge the crushing defeat administered to the enemy on Wednesday. Five of the prisoners were Uhlans, and all of the men taken were carrying haversacks well filled, as if in preparation for a

GERMAN ALLIANCE HEAD HERE HELD ON U. S. WARRANT

Made Prediction to Reporters That War Would End Within Six Months With Germany as Victor.

PUT IN CELL WITH AN ALLEGED I. W. W.

Protests Against Serving of Warrant, Saying That He Is the Victim of a Trick and Arrest Is an Outrage.

Dr. Charles H. Weinsberg of 2805 Lafayette avenue, president of the Missouri branch of the German-American Alliance, was arrested last night at his home, charged with violation of the Federal espionage act. The warrant for his arrest was based on an interview printed in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, in which Dr. Weinsberg predicted that the war would end in six months, with Germany as the victor.

While Dr. Weinsberg was on his way to the city jail, in charge of two Deputy United States Marshals, four other members of the Executive Committee of the State German-American Alliance, meeting at 1503 Chouteau avenue, were voting to disband the organization. They were F. W. Keck, John Gewinner and George Withum of St. Louis and Fred Lorenz of St. Joseph. In announcing their decision, they said that the Executive Committee of the City German-American Alliance would meet at the same place next Friday night, and that the city organization would then disband.

In Cell With Alleged I. W. W.

At the jail Dr. Weinsberg was required to take a bath, and was dressed in jail clothes, a pajama-like suit of striped ticking cloth. He was placed in a cell with an alleged I. W. W. member, who is being held on a charge under the espionage act. He was not permitted to talk to anyone, but was told that he might telephone to United State Commissioner Atkins, in regard to his bond, if he wished. It appeared that he would have to wait for members of his family to arrange for bond for him.

Dr. Weinsberg protested at his home against being taken to jail, saying he would appear at any time when he was wanted, and that his standing in the community rendered his arrest an outrage. He complained further, at the jail, of being treated, as he declared, like a criminal. He said his reputation was above reproach and that he had bought Liberty Bonds. He is 51 years and a native of Germany, and has been in the United States 36 years.

Result of Trick, Weinsberg Says.

To Deputy Marshals Clooney and Klein, who made the arrest, Dr. Weinsberg said:

"This is the result of a trick. Two years ago I sent out a notice to members of the alliance to read the St. Louis Times, and not to read the Post-Dispatch, because of the unfairness of the Post-Dispatch to the alliance. Yesterday, when the Post-Dispatch reporters came to see me, I discussed my views with them, but they misused my statement, carefully leaving out parts which would have changed the meaning."

He denied having said, at any time, that Germany would win the war in six months.

Assistant United States District Attorney White said yesterday afternoon, after issuing the warrant, that he was proceeding under Section 3 of the espionage act, which forbids the making of any statement with intent to create disloyalty or insubordination in the military or naval forces of the United States. He said it had been held that these forces include all men subject to call, as well as those actually in service.

White Going to Test Matter.

"I believe such utterances as those contained in Dr. Weinsberg's interview come under the statute," White said, "and I am going to test the matter. A man who would talk in this manner to newspaper men would not hesitate to say the same things to others. Such statements spread

BOARD PUTS CITY'S 1918 TAX VALUES AT $688,161,750

State Tax Commission's Recommendations Rejected, and 1917 Assessments Raised 30 Per Cent to Increase of $69,604,740.

CENTRAL SECTION PROPERTIES ESCAPE

Public Utilities, Private Corporations and Dealers in Fur and Junk Share Largely in Higher Valuations.

Taxable valuations of real estate and personal property in St. Louis, as fixed for 1918 by the City Board of Equalization, which adjourned yesterday evening, are $688,161,750, an increase of $69,604,740 over the assessments for last year.

The board rejected the recommendations of the State Tax Commission, submitted through John H. Gundlach, its Supervisor of Assessments in St. Louis, and decided to raise the assessments of 1917 by 30 per cent, on the assumption that this increase would bring them to 100 per cent, or full "cash value," as required by the statutes.

This was done in all sections of the city except between Chouteau avenue, Lafayette avenue, Broadway and Grand avenue. This is the district in which James F. Brady, who was dismissed from the position of Deputy Assessor two weeks ago, made the assessments for this year.

In all cases in which property was overvalued by the deputy assessors, either on their own initiative or in following instructions given by Supervisor Gundlach, the assessments were reduced by the city Equalization Board to 100 per cent. Members of the board held that in some instances the raise over last year's assessments had been from 30 to 500 per cent.

Central Part of City Not Affected.

The resolution of the board increasing valuations to 100 per cent did not affect property in the central portion of the city. In that district the increases made by the deputy assessors was 30 per cent or less, compared with last year's figures. Some land values in this section are as high as $15,000 a front foot. Some important reductions were made in the assesment of improvements in this part of the city.

In its public statement, after adjournment yesterday, the board declared that "the complaints against increased assessments placed on property by the State Tax Commission's agent, Mr. Gundlach, were so numerous that the board was compelled to hold night sessions for the past week" to adjust the valuations.

Finding that it was impossible to consider and correct each individual case, and "that the large increase was without foundation, the board adopted the plan of making a flat increase of 30 per cent over last year's valuations.

Officials of trust companies and other executors of estates, the board declared in its statement, expressed the opinion that if there was insistence on a full cash valuation of securities held by estates, they would petition the Probate Court to have all this class of property converted into money and invested in Liberty Bonds.

If this were done, the board said, it would mean that the city, State and schools would be deprived of taxes on about $10,000,000 of such securities. The board decided that the law required this personalty to be assessed at true value, and that was done.

The figures presented as representing the assessment of real estate and personal property were not regarded by the board as accurate.

"It is impossible at this time to give exact figures of what the actual assessment will be," it was pointed out in the board's statement. "Never in the history of the Assessor's office have the assessments been so disturbed and the figures so changed," the report continues.

Utilities' Values Increased.

In the course of its work of equalizing the board made considerable increases in the valuation of proper-

SUBMARINE CREW CAPTURED BY AMERICANS ON WAY TO U. S.

Will Be Interned for Period of War—All Prisoners Probably Will Be Brought to This Country.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—In the near future a steamer will arrive at an Atlantic port having among her passengers 38 officers and members of the crew of the German submarine U-58, which was captured by the American destroyers Fanning and Nicholson, but sank immediately after having been taken in tow.

The prisoners will be sent to a military detention camp and interned for the period of the war. The fact that they are being brought to the United States probably means that all military and naval prisoners taken by the American forces in time will be interned in the United States. It was pointed out today that ample space always will be available for them on returning American troop ships.

TAFT TO PRESIDE OVER THE NATIONAL WAR LABOR BOARD

Commission to Take Up All Industrial Disputes—Will Hold First Session Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The National War Labor Board, which will meet next Tuesday to perfect its organization, will be asked to take up important industrial disputes, Secretary Wilson announced today. The controversies to be considered were not disclosed, officials explaining that any announcement of them would lead to agitation which might cause a general strike in one of the nation's most important war industries.

Former President Taft has been chosen to preside at the first session and he and Frank P. Walsh, the other member of the board, representing the public, will alternately preside at future sessions.

Ordnance Department Sends Out Call for 550 Auto Drivers.

The following telegram has been received from the Ordnance Department, Washington, by Claude L. Matthews, chairman, Military Training Camps Association, 3722 Forest Park boulevard:

"Pressing need for 150 drivers heavy auto trucks and 400 gasoline tractor drivers. These men needed for new tank corps unit for early overseas work. All names submitted should be men 18 to 40. Proficient men may earn early noncommissioned grades in most interesting work. This is an opportunity for men with the proper qualifications and subject to being drafted to select a branch of the service that appeals to them."

YEAST FIRMS REBUKED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.)—Orders to cease alleged unfair trade practices were issued today against the Fleischmann Co. of Cincinnati and the National Distilling Co. of Milwaukee, manufacturers of yeast, by the Federal Trade Commission. Both were found to have given gratuities to induce the purchase of yeast and to have given yeast free to bakers in larger quantities than required for sample.

PRESIDENT'S NIECE ENGAGED

"M'TAGUE'S" IS CLOSED AFTER 21 YEARS' BUSINESS

Famous Restaurant Shut Its Doors at Midnight as Result of High Prices, Owner Says.

WAS THE PIONEER OF BASEMENT CAFES

Closing Came Without Preliminary Announcement and Will Be Surprise to Old Patrons.

"McTague's," a famous restaurant established in the basement of the Century Building, Ninth and Olive streets, 21 years ago, by James H. McTague, closed its doors last midnight.

The closing of the restaurant was made without preliminary announcement and will come as a surprise to those who have been patrons of the place for years. A statement was made to reporters by the owner after the doors had been closed, in which he said the abandonment of the business resulted from constantly advancing costs of foodstuffs and the fact that his lease on the basement will expire on May 1.

McTagues's was the pioneer basement restaurant and barroom in St. Louis and has enjoyed a national reputation for its foods and service. It was the first of the better class restaurant in the city to take up the cabaret, and for several years maintained the most elaborate cabaret in the city.

It was one of the most popular after-theater restaurants in the city and until a year or two ago did a large business after nightfall. During the last two years the night business of both the bar and restaurant had been constantly decreasing.

McTague, in the announcement of the close of the place, stated he expects to open an establishment in the West End as soon as conditions warrant. He is president of the Maryland Hotel and announced the "McTague" service would be transferred from the old stand to the hotel dining room a block away.

McTague came to St. Louis from Omaha and opened a small fish and oyster house opposite the Planters Hotel on Fourth street, the site of the Pierce Building, where he remained for about two years, until he opened the restaurant in the Century Building.

UNITED RAILWAYS TAX RETURN SHOWS $54,086,648 VALUATION

This Does Not Include Franchise Values, Estimated Last Year at $11,000,000.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 13 (Special).—The United Railways Co., in its tax return filed with the Tax Commission today, values its own property at $54,086,648. The property of the Missouri Electric Co., a subsidiary, is valued at $989,532, and the St. Louis & Meramec River Co. at $2,318,915.

The property of the United Railways proper was assessed last year at $21,925,786, the Missouri Electric Co. (St. Charles line) at $571,108, and the Meramec River line at $668,448.

This year's valuation does not include the franchise values, which have been increased substantially by the recent compromise ordinance, renewing the charter of the company for 30 years. A former members of the State Board of Equalization said today that the franchise value was estimated last year at $11,000,000.

SENATOR STONE REPORTED AS SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

He Is Resting Quietly and His Temperature Is Lower, His Physician Says.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—Senator Stone of Missouri, whose condition became serious today as the result of a stroke of paralysis last Wednesday, was reported by his physicians tonight as slightly improved.

He was resting quietly and his temperature was lower.

Haig Reinforced by British and French Troops

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).

BOTH French and British reinforcements are reaching Sir Douglas Haig's army in Flanders, which now is in a strong position to meet further German attacks, Major General James D. McLachlan, British military attache here, said tonight in reviewing the situation on the northern part of the long western battle line.

While the Germans have scored, General McLachlan said, they have not done as well as they had hoped and each hour their advance is delayed makes victory for them less likely. By failing to break through the Germans find themselves in an awkward narrow salient and for that reason the battle is bound to continue with great ferocity.

TWO U. S. AVIATORS GET DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS

New Military Distinction Conferred Upon Captain and Lieutenant for Downing German Flyers.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, April 13 (By A. P.).—Capt. James Normal Hall and Lieut. Paul Frank Bair, members of the American aerial forces on this front, were today awarded the distinguished service cross. They are the first American aviators to receive this new military distinction.

The official citation states that Capt. Hall, on March 26, attacked a group of five enemy single-seater machines and three enemy two-seaters while he was leading aerial patrol of three machines. He himself dstroyed one and forced down two others, which probably were destroyed.

Lieut. Bair, on March 11, attacked single-handed a group of seven enemy pursuit machines, destroying one, which crashed to the ground near the French line northeast of Rheims. On March 18 he attacked two enemy seaters, one of which fell in flames.

Since the first of March Lieut. Bair has driven down six enemy machines, three of which are offically credited to him.

BILL FOR COMPULSORY CIVILIAN SERVICE IN DUTCH PARLIAMENT

Government Proposal Includes All Single Men and Women and Childless Married Women From 17 to 60.

THE HAGUE, April 13 (By A. P.).—The Government has introduced in Parliament a bill providing for the establishment of compulsory civilian service for the duration of extraordinary circumstances. The bill imposes this obligation upon all male citizens and all unmarried women or childless married women within the mother country between the ages of 17 and 60, with the exception of men in the naval or military service, or persons included in specified exceptions.

The bill empowers the Government, in case of war, to control all available hands and at the present time to compel all those activities must not be suspended lest the country's interests suffer, to continue such activities.

TOTAL SALES $4,000,000 AT FUR AUCTION IN NEW YORK

Wolf Pelts Bring as High as $22 and Bear Skin Sells for $20.25.

NEW YORK, April 13 (By A. P.).—What is said by dealers to have been the largest sale of furs at auction ever held here, closed today, with total sales of a little more than $4,000,000. More than a million and a half skins were sold.

The feature of the last day's selling was the bidding for wolf pelts, which sold as high as $22. The best black bear skin sold today brought $20.25.

THRIFT GARDENER'S SOIL STOLEN

If you see a man pushing a wheelbarrow load of dark brown earth in the vicinity of Arsenal street and Portis avenue, hurry right over to 3202 Portis avenue and tell F. S. Woodburn. Somebody who has good taste in garden soil has been trundling away the top layer of Woodburn's thrift plat at the end of Portis avenue and he is very anxious to find out who it is.

The soil thief has been at work for several days and has hauled away several wheelbarrow loads of Woodburn's best dirt and incidentally has trampled the beds in which the Woodburn vegetables are beginning to show.

GERMANS ARE DRIVEN FROM NEUVE EGLISE

Four Attacks on British Positions at Bailleul Are Beaten Off With Sanguinary Losses While French Make a Slight Advance at One Point of Their Line, and, With American Aid, Repulse the Enemy at Another Sector.

PROGRESS ALL ALONG THE LINE, SAYS BERLIN

German Report Tells of Penetrating the Franco-American Positions and Taking Prisoners — Asserts That Fresh British Divisions Brought Up by Motor and Train to the Lys Are Beaten Back.

LONDON, April 13.—The Germans were driven out of Neuve Eglise by the British this morning, according to the report from Field Marshal Haig's headquarters tonight. Four attacks against the British positions southeast of Bailleul also were beaten off.

The text of the statement reads:

"As a result of the fighting last night in the neighborhood of Neuve Eglise, the enemy succeeded after a prolonged struggle in forcing its way into the village. This morning he was vigorously counter attacked by our troops and driven out, leaving a number of prisoners, including a battalion commander, in our hands.

"In the course of the morning a number of other attacks were made by the enemy unsuccessfully at different points along the battle front north of LaBassee canal. Three separate attacks against our line southwest and west and north of Merville, were in each case repulsed after heavy fighting.

"This afternoon another hostile attack in strength has developed between the Meteren-Becque river southwest of Meteren and Wulverghem. Severe fighting has taken place on the whole of this front.

"An attack attempted by the enemy south of Meteren was successfully driven back and four attacks launched against our positions southeast of Bailleul were beaten off.

"Heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy on the several unsuccessful attacks."

While the position of the northern line on the British front is a little less alarming today, the military authorities still take a grave view of the situation, according to the evening newspaper reviews. They do not conceal their apprehension that if the enemy were successful in his heavy blows west of Armentieres and compelled the British to retire from Bailleul and Hazebrouck, Ypres would have to be abandoned, and the French channel ports would be in imminent danger. For the moment, at any rate, the Germans are being held, it is pointed out.

The next three or four days, the reviewers consider, will be the most critical of the war.

BERLIN SAYS FRESH BRITISH DIVISIONS ARE BEATEN ON LYS

BERLIN, via London, April 13.—The evening statement from general headquarters says:

"We gained ground on the battle

British Facing Second Crisis in German Offensive In Flanders

front on the Lys all the way. Otherwise there is nothing new."

The official statement from general headquarters today says:

"On the battle field of the Lys our attacks against English divisions which has been brought up as quickly as possible in motor cars and by railway made good progress.

"From the heights of Messines we pushed forward across the Steenbeek river and reached the eastern border of Wulverghelm."

"On the battle front on both sides of the Somme lively artillery duels continue in many sectors. Local advances of our infantry on both sides of the Luce resulted in the bringing in of 400 prisoners, French and English.

"Between the Meuse and the Moselle reconnoitering detachments penetrated the French and American trenches and took prisoners. In unsuccessful counter attacks the enemy suffered heavy losses.

"Troops which had advanced to the south of Ploegsteert Wood swung around towards the north in a rapid and independent action under Regimental Commander Lieutenant-Colonel Polmann and took the fortified height of Rossignol by storm and joined hands with a detachment which had advanced to the north along the wood.

"The strongly wired wood, which would have been difficult to capture by means of a frontal attack, fell through being surrounded.

"Between the railways leading from Armentieres and Merville we carried our attack forward as far as the railway leading from Bailleul to Merris and as far as the eastern border of Nieppe Wood.

"To the south of Merville our troops captured the Clarence River and, after having taken Locon by storm, reached Labassee Canal to the northwest of Bethune.

"In the other theaters there is nothing new."

FRENCH ADVANCE AT ONE POINT, REPULSE ENEMY AT ANOTHER

PARIS, April 13 (By A. P.).—French troops in an attack today northwest of Orvilles-Sorel made an advance of several hundred meters along a front of about two-thirds of a mile, according to the War Office announcement tonight. A German attack in the Noyon sector was repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy. The text reads:

"There were artillery duels at various points north of Montdidier, notably in the region of Cantigny and Grivesnes.

"West of Lassigny our troops delivered an attack against the wood northwest of Orvillers-Sorel. On a front of about 1200 meters we made an advance several hundred meters in depth and took a number of prisoners.

"In the Noyon sector special storming troops, who launched an attack against our positions, were caught under our fire before being able to reach our lines and suffered a sanguinary check.

"There was quite heavy artillery activity at Hill 304, Eparges and in the Parroy Forest.

"On April 12 our airplanes displayed great activity along the whole front, particularly in the regions of the Somme and the Oise. Our pursuit machines carried out more than 350 sorties and fought 120 engagements. Eight enemy airplanes were brought down, 23 others fell within their own lines seriously damaged. Five enemy captive balloons were set on fire; five others pierced by bullets were obliged to drop precipitately to the earth.

"Our bombing machines likewise carried out demonstrations. In the day of April 12 and the night of April 12-13 a total of 48,000 kilos of projectiles was dropped in the course of these expeditions, in which Italian machines took part. The railway stations of Jussy, Roye, St. Quentin, Nesle, Ham, Guiscard and Noyon, railways, cantonment and numerous convoys in these regions, as well as the stations at Hirson, Laon and Montcornet, were copiously bombed. Several fires and explosions occurred."

GERMANS STRIVE TO ENCIRCLE BRITISH POSITIONS AT YPRES

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 13 (By A. P.).—Further attacks on the British right wing between Givenchy and Robecq, on La Bassee Canal yesterday wholly failed. Two attempts made late in the afternoon to capture Locon were repulsed. The British also counter attacked around Givenchy and took an important German post.

The fighting today evidently is intended to give the Germans an opportunity of getting around the British positions in the Ypres salient, which still is strongly held.

Neuve Eglise was the scene of a hand-to-hand struggle which resulted in the Germans getting a foothold in the village, but enemy frontal attacks on the Messines ridge were beaten off.

By a counter attack the British and French south of the River Somme yesterday afternoon recaptured Hangard, which the Germans had strongly fortified. The Entente allied forces also took the copse adjoining the village, which was full of machine guns. Some prisoners were taken.

The latest phase of the battle of Armentieres is a determined German attack in the direction of Bailleul from the south. Yesterday's all day fighting resulted in the retirement of the British forces further west of Merville.

The enemy made a fresh assault early last night, with the intention of occupying the great forest of Nieppe, but he gained only a few hundred yards, at the expense of heavy casualties, and the British front this morning lies in front of the forest.

Berlin Tells of British Naval Attack on Flanders Coast.

BERLIN, via London, April 13.—An official statement issued tonight says:

"British naval forces, consisting of monitors, torpedo craft and aircraw, attacked the coast of Flanders Thursday night. Ostend was bombarded with heavy caliber guns and aircraft bombed Zeebrugge. The attacks were beaten off without trouble by our batteries. There was no damage.

"A torpedo boat approaching Ostend was set afire and the crew abandoned it. We captured the boat with its complete equipment."

LONDON, April 13.—With reference to the German official statement claiming that in the attack on coast of Flanders a British torpedo boat was set afire and captured by the Germans, the Admiralty says that only one small motorbot is missing.

Artillery Action Reported Along Whole Italian Front.

ROME, April 13.—The official statement issued by the War Office this evening says:

"Artillery actions have been frequent along the whole front, but were most intense and prolonged between Lake Garda and the Brenta River. Our patrols have been active, especially in the region of Monte Grappe, where they captured prisoners and war material.

"North of Cortelazzo sailors carried out a successful surprise attack, destroying a small enemy post and taking 10 prisoners."

Where Germans Are Striving to Break Through British Lines to Reach The Channel Ports

On the left is a detailed map of the region in which the battle rages, and on the right an outline map showing the relation of the zone of battle to the channel ports. The battle line before the great offensive is indicated by dots. The new line in the outline m ap is in black and the area gained by the Germans is shaded. Important places are underscored in the detail map.

By Associated Press.

STIFFENING of British resistance has checked the German drive southward from the Lys toward Bethune and westward from Merville towards Hazebrouck, near the Belgian border. The enemy pressure is continuing with great weight toward the north and desperate battling is in progress along the line running southwest from Messines to the south of Bailleul.

The whole Ypres salient and the continued safety of the channel ports are pointed to by observers abroad as at stake in the fighting now under way. Hazebrouck and Bailleul, important railway centers, are vital feeding points for Messines Ridge and the Ypres position in general.

Germans Held at Nieppe Front.

So far as Hazebrouck is concerned, the Germans have been held for the time at least, on the edge of the forest of Nieppe, west of Merville, and some five miles away from their objective. The Germans have been battering away at the British lines here since they captured Merville on Wednesday night, but have advanced only a few hundred yards, being stopped short of the forest, which is about a mile and a half beyond Merville.

Little additional light was thrown by Saturday's dispatches upon the situation around Bailleul, to which the Germans had worked very close in Friday's fighting. It was revealed, however, that the enemy was attacking heavily in the vicinity of Neuve Eglise and Wulverghem, which lies in the region to the northeast of Bailleul, between it and Messines. The British are on comparatively high ground here, and the reports did not indicate that the Germans were making much progress.

On the southerly side of the wedge, which the Germans have driven in between Labassee and Armentieres, the British resistance was notably stiff. Bethune has been threatened by the push in this direction. The enemy twice attacked Locon, on this line about three miles north of Bethune, but each time was repulsed, the second time more easily than the first. The British also held firmly around Givenchy, on their right flank, and advanced their line by capturing an important German post in this region.

Allied Position Improved on Somme.

There was an improvement also in the allied position on the Somme battle front. The Germans had gained a footing in Hangard-En-Santerre, southeast of Amienes, in an attack on Friday, but a combined drive by the British and French during the night at the point where their lines join, on the river Luce near Hangard, restored the situation, putting the French again in complete possession of the village.

Meanwhile, the American forces are contributing notably to the maintenance of the line on sectors of the French front to the southeast. The men in the sector northwest of Toul added to their laurels last night by repelling, in conjunction with the French, another German attack on the positions in Brule Wood, in the forest of Apremont, east of St. Mihiel. A counter attack was launched and the Germans were thrown out of the position at a point where they had gained a footing.

Americans Cheered by French.

The American troops, although tired from nearly six days of infantry activity, went into their positions singing and expressing their pleasure at an opportunity to fight in the open in preference to what they term "sewer fighting."

The residents of villages behind the lines saw the Americans moving forward and shouted words of encouragement to the truck loads of smiling men, who waved their caps and cheered heartily. French officers have again praised the remarkable fighting qualities and the courage of the American infantrymen and the splendid co-operation shown by the American artillery. Some units of the artillery were forced for long periods to work in gas masks.

An artillery duel which was resumed last night continued with little interruption until late this morning.

Details of the repulse of Friday's two attacks upon the Americans in this sector show that during the fighting, which lasted virtually all day, the American troops inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy and took 36 prisoners. They suffered few casualties themselves and had no men taken prisoner.

Rheims Fired by German Shells.

French troops are fighting a fire in the city of Rheims, set by German shells. The city has been under frequent bombardment during the last few weeks, Berlin declaring the shelling was the reprisal for the shelling of German dugouts in Laon by the French artillery. The effort to control the flames is proceeding under heavy shell fire.

Paris suffered casualties of 24 persons killed and 62 injured in Friday night's air raids. The German raid on England caused the death of five persons and the injury of 15.

ty of public utilities and private corporations. Assessor Wolbrinck was complimented by the board for employing an expert accountant to examine the books of various concerns, including junk companies, and "ferret out invisible personal property."

Among the significant increases made by the board were those in the assessments of the Laclede Gas Light Co. and the Union Electric Light and Power Co. The franchise of the former was raised from $8,500,000 to $10,000,000. The franchise value of the Union Electric was increased from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000. The real estate of both corporations was valued at an aggregate of $900,000 higher than in 1917. Most of this increase was in the Union Electric's assessment.

The assessment of the Cupples Station Light, Heat and Power Co.'s franchise was raised from $75,000, which it had been for several years, to $500,000, and that of the St. Louis Refrigerating and Cold Storage Co. from $15,000 to $25,000.

Railway Exchange Building Raised.

The taxable value of the Railway Exchange Building and the land under it was increased from $4,985,000 in 1917 to $5,855,000 for this year. The valuation of the building was raised $500,000. The assessment of the Pierce Building and land was put at $1,314,780 for this year. This is an increase of $245,380. Of this increase $200,000 is in the assessment of the building.

Dealers in fur and junk, many of whom have heretofore paid on only small assessments, furnished a considerable part of the increase in the valuation of personal property. Their assessments were raised from $110,000 to $1,980,000.

To the total of $688,161,750 valuation of real estate and personal property must be added the assessment of railroads, telephone and telegraph companies, bridges and street railways, fixed by the State Board of Equalization. This assessment last year was $36,000,000, and is not expected to exceed $40,000,000 for 1918.

This addition would bring the total taxable valuation of all property in St. Louis in 1918 to $728,167,750. At the present tax rate this assessment would yield about $17,000,000 in revenue for the State, city and public schools. About $8,000,000 of this total would be for general municipal revenue.

The members of the City Board of Equalization were Assessor Wollbrinck, Fred G. Zeibig, Dr. Charles H. Pope, Anthony F. Ittner and Edward L. Kuhs.

U-BOAT SANK LIBERIAN ARMED VESSEL, THE PRESIDENT GRANT

LONDON, April 13 (By A. P.).—The German submarine which on April 10 bombarded Monrovia, the capital of the Agfican republic of Liberia, in addition to destroying the wireless telegraph station, sank the Liberian armed vessel, President Grant, it was announced here today. A number of casualties were inflicted on shore by the shells from the U-boat.

Prices for Spruce Agreed Upon.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. Prices on rando mlengths will range from $35 to $40 a thousand and on lengths from 8 to 20 feet from $40 to $55, according to size.

BRITISH DOGGEDLY HOLD GATEWAYS TO RAILROAD POINTS

Germans Deliver Sledge Hammer Blows in Bailleul and Merville Sectors With Little Success.

SHARP FIGHTING AT NEUVE EGLISE

Village Changes Hands Twice and in Heavy Engagement Four Teuton Attacks Are Repulsed.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 13 (By A. P.).—German hordes this morning continued to deliver sledge hammer blows in the Bailleul and Merville sectors in an attempt to break through and gain possession of the important railroad junctions of Hazebrouck and Aire, but the British were still hanging doggedly to the gateways leading westward. After a night of desperate fighting there was no great change in the situation since last evening, but the position of the defending troops seemed to be more cheerful.

The enemy's greatest gain was just to the southwest of Bailleul, where they pushed their lines forward by heavy attacks to the line of the Hazebrouck-Bailleul Railway. Throughout the afternoon and night the Germans kept hurling troops against this point in an attempt to force the British from Bailleul, but the latter held the town and along the railway and the enemy got only as far as Merris, a gain of perhaps a thousand yards.

Between Bailleul and Neuve Eglise the British assumed the offensive during the night and, after bitter fighting, pushed the German lines back considerably. Neuve Eglise itself has been the center of a sanguinary struggle.

British Recapture Village.

The enemy last night drove forward here and captured the village, but a counter-attack early today brought it back into British hands. A heavy engagement was in progress here this forenoon and at least four German attacks were repulsed.

The northern end of the battle front naturally continued to be the center of interest, but on the south the combined British and French operations last night gave the enemy a hard knock. Hangard was recaptured in a dashing drive by the allied troops and a footing was gained in a copse just north of this place.

In the north the enemy is making desperate efforts to get the domination of the railway so that troops, guns and supplies can be rushed forward.

The whole trend of the operations yesterday and last night was aimed at the capture of Bailleul, Hazebrouck, Morbecque, Steenbecque and Aire, all of which are important railway towns. The ground east of this sector is very low and wet and is unfavorable for the rapid movement of heavy guns. Work on the Armentieres-Bailleul railway has been rushed furiously by the enemy since the occupation of the former town and artillery is being moved forward as rapidly as possible.

In the meantime the enemy has been having a hard time with his transport. British aviators yesterday dropped many tons of bombs on the packed roads leading from Estaires to Merville, causing heavy casualties and much confusion.

Many Planes Shot Down.

Hostile pilots who attempted to drive the British flyers back along this front fared badly. Official figures are not available, but the correspondent is confident in stating that not less than 49 German planes were shot out of the air and crashed to the ground yesterday along the sector lying roughly between Wytschaete and a little south of Armentieres.

The German casualties yesterday and last night were heavy. They can hardly be avoided in following out the method of massed attack being employed by the enemy, who must be given credit for showing great discipline and sticking powers in the face of terrible punishment from machine guns and artillery.

Yesterday afternoon a heavy attack north of Locon forced the British to give some ground. Again last night at 8 o'clock the Germans surged forward east of Locon and succeeded in penetrating the British lines. Hard fighting followed and the enemy was finally driven back.

ASKS STUDENTS TO SPEND VACATION HELPING FARMERS

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—Secretary Wilson today wrote the presidents of 600 colleges, asking them to urge students to spend their vacations on the farms assisting with their crops. Students volunteering will be enrolled by the public service reserve in each state and will be placed on farms by the United States employment officers in each community.

Whole German Effort Now to Discolate British Army

Aim Is to Force English to Evacuate All of Northern France and Six Armies Are Being Used.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 13 (By A. P.).—All efforts of the German high command for the present are directed toward the systematic dislocation of the British armies.

Having failed to break the communications between the British and French, the enemy has turned his sole attention northward and it appears likely that the Germans will continue to throw all their available strength in that direction.

The enemy's plan seems to be to deliver a succession of hammering blows at different points between the Somme and the sea and with the desire of bringing about a British evacuation of the entire northern district of France.

Six German armies are participating in the battle raging along the front. They are as follows: Van Arnim's, Von Quest's, Otto von Below's, Von Marwitz', Von Hutier's and Von Boehm's on the east of the Oise.

The Germans, owing to their possession of interior lines of communication inside the semi-circle formed by the front, are able to move their strategic reserves with greater facility than the allies, and thus by surprise with readily concentrated superior forces, can compel the retirement of the allies at any point.

Hitherto, owing to the great tenacity of the allies, the enemy has been unable to carry out his plans of advance, according to his pre-arranged plan. This has been learned from orders captured on prisoners who have fallen into allied hands in considerable numbers these latter days during close fighting.

protracted stay in the American trenches, corroborating the stories told by prisoners taken on Wednesday, who said that the Germans had been ordered to penetrate the American third line at all costs.

AMERICAN TROOPS HELP FRENCH TO SMASH ATTACKS

U. S. Forces Participating Successfully in the Fighting in the Brule Wood Region.

PARIS, April 13 (By A. P.).—The Germans last night renewed their attacks upon the French positions in Brule wood in the forest of Apremont. American troops in this sector, in conjunction with the French, says today's official statement, have combated with vigor and broken the majority of the enemy attacks. At one point where the enemy obtained a footing he was thrown out by a counter attack.

The statement reads:

"In the forest of Apremont the Germans renewed their attacks on the French position in Brule wood. The American troops in this sector in conjunction with the French vigorously combated and broke the greater part of the German efforts. At one part where the Germans obtained a footing they were thrown out by a French counter-attack. The number of prisoners taken since yesterday is more than forty.

"In Lorraine the French made a raid in the region of Eply."

Last night's official statement recorded fighting in this section as follows:

"In the Apremont forest the enemy delivered against our positions in the Brule wood a powerful attack, gaining a foothold in our advanced elements. A spirited counter attack by the French and American troops, acting together, immediately drove them out. Twenty-two prisoners, belonging to six different units, were taken by the Americans."

The Apremont forest is where the American sector northwest of Toul joins the French lines.

800 Picked Shock Troops Start for American Trench, 2 Reach It.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, April 12 (By A. P.).—In the raid carried out by the Germans Wednesday against the Americans northwest of Toul, the enemy intended to penetrate to the third line positions, according to information obtained from a prisoner. This is corroborated by material found on dead Germans. The enemy carried wire, dynamite, entrenching tools and other implements for organizing the position.

The American knew in advance of the proposed attack through information obtained a day or two previously from prisoners captured by the French on an adjacent sector. The attack was made by a special battalion of 800 shock troops, who had rehearsed the operation for two or three weeks behind the lines. As soon as the German barrage began the American batteries, without waiting for a rocket signal, laid down a counter barrage, with the result that less than 200 of the enemy succeeded in climbing out of their trenches and advancing toward the American line.

The German officers sent the men through the barrage, but only two succeeded in reaching the front line. Both of these were taken prisoner, one of them dying a short time afterward from wounds.

When the German barrage started the American outposts moved into the first line, where with other infantrymen and machine gunners they waited for the advancing enemy. The Americans poured a deadly fire into the raiders, then climbed out of the trenches and engaged with grenades and in hand-to-hand fighting the few Germans who were able to cross No Man's Land. The American infantrymen drove the enemy back to his own lines and, protected by machine gun and automatic fire, dragged the German dead back to the American trenches for identification.

The German losses were heavy. No Man's Land was strewn with dead, and numbers of the enemy were killed by the artillery without being able to leave the German trenches.

The French officers commanding units in a neighboring sector complimented the American officers on the courage and gallantry displayed in the operation and the splendid work of the artillery. Some of the battery men worked in gas masks for several hours.

All Russian Troops Withdrawn From Persian War Zone.

TABRIX, Persia, Friday, April 12 (By A. P.).—Fighting is still going on between the Mohammedan tribes and the Assyrian Christians in the district west of Turco-Persian frontier. Mar Shimon, the head of the Assyrian Church, has been slain. Russian troops have been completely withdrawn from this section.

Severe famine conditions prevail in the region west of Lake Urumiah, inlucding the cities of Urumiah, Salmas and Dilmon. The condition of the roads and the country generally renders transportation difficult.

British Airplanes Work Havoc Among Massed German Infantry.

LONDON, April 13 (By A. P.).—The following official statement on aerial operations was issued tonight:

"Atmospheric conditions were favorable Friday and a great concentration of our machines was effected on the battle front. A large number of low-flying machines were employed in bombing and sweeping with machine gun fire roads packed with enemy troops. Thirty-six tons of bombs were dropped and more than 110,000 rounds of ammunition were fired.

"In the meantime other formations, flying at a greater height, engaged the enemy planes, which were extremely lively in this sector. Forty German machines were brought down and 20 others were brought down out of control. Two were brought down by gunfire. Twelve of ours are missing.

"Incessant bombing was carried out between dark and dawn. More than 22 tons were dropped on the Douai railway stations and roads leading to the battle front in the neighborhood of Estaires."

"GERMAN SUCCESS BECOMES MORE PROBLEMATICAL DAILY"

Military Critic of Paris Temps Compares Germany Army to Man Hanging Over Precipice.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—The observations of the military critic of the Paris Temps on the German offensive received here today in an official dispatch from France, are as follows:

"Two adversaries possessing about the same number of forces face each other. These forces on both sides are composed approximately of 200 divisions. Both adversaries are equally determined to make an end of the other. There is hope of a final decision and each aims at a vital point. It is no longer a question of progress or gaining an advantage or of shortening the line—the enemy army must be destroyed.

"Facing the strategist of the Mazurian Lakes is a French General of marvelous intelligence and activity. He economizes his forces and awaits his hour. The duel of the two men will decide the fate of the world.

"The enemy failed at Amiens March 26. In a struggle of this character, a blow missed can become singularly dangerous for the one who attempted it, and we have the feeling that the success obtained till now by the adversary is of doubtful result. They have gained advantages, but they have placed him in an unstable situation, which can become perilous. Completely engaged, he is obliged to pursue his plan to the end. He is like the man who ascends a steep mountain and who is hanging on a narrow ledge, between precipices. If he succeeds he will win a brilliant victory. If he fails disaster is inevitable. In this success, which has not been won immediately, becomes problematical. That of the German becomes more so each day."

Y. M. C. A. Needs 1000 Men in France

CHICAGO, April 13 (By A. P.).—An urgent call for 1000 secretaries came today from France. The men must be above draft age. "33 positions now under enemy fire and 47 near front line," said the cablegram. Specialized recruiting needed to produce 25 men and five women weekly for French work alone."

GEN. HAIG'S CALL CAUSES NO ALARM IN WASHINGTON

Officers Believe That Reserves Are Available in Sufficient Numbers for Counter Offensive.

NAVAL DEPARTMENT EXPECTS SEA MOVE

Reports Indicate Germans Are Mobilizing Naval Reserves and Supplies at Fleet Bases.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—Meager reports from the battle front in Flanders today indicated that the British army was loyally responding to the appeal of its commander, and holding grimly against renewed German assaults. Meanwhile officers here discussed Field Marshal Haig's call to his forces to fight to the last man.

The meaning and purpose of the order were variously construed. Some officers hailed it as forecasting the counter offensive by the united allied armies. Others were disquieted. Officers who have followed the progress of the fight from hour to hour in press bulletins, however, are very optimistic. They saw no reason to doubt that reserves in sufficient numbers to warrant a counter offensive were available behind the fighting front and they also noted with satisfaction Gen. Haig's announcement that French reinforcements were coming up.

In the view of some officers, the German front as it now stands, places the Germans in jeopardy in two places. The wide salient driven toward Amiens appears to them susceptible of flank assault by the French from the south and southwest, while in Flanders the narrow salient driven into the British lines leaves the Teutonic flanks exposed.

Look for Counter Stroke.

There are many reasons, it was said, to anticipate that any French counter stroke designed to take pressure off the British front in Flanders may be delivered south and east of Montdidier. For this reason developments at Hangard, gallantly regained by the French today, are being followed closely.

The participation of American troops with the French in vigorously repelling German assaults, as reported by the French official statement, was welcomed by officers here. They saw in the report evidence that the men have all the dash and enterprise expected of them and are coming into action like veterans.

Intimations from neutral sources that Germany has been preparing for a naval offensive as contained in press reports reaching this country, already have come to the Navy Department in a more official way. Mobilization of naval reserves at the fleet bases, assembly of supplies and other activities indicating plans for a dash to sea have been transmitted for some weeks.

In some quarters the sudden drop in submarine sinkings last week lent color to the possibility of a German naval drive to supplement the land operations, the explanation being that the submarines had been called in to prepare for co-operation with the fleet.

Fleet Might Co-operate.

Undoubtedly, it was said, the German drives in Picardy and in Flanders were for the purpose of capturing channel ports through which British troops and supplies flow to the front. They were launched in firm conviction that success would attend them, and officers said, it naturally followed that steps would be taken to prepare the battle fleets and submarines to co-operate immediately with the army.

Should the channel ports be brought under German gunfire, the German high command, it was argued, probably would seek to block off British reinforcements with warships at the risk of losing many vessels. Once the army was in firm possession of a section of the channel coast as a naval base, officers believe, warships, and particularly submarines, would be rushed to that point for operations against British channel traffic and possibly even against the English coast.

Hope for Naval Effort.

Officials of the Navy Department and naval officers generally today declared that the report that the German navy is about to start an offensive "is too good to be true."

That the German high sea fleet could hope to accomplish anything of consequence against the vastly stronger aggregation of naval forces lined up against it is doubted here.

It was suggested today that the Germans were planning some stroke on the sea designed to interfere with British and American troop movement to France, in co-ordination with the Teutonic land offensive.

It is believed that the German authorities may have started the report about a possible naval offensive in the hope that the United States and allies would withdraw a part of the destroyer flotillas that are convoying American troop ships, thus exposing them to greater danger from submarine attack.

Post-Dispatch Man Tells How Paris Received First Shells From the Long Range Gun

CITY STIRRED ONLY UNTIL SOURCE OF NEW ATTACK WAS LEARNED

Officer Who Noted Regularity of Frequency in Explosions Was First to Establish Fact That "Bombs" Came From a Gun and Not From Aircraft.

CLAIR KENAMORE.

By Clair Kenamore.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, March 24.—It was a picturesque and typically Parisian night. We were just finishing dinner in the dim little dining room of the Hotel Lotti. On the table was a candle stick supporting two electric lights. The waiter came up and turned one of them out.

"The Boche, he has come again," he said.

"An air raid?"

"The alerte has just been sounded," he answered, and proceded with his business of darkening the room.

As we went out, the lobby of the hotel was dark. A single light showed on the clerk's desk, and from the basement came the sound of voices which showed that the guests had gone below.

We walked out into the Rue de Castiglione to see how Paris acted under the lash of German shells. The street was lighted by a half moon, the sky was nearly clear. At distances solitary street lights showed, well shielded from above and the glass stained a dark, cold blue. The streets looked, doubtless, just as did the Paris streets through which Francois Villon sneaked and dodged centuries ago.

In the deserted Place Vendome the stately column stood stark and majestic, rising from the smother of sandbags piled about its base. We walked toward the Tuileries gardens. All the buildings in this part of the city are of uniform height, six or seven stories and all are of stone. Each entrance had been placarded by the police, notifying the populace that here was shelter and giving the number of persons who could be accommodated. A tiny blue light showed at each "abri."

Americans are said to take their pleasures sadly. Parisians on the other hand, take their sorrows joyfully. The crowds jammed in the bomb-proof corridors laughed and jested, made speeches and refused to be downhearted. From the farther corners came soft murmurings, and I suspect that even while the Boche, swinging 10,000 feet above, was loosing his bombs, there were many gallant words said in the gloom of the darkened shelters.

As we turned into the Rue de Rivoli, somebody far away was beating rapidly upon a snare drum. We stopped to listen and the sound identified itself. It was the aerial barrage, smashing away at the pregnant skies to turn back the invader. Soldiers from all the world sat in the little iron chairs along the Champs Elysee and watched the stars, searching for the spitting machine gun which would tell that a Frenchman had found his quarry. Americans, Australians, Canadians, Soudanese, British and French and many another race and breed were there. On the benches back under the trees sat soldiers, each with his arm around his girl, learning the language. In taxicab, restaurant or park, the only approved way for a soldier to sit with a girl is with his arm around her, and her arm around him. Paris is very hospitable.

The "archies" kept whanging away, but the sound of exploding bombs had ceased. We knew that air planes must be up, but were unable to see them, until, just as we were ready to walk back down the beautiful boulevard, far and high there floated across the face of the young moon a tiny airplane. There was a feeling of eerieness in seeing this distant guardian of the great city keeping his midnight vigil. He was a patrolman of the skies, peering around long avenues of mist, seeking the dark corners of clouds and down breaker of the peace.

The "archies" ceased as we walked back. The vicious, one-lunged Paris taxicab sped remorselessly through the streets, showing not a light and slowing down neither for crossing nor turnings.

As we neared the hotel, a bugle sounded, and around a corner, just missing the sandbags which shrouded a statue, came a fire department auto truck, gay in brass trimmings and gleaming nickel. A proud fireman sounded the "All clear" as it dashed down the street, scattering the promenaders.

Then the shelters gave up their burdens. The crowds streamed forth, laughing, bantering, gay and irrepressible as ever. They filled the sidewalks, the girls rearranged their hair frankly in the eyes of everybody, taxis were hailed, the laughter was loud and happy. It was like a crowd just let out of a theater where an excellent comedy had been played.

The next morning at 8 o'clock, a bomb burst in a public place. At breakfast, Frank said:

"The boche, he come by day, eh?"

Frank used to be head waiter in a Broadway hotel in New York, but since then he has served two years in the Italian army. He lost one eye, and a splinter of bomb clove his face from brow to chin, so he laid down his arms. There is not much more can happen to him, so he views life with little concern.

The alerte sounded. Whannnnlouwiannouuuu!

It is one of those alarms which is called a wildcat whistle in the West, and is a duplicate of the small and devilish noise makers which some bicyclists carry.

Paris shops have long curtains of corrugated iron which they roll down before their windows at night as a general protection for the glass and stock. These had begun to come up for the opening of business. Now they came down again with a rattle, and a general suspension of business was agreed upon.

It was a daylight raid, everybody said that. Nobody had seen the airplanes yet, but wait, you would see them soon. The dead were gathered up. The police threw a cordon of troops about the scene of the explosion.

Twenty minutes later from the East came another explosion. Ah, the boche, he is dropping big bombs. The Archies were combing the empty skies with shrapnel. Airplanes went up and swept along majestically in formation. Like mica flakes on water, they floated against the sky. Motor cycles sped through the scene of the explosions, gathering any chance scrap of the bomb, and sped back again to the ministries.

The air service found no enemy airplanes above the city, but the bombs kept falling. Then rumors began to float about. The shells were not from airplanes, but were planted in the city by spies. No, surely that could not be, or else they would plant them near important buildings. They were brought over in the night, and released, attached to a parachute which maintained itself in the air until, at a certain time, it released the bomb. How absurd, no one could be clever enough to do that.

In the Ministry of War sat a Lieutenant of artillery. My informant says that he now wears another decoration. The explosions of the shells were loud enough to be heard all over Paris. As each one sounded, he noted the time on a slip of paper. 10.50, 11:13, 11:35, 11:55, 12:28 it ran.

That was enough for him. He went to his chief and said:

"Monsieur, Paris is under bombardment by artillery. The intervals between explosions is just sufficient for the relaying, reloading and firing of the piece. The enemy has produced a gun which will carry from his lines to Paris."

Paris throbbed with the news. An official communique proclaimed it. Name of the name of a dog! What would not the boche do next?

We had breakfasted that morning at a restaurant which was supposed to be particularly sympathetic to the American digestive tract. Four Americans we were. The order was appaling, from the French viewpoint. Oranges, coffee, fried fish, ham and eggs, waffles if possible, and some more coffee.

Not a morsel had appeared when a shell struck not so far away. Breakfasters departed in haste, waiters disappeared, and our own waiter came up and said that the cashier was very unhappy. Would we have the goodness to pay our bill now?

"By no means. Show us some food, a lot of it now, like a good boy. We crave to eat."

Finally the food came, but no servitors remained but three scared little boys in dress suits As we ate, each in turn came and inquired if we would have our hats now. Might he bring our coats?

At night we returned to the same restaurant for dinner. The day had been spent in seeking passes to go to various points of the front, and the dinner was good. Another air raid was announced as the dinner ended, and we descended to the celar. An empty wine cask up-ended in the middle of the great basement, supported a light, and the crowd melted back into the gloom on all sides. There were plenty of seats, boxes, benches, chairs and what not.

The discussion never ceaed, and some times as many as four or five persons spoke at once. One distinguished looking gentleman who was the deputy for the district could not believe any gun could shoot 100 kilometers. No, these new bombs must come from a weapon discharged by compressed air, and the gun was secreted in a wood near Paris. But do not fear, he would be found in the shortest time.

Another man in the uniform of a French aviator saw nothing to tax his credulity in such a gun. He would put nothing past the boche. If a gun would shoot 50 kilometers, why could not it be made to shoot 100?

It was only a matter of calculation, said a civilian. A Russian had devised a scheme whereby the resistance of the air was greatly lessened by the superheating of the missiles. Now a gun of this power would send its projectile at such an altitude that the air would be appreciably thinned, and consequently the resistance would be much less.

A young lady from the dim regions beyond the light advanced and volunteered to enact a scene from "The Chandelier "if we wished Everybody-wished her to do so, and she performed to loud applause.

An elderly civilian declared with feeling that much worse than the shelling was the tobacco famine. Was it not so?

A lady with an artistic air desired to enter a firm protest against the selection of the pieces of statuary which the authorities had seen fit to protect with sandbags. Such deplorable taste? The dancing group before the opera was protected. Very well, it was a pretty thing, truly. But what of the other magnificent works? Bare and naked as the day they were put there. Well—

A polite waiter descended to say that the "all clear" had sounded. We marched out, the conversation as lively as ever, and everyone apparently thoroughly happy.

The next day brought relief to the nervous strain by giving positive assurance that the mysterious bombs came from a gun planted within the enemy's lines. As long as there was uncertainty about it, the uncanniness was trying to the populace. As soon as they knew exactly what was going on, the city resumed its normal aspect and went about its affairs. If strange shells were dropping from nowhere on Paris, it was terrifying. If, on the other hand, the people knew they came from a certain gun at a certain place, all well and good. Guns had shelled Paris before. The city would endure.

The authorities took steps to advise the people. There were already two authorized alarms, so the special one to tell of bombardment by the big gun was called No. 3. Policemen were to walk about beating drums. No particular beat, just a noise of drums. This delighted the famous small boy of Paris. He marched behind the policeman, imitating his style and beating upon a tin can. The street crowds laughed heartily and the majesty of the law was maintained with dignity.

Palm Sunday was the second day of the bombardment, and Paris flocked to the parks and boulevards. The distant booms of the shells were utterly disregarded, as if by common consent, and the holiday makers picknicked unconcernedly.

On Monday, one of the shells failed to explode. This gave the artillery experts the data they sought. The missile was approximately fifteen inches long with a caliber of about nine inches. This strengthened the arguments of those who contended the gun must shoot a shell, which was itself a sort of cannon. This primary shell is timed to explode in mid-flight and so add new propulsion to the smaller one which it carries. The second one explodes upon contact at its objective.

In an interview, Ex-Premier Painleve, considered one of the world's leading mathematicians, said:

"Have the Germans managed to combine ordinary artillery science with one of the processes often suggested for maintaining the speed of projectiles, such as the methods employed for maintaining a rocket? Have they discovered a gun free from recoil which can be fired from a Zeppelin?

"Neither of these hypotheses would accord with precision in aiming. On the other hand, if they have remained in the domain of classic artillery science they must have succeeded in doubling, at least, the initial speed of the projectile, which is an enormous advance. But if they have done this, they have only done it with shells of low explosive capacity, which are consequently of no great efficiency."

Examination of the places struck by the shells showed that they were not of great power. Shells dropped in the air raid of Jan. 30 did much more damage, but the solid stone costruction of Paris is such that neither air raids, nor big gun shells could do the city great harm, except by concentration of fire, and that fire of long duration.

In one case, a shell passed through two apartments to explode in the third. It tore out the front wall, but did little damage to the rest of the house. Another landed in an open place, and dug a crater not six feet across.

Parisians find considerable comfort in the estimate that each shot from the gun costs $4000. None of the shells has done material damage which cannot be replaced for much less than that.

If the object for the attack was to show off a new weapon of war, and to call attention to the cleverness of the designer it has been successful. If it was to terrorize Paris, it has failed signally. After the first bit of squeamishness caused mainly by the mystery of it, the town seemed to calm itself and to resume its business in the manner of gay earnestness By Tuesday, the interest in the big gun had waned almost to nothing, with everybody seeking news of the German drive and the French joining the fight around Noyon.

WILSON FAVORS $50,000,000 FUND FOR "ROCK" SHIPS

Approves Shipping Board's Suggestion of That Amount for Experiments With Concrete Construction.

NO OPPOSITION TO PLAN IS ANTICIPATED

Possibilities of Material Carefully Canvassed and Many Experts Expect Its Use to Prove Entirely Feasible.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—President Wilson has approved the Shipping Board's suggestion for an appropriation of $50,000,000 to experiment with concrete ships. Chairman Hurley will confer Monday with Chairman Sherley of the House Appropriation Committee who has promised to introduce the appropriation bill immediately and press its passage. No opposition to the measure is expected in either house. It is planned to make $15,000,000 available at oncee.

The President is said to be keenly interested in the new type of construction. He has talked several times with Hurley, Senator McCumber, who is urging the appropriation in the Senate, and other officials who believe concrete ships will prove an important link in the "bridge across the Atlantic." Chairman Hurley frankly has said concrete construction is an experiment, but that the shipping board does not feel warranted to pass over any possibility of turning out ships quickly because the experiment may not prove a success.

Everything that can be done to ascertain the possibility of using concrete ships commercially has been done by the Shipping Board. R. J. Wig, expert in the concrete construction, recently completed an examination of piers, bridges, etc., to determine the effect of sea water on concrete. Wig also observed the launching of the concrete ship Faith in California, and made a report officially described as "very enthusiastic," of the behavior of the vessel. Tests of concrete construction have been made by the Bureau of Standards under the personal direction of Secretary Redfield.

Conclusions from all these experiments have convinced many experts that concrete ships would be a success. They regard such ships as essentially covered bridges, capable of standing all the strain and the stress which concrete bridges have undergone without damage.

Shock is the one big undetermined factor, and they believe that the resistance of concrete ships to shock can be determined only by actual experiment with the vessels themselves. The chemical action of sea water on concrete has not fully been determined yet, but from observations already made experts do not believe it will cause speedy disintegration.

Rivalry Between Builders of Steel Ships Grows Active.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—Rivalry between Atlantic and Pacific Coast shipyards to establish records for the quick launching of steel ships is constantly growing more active. Chairman Hurley today promised to attend the launching of a ship now being built in an Atlantic yard if it is put into the water in less than 64 days, the record set at Seattle. Meanwhile the Seattle yard is striving to lower its own record and has reported that a ship would be launched in 51 days, possibly less.

Hurley declined to name the Atlantic coast yard which is trying for the record.

NEGRO QUESTION STILL UNSETTLED BY METHODISTS

Joint Conference Committee Adjourns After Announcing That Problem Will Go to General Conferences.

AGREEMENT REACHED ON TWO POINTS

Meeting Was Fourth Held in 16 Months in Effort to Bring About Reunion of Churches.

The Joint Conference Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which had been in session at Centenary Church for four days, discussing measures for reunion of the two branches of Methodism, adjourned last night, with the announcement that a partial agreement had been reached.

The official announcement given out by the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Thomas of Louisville, secretary of the Joint Conference Committee, was:

> We have reached agreement and have voted approval of two of the three crucial problems involved in the unification of American Methodism. The principles and framework of the regional conference, the general conference, the episcopacy and the judicial council have been approved by both commissions. We are unable to agree as to the status of the colored membership in the reorganized church. The suggestions of both commissions on this subject will be transmitted to the general conference of both churches for their information and action.

The Southern Methodist general conference convenes in Atlanta May 2. The Methodist Episcopal general conference is not to convene until 1920, unles an earlier date is set by the Bishops, for special consideration of the plan of reunion.

Negro Question Only Obstacle.

It appears from the report that the negro question, which split the Methodist Church in the United States in 1844, is the only obstacle remaining to reunion. Then the issue was that of negro slavery. Now the difference is between the relation of the negro membership to the church organization. The Methodist Episcopal Church has separate negro congregations, but gives the negro Bishops a vote in the general conference. The M. E. Church, South, maintains a separate organization for the negroes, who are not represented in the general conference, but have their own conference. This is the difference which, as the report indicates, the committee was unable to reconcile, and has had to refer to the general conferences of the two branches of the church.

Several Bishops, members of the Conference Committee, seen last evening at the Warwick Hotel, would not amplify the statement in the committee's formal announcement. This was the fourth meeting held by the committee in the past 16 months. Fifty men, including five Bishops of each branch of the church, were on the joint committee. George Warren Brown, chairman of the board of the Brown Shoe Co., was the only St. Luis member.

Two negro members of the Conference Committee, Dr. Robert E. Jones of New Orleans and Dr. I. Garland Penn of Cincinnati, said last night that Bishop Cranson of Washington, speaking to the joint committee yesterday, denied a report that he had "rebuked" the negro members for their unwillingness to forego proportionate representation, in the reunited church, and to agree to what the negro members say would be "a small nominal representation." The Bishop Friday urged the negroes to accept this plan, they said, but they replied that they were not authorized to do so.

PREACHER IS DRIVEN OUT OF TOWN BY AN ANGRY CROWD

MEDFORD, Ore., April 13 (By A. P.).—E. P. Taliaferro, traveling preacher for the International Bible Students' Association, scheduled to lecture here last night, was refused permission and ordered from town by Mayor Gates, but remained until a crowd of several hundred threatened violence, when he hurriedly left by automobile.

He was followed by a portion of the crowd, who failing to locate Taliaferro, seized George Maynard, local leader of the sect, painted a huge iron cross on his body and gave him until Monday to leave the city.

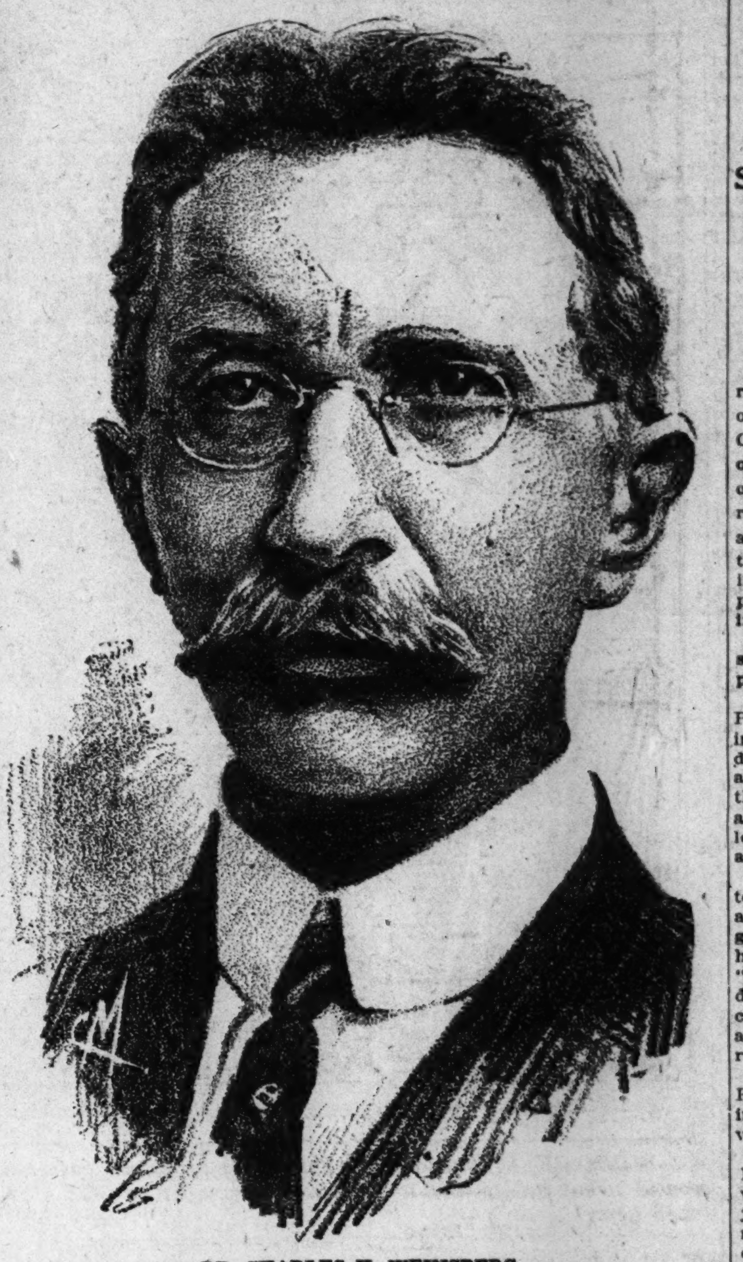
German-American Alliance Head Here Arrested Under Espionage Act



DR. CHARLES H. WEINSBERG.

WEINSBERG SURE OF SUCCESS OF THE GERMAN ARMY

distrust and apprehension, and in this way hinder the Governmert in the prosecution of the war."

The punishment prescribed for violation of the act is any fine up to $10,000 or any term of imprisonment up to 20 years, or both.

The Weinsberg statement was the subject of general discussion yesterday afternoon, and the District Attorney's office received many telephone calls, within an hour after the Home Edition of the Post-Dispatch was placed on sale, inquiring what action would be taken in the case. A group of the Four-Minute Men called at the office, and asked to be sworn in as special deputies, to make the arrest in case a warrant were issued. Their offer was declined.

WEINSBERG SURE OF SUCCESS OF GERMAN ARMY

Expressed Himself Freely to Reporters—Had Figured Out Plans of Offensive.

The statement of Dr. Weinsberg, predicting peace within six months, with Germany as the victor, was made to two Post-Dispatch reporters in the physician's office Friday afternoon.

One of the reporters had previously called on Dr. Weinsberg in connection with the affairs of the German-American Alliance, and Dr. Weinsberg had expressed his views on the outcome of the war. The Post-Dispatch did not print this statement, but to avoid the possibility of any misunderstanding, sent the same reporter, with another, both experienced men, to talk with Dr. Weinsberg on the same matter. His statement, as made to them, was printed in yesterday's Post-Dispatch.

He prophesied that the Austro-German forces would break through the Italian lines as soon as weather permitted, and that they would then pass through Northern Italy and invade France from the Italian frontier. This invasion, he said, will either outflank the allied forces or will make it necessary for the French to send troops which they cannot spare, to hold back the new inroads. This would make possible the breaking of the French lines elsewhere, and would bring about the defeat of France, from which the British and American forces would have to be withdrawn.

"The Next Chapter."

With Germany victorious over France, he said, the war would become a naval and commercial contest between Germany and America and England—a conflict which, he held, it would not be to the interest of any of the parties to prolong, in view of the British food shortage and American unpreparedness for the war.

Speaking of the State German-American Alliance, which was the orginal subject of the interview, Dr. Weinsberg said he would recommend, at the meeting called for last night, that meetings be discontinued through th remainder of the war. He said this suspension of activities would be voluntary, and that the charter of the State Alliance was not affected by the disbandment f the National German-American Alliance, at a meeting in Philadelphia Thursday.

The plan to discontinue meetings through the remainder of the war led to the question how long this was likely to be, and Dr. Weinsberg then made his prophecy as to the defeat of France.

"Armentieres has been taken now," he said. "That is a very important point. The British line is in danger. But I think the chief developments will come through Italy.

"There is only eight miles of mountainous country ahead of the Austrians in Italy now. When the ground gets drier, they can start a big offensive that will take them through those eight miles, and then they will be in comparatively easy country. Through the north of Italy they can invade France from the south, and the French can't turn them back without laying their line open elsewhere.

Sees Germany in Control.

"England cannot increase its force in France very greatly, because it must keep an army at home to repel a possible invasion. We are 3000 miles away, and our transport program has not worked well. With the French defeated, we and the British would have to get out of France. With Germany controlling Europe, the United States would not keep up the war very long.

"I don't know whether the Germans would demand an indemnity from France. I rather think they would be satisfied to claim no indemnity and keep Alsace-Lorraine. They might invade England, but I do not believe the United States would be invaded. It is not likely that they could destroy the British fleet, with its great superiority in size, but they could keep the British and American fleets from destroying the German navy or inflicting heavy damage on the German coast. The Kiel Canal and Heligoland would be found of great value in such a situation."

When it was suggested that a peace which left Germany the master of Europe would not meet American requirements, Dr. Weinberg remarked, "Well, when you don't get what, you want, you have to take what you can get."

It was suggested that such a termination of the war would have an unfavorable effect on public feeling in this country. "It would be pretty bad," he assented. "There will be a business panic here when peace comes, owing to the return of soldiers to their former employments, and the business changes that will come suddenly."

'Grmans Have Everything Planned.'

"Germany will also have a large army to disband," the reporter remarked. "Ah," Dr. Weinsberg replied, "that is where we are at a disadvantage. They have planned everything out in advance in Germany, and there will not be any panic when the German army goes home. They will release the army gradually, so that industry can absorb them as they come. They have made all the plans for doing these things. They do not wait until the situation is upon them."

He contrasted food conditions in England unfavorably with those in Germany, where, he said, large food supplies have been made available from Ukraine and other Russian territory.

"Have you bought Liberty Bonds?" Dr. Weinsberg said as the reporters were leaving. They said they had bought bonds of previous issues, and were going to buy some of the new bonds, and the physician remarked, "I've just bought a $1000 bond."

Advocates Prison Terms for All Who Hold Views Like Weinsberg.

Dr. R. Emmet Kane, former president of the St. Louis Medical Society, and one of the Four-Minute Men, speaking last night at the West End Lyric Theater, mentioned the issuance of a warrant for Dr. Weinsberg, and said that all persons who held views such as he expressed should be imprisoned for the next six months, and as much longer as the war might last. He said only 100 per cent Americans were wanted at this time, and he declared that no military occurrences in Europe would cause the United States to make peace on Germany's terms. His speech aroused much enthusiasm.

INQUIRY STARTS INTO BLOWING UP OF ILLINOIS MINE

State Inspector Arrives at Panama and Begins Investigation—Police Hunt for Three Suspects.

State investigation was inaugurated last night into the dynamiting of the properties of the Shoal Creek Coal Co. at Panama, Ill., northeast of Edwardsville. State Mine Inspector Thomas A. Lewis of Litchfield arrived in Panama, and after an examination of the external effects of the blast was at his request lowered into the mine. Lewis said he purposed to make a thorough personal inspection of the workings.

In the meantime the police of east side cities are looking for three suspects.

Two distinct attempts to wreck the Panama mine have been made within the past month. About the middle of March Ben H. Allen, mine examiner, while inspecting an entry in the Shoal Creek mine, came upon a blast which had been set, not to loosen coal, but to wreck an entry and cut off escape for the miners.

A length of fuse attracted his attention. He found the end charred, as if it had been lighted and had gone out. Following it for 50 feet, he came to a cunningly concealed "mine" in which were 19 sticks of dynamite and blasting powder, all capped, and prepared apparently by an expert. The fuse had been arranged to detonate them.

Allen, who is president of the Panama Miners' Local, ordered an investigation, but no information developed.

The latest attempt was at 11:40 Friday night, when the fanhouse was blown up. This building adjoins the air shaft, which the Illinois law requires as a means of escape for the men if the main shaft becomes disabled or shut off. The huge fan forces a constant stream of fresh air down into the mine and through its working, to keep the men supplied.

While the work of the blast was thorough, an inspection yesterday showed that the plotters had gone to the trouble of excavating until they could place thei rexplosion under the foundation.

The east side of the building was torn away and the air machinery damaged, necessitating the closing down of the mine for the time being.

Bloodhounds procured from St. Elmo, Ill., yesterday led officers to Sorento. In the Burlington yards they topped, and it is believed the men responsible boarded a freight there.

LABOR AMENDMENTS TO SABOTAGE BILL ELIMINATED

WASHINGTON, April 13 (Special). —The conferees on the sabotage bill today eliminated both the so-called Cannon and Lunn amendments, thus taking from the measure all reference to the right of labor to strike in time of war. The Lunn amendment provided "that nothing herein shall be construed as making it unlawful for employes to agree together to stop work or not to enter thereon with the sole and bona fide purpose of securing better wages for conditions of employment."

The Cannon amendment put a fine of $10,000 or three years' imprisonment on "whoever, with intent to injure, interfere with, or obstruct the United States or any associate nation in preparing for or carrying on the war shall conspire to prevent the erection or production of such war premises, war material or war utilities."

The conferees regarded legislation touching on the labor question as being improperly placed in the bill. The Cannon amendment, which called for the other amendment, was declared to be unnecessary in the consideration of the sabotage measure. The action of the conferees will not be contested by the supporters of either proposition who concurred in the view that endless trouble would be caused with the Lunn amendment alone eliminated as favored in the Senate.

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT THIRD WAR LOAN SALES $59,466,100

Of This Amount $12,613,000 Is Subscribed by the City and $46,853,100 Outside —Quota $130,0000,000.

TABULATIONS ARE UP TO FRIDAY NIGHT

Figures Given Out Here Do Not Include Yesterday's Subscriptions, Which Are Not Yet Totaled.

The Eighth, or St. Louis, Federal Reserve District subscribed for $59,466,100 of the bonds of the Third Liberty Loan up to Friday evening, it was announced at headquarters here yesterday. Of this amount the city of St. Louis subscribed $12,613,000 and the remainder of the district $46,853,100.

The district's quota is $130,000,000, and that for the city is $39,107,350. The campaign is to continue four weeks. Yesterday's subscriptions have not been tabulated, as it was a half-day with the banks.

Of the seven states which are wholly or partly included in the district, Kentucky has reported $9,678,450; Arkansas, $9,626,850; Illinois, $7,170,250; Indiana, $7,140,800; Missouri, $6,241,000; Tennessee, $3,958,150 and Mississippi, $3,037,600.

The Missouri figures do not include St. Louis. Kansas City is not in this Federal Reserve district. Western Tennessee and Southern Illinois are in the district.

Yesterday's Large Subscriptions.

Large subscriptions reported yesterday, made through St. Louis banks, were:

Through Third National Bank: Laclede Gas Light Co., $125,000; Union Electric Light and Power Co., $30,000; Chase Bag Co., $25,000.

Through National Bank of Commerce: American Steel Foundry Co., $25,000 (allotment for St. Louis district).

Through St. Louis Union Trust Co.: W. K. Bixby, $125,000.

The Schools Committee reports subscriptions of $844,450 obtained from and through school children. The Women's Committee reports subscriptions og $778,050. The Liederkranz Club subscriptions to date are $232,400.

Two 100 Per Cent Reports.

Two forces of employes reported as 100 per cent purchasers of Liberty Bonds were those of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, office force, with 235 employes all subscribing; and the Measuregraph Co., 130 employes, all subscribing.

The bond and insurance salesmen reported 650 subscriptions, a total of $5,890,350, for their first week. The largest number of subscriptions credited to any of the teams is 1168 for the team headed by Edward Dieselkamp, making a total of $489,600. The largest total was reported by S. L. Morton's team, which got $676,900 from 98 subscribers.

$249,000 Sold at Booths.

St. Louis women, conducting booths in stores downtown and in the residence districts, reported sales totaling $249,000 yesterday. Two of the purchasers at the Catholic Women's booth at Nugent's store were Howard Benoist, who bought $7500 worth of bonds, and Festus J. Wade, $5000. The Wednesday Club women, in charge at the Famous & Barr store, reported total sales of $174,000.

The poster, cartoon and essay contests which are being held to popularize the loan will have their time extended to next Saturday. The essay contest is open to school children, and the poster contest to professional and amateur cartoonists.

Reports received by the women's organization from points in Missouri show subscriptions obtained through these organizations of $86,000 in Cole County outside Jefferson City; $101,250 in New Madrid, $41,500 at Columbia, $60,200 at Mexico, and $50,100 at Louisiana.

An old woman, bent and gray and poorly clothed, boarded the Destroyer at the Sixth and Locust streets pier yesterday noon and purchased $1300 worth of bonds, paying cash. She carried the money, which was in bills and change, tied in a handkerchief, and remarked that Uncle Sam could have every cent she had "for the boys."

Movie Stars Coming

Marie Dressler, comedienne, vaudeville and film entertainer, will be in St. Louis Wednesday, and will speak at Twelfth and Olive streets and in a number of theaters. Douglas Fairbanks is scheduled to be here Saturday, and Mary Pickford next Sunday. Both will make a circuit of moving picture theaters, and Miss Pickford will attend the rally to be held by the North St. Louis Business Men's Association at Fairground Park next Sunday afternoon.

The foreign divisions of the Foreign Language Committee of the Liberty Loan Organization, Eighth Federal Reserve District, will hold meetings this afternoon in churches and halls.

The Italian Division will meet at the Patrick Henry school, Tenth and Carr streets, at 3 o'clock. The meeting will be addressed by Thomas L. Anderson, Postmaster Selph, Lieut. Giulio L. Arturo and Walter D. Thompson, chairman of the Foreign Language Committee.

The Polish Division will meet in Polish hall, 1840 Cass avenue, at 4 o'clock, and will be addressed by Judge Anderson, Selph and Thompson. The Rumanian Division will meet in their hall at Eighth and Barry streets at 2:30. The Hungarian Division will meet at 2423 North Broadway.

Chairman Thompson of the Foreign Language Committee has written a letter to 10,000 men who have applied for and received their first naturalization papers, urging them to buy Liberty Bonds. Many of them have responded.

Americans of foreign birth buying Liberty Loan Bonds will receive special certificates of purchase. These, it is announced, will serve as union cards of the Order of Patriotism and Loyalty.

Missouri Pacific Employes Plan to Take $500,000 in Bonds.

The Missouri Pacific system has organized its employes for a campaign on the Third Liberty Loan. J. F. Murphy, general manager, is chairman of the committees. The goal has been set at $500,000.

There is much rivalry between the various branches of employes. The yard department of the St. Louis terminals, under Chairman L. L. Kensinger, has had printed a card which is used in appealing for purchasers. It reads: "Feed our boys and buy them guns, to do away with the treacherous Huns. What will you have—Liberty Bond or an Iron Cross?"

Packing Company Employes Reported "100 Per Cent" for Loan.

Swift & Co. employes held a Liberty Loan Rally yesterday noon, with C. K. Urquard, introduced by Mayor Kiel, making an address. Others who spoke were John S. Leahy and Private Terrence Murphy of the 15th Battalion of Canadian Highlanders, nicknamed by the enemy "The Laddies of Hell." He gave a graphic description of trench warfare and the atrocities of the Germans.

Other speakers were W. B. Harrison and W. C. Watkins. A. E. Lewis, general manager of the five branch houses, reported a 100 per cent respond, every one of the 175 employes having purchased a bond. A. G. Green, general superintendent of the Dressed Beef Plant, reported 100 per cent of that plant.

Liberty Loan Demonstration in Webster Groves Today.

A Liberty Loan demonstration will be held at Webster Groves this afternoon, which will be marked by a parade and a patriotic program. The parade will form at Gore and Lockwood avenues at 3 p. m. In line will be mounted police from St. Louis and Webster Groves, the Webster Groves battalion of Home Guards, commanded by Maj. H. H. Simmons; members of the Red Cross, the congregations of five churches, Boy Scouts and other organizations.

Two airplanes from Scott Field are expected to circle over the town while the parade is in progress.

The speaking program will be held on the high-school campus. The speakers will be L. O. Wilson of St. Louis and two French officers sent by the Liberty Loan Committee. Former Gov. Folk, who was expected to speak, will not be present, having been called to Washington yesterday. Herbert Roundtree, chairman of the Webster Groves division of the Liberty Loan organization, will preside.

KANSAS CITY BANK DISTRICT REPORTS $31,442,650 SALES

Of Seven States, Oklahoma Leads With a Total of $7,517,800.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 13 (By A. P.).—Sales of bonds of the third Liberty Loan totaling $31,442,650 had been reported to reserve banks in the Tenth Federal Reserve district, it was announced tonight at the district headquarters here. This did not represent the amount actually sold in the district as many sales have not yet been reported to reserve banks and officials at headquarters were unable to make any estimate of the actual total.

These figures were made up of reports from all seven states in the district, as follows: Oklahoma, $7,517,800; Kansas, $6,746,300; Nebraska, $5,456,550; Colorado, $4,917,750; Missouri, $4,755,150; Wyoming, $1,463,500; New Mexico, $585,600.

Figures were available for only three cities, Kansas City, $1,576,600; Denver, $806,700; Omaha, $585,400.

American Bayonets Must Win Peace of Justice, McAdoo Says.

NEW ORLEANS, April 13 (By A. P.).—Secretary McAdoo in an address here tonight ending his Southern tour in behalf of the third Liberty Loan, scored shirkers and seditionists and the practice of partisan politics when it in any way obstructs the administration in the prosecution of the war.

In urging the people to do their utmost in helping the nation to bring victory to the arms of the United States and her co-belligerents, McAdoo declared that in the present situation "there cannot be any talk of peace except the peace of justice, rammed down the throats of the military autocrats of Europe with American bayonets.

"The vital issues confronting the nation," said McAdoo, "are of such character that no man with the red blood of freedom in his veins can fail to be aroused and stimulated by a determined purpose to serve to the utmost of his ability in this great time. If there be any other kind in America, our soil is no place for them. We cannot temporize with shirkers or seditionists; we cannot tolerate spies or traitors. Every man must square himself with an absolute Americanism.

"In this critical situation we cannot think of or play cheap partisan politics which is practiced too much, I am sorry to say, in America, and which even a great war does not wholly silence. That is the kind of politics we cannot for one moment permit to raise its head in this perilous time. I have infinite contempt for those who would take advantage of the situation in which our country finds itself today to advance any personal interest or ambition—public or private.

"It is a time for superlative sacrifice and those of us who find that because of age, incapacity or responsibilities we are not qualified for that splendid, noble service our sons are going out to perform for us, must make up our minds that, in equal measure with our sons on the front of the lines, we will support them to the limit back of the lines."

$1,000,000 IN BONDS SOLD BY SCHOOL CHILDREN HERE

Believed to Be One of the Best Records Established in Any City in Country.

Pupils in the public schools of St. Louis have sold nearly $1,000,000 worth of Liberty Bonds since the opening of the third campaign. Richard Murphy, president of the School Board, announced yesterday. Murphy believes it is one of the best records established by public school children in any city in the United States. He has set $5,000,000 as the goal for the entire campaign.

McKinley High School is leading, with nearly $150,000 worth of bonds sold, and Soldan High School is a close second, with more than $100,000 worth sold. Of the grade schools, the Hamilton School leads with $70,000 sold and the Walnut Park School, among the smaller grade schools, has sold $30,000.

GREEK AMBASSADOR'S APPEAL SELLS $500,000 LIBERTY BONDS

In Chicago Address His Able-Bodied Fellow-Countrymen Are Urged to Join Colors.

CHICAGO, April 13 (By A. P.).—George Roussos, Greek Ambassador to the United States, delivered an address at a mass meeting today at which $500,000 in subscriptions to the Liberty Loan were taken. Ambassador Roussos urged every able-bodied young Greek in the city to join the colors, and asked every man and woman to buy liberty bonds.

Subscriptions to the Liberty Loan in the Seventh Federal Reserve district were announced as follows: Cook County, Ill., $3,290,750; Illinois, outside Cook County, $19,083,600; Indiana $13,048,050; Iowa, $25,877,550; Michigan, $15,191,300; Wisconsin, $4,602,750.

New York's Liberty Loan Subscriptions for Six Days, $238,072,450.

NEW YORK, April 13 (By A. P.). —Liberty Loan subscriptions filed with the New York Federal Reserve Bank for the first six days of the campaign amounted to $238,072,450, a gain for the day of $31,512,400, it was announced tonight. At the end of the first six days of the last loan the official total wos $154,786,350.

Loan Oversubscribed $1,000,000 in Des Moines and County.

DES MOINES, Io., April 13 (By A. P.).—Des Moines and Polk County today went beyond their quota in the Third Liberty Loan campaign, reports showing more than $1,000,000 over-subscription. The quota was $7,000,000.

LOAN SALES OF $573,451,600 IN FIRST WEEK

Many Towns Pass Goal, but Are Told to Keep Up Work in Effort to Get Big Oversubscription.

ST. LOUIS' TOTAL IS $47,015,100

Detroit, Portland, Oregon, and Toledo Among Large Cities That Have Won Honor Flags.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—Over optimism which has prompted workers in many communities to suspend operations for reaching their quota or to slacken their efforts appeared today to officials as a serious menace to the success of the third Liberty Loan. This condition was evident in scores of reports to headquarters.

Federal reserve banks reported inquiries from local committee chairmen whether they should suspend advertising aftre a town's goal was reached, and other messages reflected a feeling that since the first week's subscriptions had been so much greater than those of the first week in the second loan, the success of this campaign was assured.

Messages from headquarters to communities which showed signs of letting up in their efforts stated emphatically that despite the success that has attended the campaign up to the present, hard work to the very last day is necessary, particularly if Secretary McAdoo's hopes of a large oversubscription are to be realized.

Total Now $573,451,600.

Official reports of subscriptions up to last night, representing one week of canvassing, gave a total of $573,451,600 for the entire country, excluding the Minneapolis Federal Reserve District, where the campaign will open Monday. This is $121,707,600 more than reported last night.

By districts subscriptions are as follows: New York, $231,800,000; Chicago, $83,812,000; Boston, $53,686,700; St. Louis, $47,015,100; Cleveland, $42,348,000; Philadelphia, $39,627,000; San Francisco, $23,858,300; Dallas, $19,925,950; Kansas City, $18,534,200; Richmond, $9,307,550; Atlanta, $3,536,800.

It was estimated tonight that more than 1000 communities have passed the goals set for them by district committees and have won honor flags. Many of these already have raised their flags with big local celebations and are starting on their way toward doubling their subscriptions and winning the honor star.

By districts the number of communities which have won honor flags is reported as follows:

Cleveland, 134; Boston, 119; Chicago, 114; New York, 84; Kansas City, 51.

Honor Flags to Large Cities.

Other districts have not reported their totals. The largest cities which have claimed the honor flag are Detroit, Portland, Ore.; Toledo, Oklahoma City, Erie, Pa.; Des Moines, Sioux City, Lynn, Mass.; Danville and Joliet, Ill., and Evansville, Ind.

Sioux City, with a quota of $2,400,000, already has $3,800,000 subscriptions, and is trying to double its quota. Oklahoma City reported $2,400,000 subscriptions, "and more coming," Cloverdale, Ore., has over subscribed its quota 10 times, and its flag will bear nine stars.

From Alaska comes word that that Ketchitken and Anchorage have been awarded flags.

Secretary McAdoo tonight closed a week's speaking tour in the South with an address at New Orleans. Next week he will go to Texas and Arizona.

Little Rock's Liberty Loan Subscription Reached $2,056,000.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 13 (Special).—Little Rock's Liberty Loan subscriptions tonight reached $2,056,000, following a parade of 5000 employes of Missouri Pacific and Rock Island railroad shops here.

Men at the Missouri Pacific shops subscribed for $113,250 worth, every department in both shops subscribed 100 per cent strong. The city's quota is $2,800,000.

CARELESS USE OF SOAP SPOILS THE HAIR

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—ADV.

CRITICISES APPOINTMENT OF LANE'S SECRETARY AS CAPTAIN

Congressman Says Country Is Scandalized by Granting of Commissions to Young Men of Prominent Families.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—Representative Anthony, Republican, of Kansas, in the House today attacked the War Department for discontinuing training camps for officers and for the appointment of men to be commissioned officers from among those subject to military service under the selective draft. Anthony especially criticised the appointment of Herbert A. Meyer, assistant to Secretary Lane, to be a Captain in the Signal Corps of the army. The War Department had submitted a report to the House in compliance with a resolution introduced by Anthony, justifying the appointment.

"The country," Anthony said, "has been scandalized by the publication in the Chicago Tribune of a list of 200 or 300 young men, most of them of prominent families, families of the millionaire class and of strong political connections, who in the face of promises of reform by the War Department, have received commissions.

"This, Mr. Speaker, in spite of the fact that Congress has been repeatedly assured by the War Department that no men of draft age would be assigned to a noncombatant position, where he could not even smell powder.

"There is no doubt but that the power of appointment in the War Department has been grossly abused for political reasons."

Anthony declared that Meyer was placed in the nonflying division of the aviation corps.

TRIAL OF 112 I. W. W. MEMBERS TO BE REOPENED TOMORROW

Entire Venire Was Excused Week Ago, Following Charges of Tampering.

CHICAGO, April 13 (By A. P.—Government prosecutors today completed their plans for the reopening of the trial of the members of the Industrial Workers of the World before Judge Landis Monday.

With the 112 defendants already before the court, it was announced that three other men who had been arrested in other cities probably would be brought to Chicago in time to be added to the list.

The delay of a week followed the excusing of the entire venire by Judge Landis after charges that the prospective jurymen had been approached by persons interested in the defense.

COW SETS NEW RECORD FOR 30 DAYS' BUTTER PRODUCTION

Mark of 185.28 Pounds Established By Fairview Korndyke Mata of Pine Grove Farm, New York.

BUFALO, N. Y., April 13 (By A. P.).—Fairview Korndyke Mata, a cow owned by Oliver Cabana Jr. of Pine Grove Farm has established a new world's record for thirty consecutive days' butter production. The new mark is 185.28 pounds, taking the honors from a dairy mate, Ormsby Jane Segis Aagie, who held it for two years at 183 pounds.

Fairview's milk mark was 3216.6 pounds as against 3241 pounds for Ormsby Jane.

75 PUPILS AND 7 TEACHERS ILL

Complaints Cause Harrison School at Normaandy to Close.

Seventy-five pupils and seven teachers of the Harrison School at Normandy, St. Louis County, are ill of a complaint like that which recently affected employes of the Emerson Electric Co., in St. Louis. The school, which has 290 pupils, has been closed since Thursday. None of those affected by the disease is in a serious condition. The symptoms are headache, backache, sore throat and fever.

The Harrison School is one of six schools in the Normandy district. There have been no cases reported from the other schools. Dr. George C. Eggers, County Health Commissioner, is making an investigation to determine the cause of the illness.

GETS LIFE TERM FOR MURDER

POTEA, Ok., April 13 (Special).—Thomas Williams, a farmer, was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment today for the murder of Morris White, a coal miner, who disappeared in 1916. A skeleton found tied in a tub that was recovered two months ago from a lake at Howe was identified by the shoes as the remains of White.

Robbery was the motive of the crime, according to the State.

25,000 March in Parade for Loan in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 13.—Aproximately 25,000 persons marched today in a parade which opened Milwaukee's campaign for the third Liberty Loan, while other countless thousands lined the sidewalks.

Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, Socialist Mayor, explained his failure to participate by saying he had not been invited. No special invitations were issued, according to Liberty Loan workers, who arranged the parade.

Liberty Loan Flyers Drop "Bombs" on Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 13.—Liberty Loan flyers bombed Chicago today. Two big training planes with the red, white and blue disc and star of the flying service on the under wings, dropped 100,000 printed appeals to buy bonds. They came from Rantoul flying field, 126 miles south of Chicago.

Exempted Miners Join Army.

LONDON, April 13.—Over 100 miners from Monmouthshire Valleys surrendered their exemption cards and voluntarily joined the army at one time.

3 AVIATORS TO DROP BOMBS TODAY IN FOREST PARK

Will Bombard Assemblage of School Children and Others With Liberty Loan Literature.

BAND CONCERT AT 3 O'CLOCK

Flyers to Go Over Webster Groves on Their Return to Scott Field, Near Belleville.

Three aviators from Scott Field, Lieuts. Yarbrough, Moon and Bardwell, will fly over Forest Park at 3 o'clock this afternoon and will bombard with Liberty Loan literature the assemblage of school children and others who are to gather for the singing of patriotic songs.

Maj. Cook and the three Lieutenants flew to the park yesterday afternoon and selected a landing place, which will probably be used for a landing this afternoon. Maj. Cook said the flyers would "cut up" when over the heads of the park gathering, and that from Forest Park they would go to Webster Groves, from which they will return to the field, near Belleville.

The patriotic program at the park will be held on the Art Hill slope, which was the center of the great loyalty demonstration of last Sunday afternoon. The reviewing stand will be occupied by city and school officials and members of the Liberty Loan organization.

A band concert, to begin at 3 o'clock, will be followed by the singing of "America" by the school children. The speakers will be Charles M. Hay, John Redmond and W. B. Harrison. A number of patriotic songs will be sung by the children, including the official Third Liberty Loan song, "What Are You Going to Do to Help the Boys?" The closing exercises will be the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and Retreat.

HOWARD E. COFFIN SAID TO HAVE RESIGNED FROM AIRCRAFT BOARD

Has Been Absent From Washington for Several Weeks—Worried Over Criticism.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—It is reported in Washington today that Howard E. Coffin, chairman of the Aircraft Board, has tendered his resignation to the President. The report could not be confirmed.

Coffin is said to be at his large estate on an island off the Carolina coast. He has been absent from Washington for several weeks.

Among Coffin's friends it is no secret that he has been worried over the continual criticism of aircraft production. While exercising only a nominal leadership, he has had to bear a large part of the blame for the failure to get production on a quantity basis.

MICHIGAN WOMAN TARRED AND FEATHERED BY WOMEN

Men Restrain Her Husband While Assailants Work—Accused of Making Disloyal Remarks.

FLINT, Mich. ,April 13 (By A. P.).—Genesee County authorities are investigating the tarring and feathering late last night of Mrs. Harley Stafford at Montrose, 15 miles northwest of this city.

A party of more than 60 persons, including a score of women, went to the home of Mrs. Stafford, where men bound her husband while the women took her outside and applied tar and feathers. She was accused of having made disloyal remarks.

100 INVALIDED SOLDIERS FROM FRANCE EXPECTED TOMORROW

CUMBERLAND, Md., April 13 (By A. P.).—The first contingent of 100 invalided soldiers is expected to arrive Monday at Markleton Sanitarium, near here, which has been taken over as a Government hospital. The recent fire damage to the big building has been repaired.

Another detachment of 200 wounded is expected about May 1.

STATUE OF FREDERICK THE GREAT IN WASHINGTON TAKEN DOWN

Bronze Figure Formerly at Western Facade of War College Building Packed Away for Safekeeping.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—The bronze statue of Frederick the Great, which ornamented the western facade of the War College building on the banks of the Potomac here, was removed in sections today and packed away for safekeeping.

It is understood the statue was removed at the instance of President Wilson, who has taken notice of bitter criticisms expressed in Congress and elsewhere over permitting the statue to remain.

The statue, which is of heroic size, was the personal gift of the German Emperor, William II, to the American nation during President Roosevelt's administration.

Officials feared that the statue might be defaced or destroyed.

It was recalled today that in the heated days of the Civil War the name of Jefferson Davis, Secretary of War in the days preceding the conflict and later President of the Southern Confederacy, was erased from the arch of a bridge spanning the Potomac. Many years afterward the name was replaced at the direction of Theodore Roosevelt, then President.

HOUSE ADOPTS CLASS ONE DRAFT QUOTA BASIS

War Department Substitute for State Population Plan Passes Lower Body.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—The Senate resolution embodying the War Department's plan to put the draft quota basis on the number of men in class one, instead of on state population, was adopted by the House today by a vote of 325 to 3. Representatives Gordon, Ohio, and Huddleston and Burnett, Alabama, voted against it.

An amendment by Representative Shallenberger of Nebraska, to base the quota on the total draft registration and liability to military service was voted down yesterday. Another amendment by the Nebraska member directing that credit be given for volunteers was adopted.

Before final action was taken Representative Harrison of Virginia withdrew his amendment providing for the exemption of farm labor.

CANDIDATE FOR SENATE FOUND GUILTY UNDER ESPIONAGE ACT

Articles Written by Minnesotan Tended to Obstruct Enlistments, Indictment Charged.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 13 (By A. P.).—James A. Peterson, candidate for the nomination for United States Senator, was found guilty by a jury in Federal Court here tonight on charges of violating the espionage act. He will be sentenced next Friday. Counsel for Peterson announced that an appeal probably would be taken.

Articles written by Peterson and published in the St. Paul and Minneapolis American, a weekly newspaper, tended to obstruct enlistments, the indictment charged.

TEXAS TO BE ON WHEATLESS BASIS, BEGINNING APRIL 15

Only Such Flour as Is on Hand in Stores May Be Had by Public.

HOUSTON, Tex., April 13 (By A. P.).—Effective April 15, only such flour as is on hand in Texas stores may be had by the public, and this flour is recommended as a reserve for babies, children and invalids. State Food Administrator Paden late today wired Herbert C. Hoover, United States Food Administrator, that as a result of assurances received from wholesale and retail grocers he felt safe in informing Mr. Hoover that effective April 15, Texas goes on a wheatless basis until June 10, and longer if necessary.

WIFE OF NOTED SOCIOLOGIST GIVES REFUGE TO RIVAL

Mrs. W. I. Thomas Takes Mrs. Granger to Her Home—Says Husband Was Indiscreet, Not Wrong.

SOLDIER'S WIFE FEARS A SHOOTING

Says Husband Will Return From France When He Hears of Her Arrest in Chicago.

CHICAGO., April 13 (By A. P.).—Prof. William Isaac Thomas, of the department of sociology of the University of Chicago, who was arrested with Mrs. Pearl Granger, the young wife of an army Lieutenant now serving in France, in a downtown hotel, Thursday, spent ten minutes in jail late this afternoon.

Thomas who is called 'Daddy" by Mrs. Granger was arrested on a warrant charging disorderly conduct and made returnable in the morals court Monday morning. He secured his release on $400 bond and immediately returned to his home where Mrs. Thomas, who was a member of the Ford peace mission, had given refuge to Mrs. Granger.

Prof. Thomas, who is 55 years old, with a national reputation and a family socially prominent, was called by his wife a "foolish boy, who had committed an unutterably stupid act, not wrong, but indiscreet." Mrs. Granger, who is 24 years old, with a baby boy living now with his grand parents, in Fort Smith, Ark., Mrs. Thomas referred to as an "immature child, dazzled by the distinguished professor."

Following the arrest of the professor and Mrs. Granger, after their trip from Washington, Mrs. Thomas motored down town to visit Mrs. Granger and her sister, Miss Delia Raines, an 18-year-old motion picture actress, and took both girls home with her to talk over the whole situation.

Calls Thomas Her Daddy.

"I'm terribly sorry for you," Mrs. Thomas told the other woman, "and I'll do all I can to help you."

Mrs. Granger's attitude perplexed special agents who questioned her. She exhibited few signs of remorse over her acquaintance with the professor.

"H'es my daddy,' she told questioners. "He's a bald-haded old dear.

"He showed me the little attentions married women seldom get from their husbands.

"He told me soon after we met that I was just a little tiny girl, and he hugged me and held me 'way up for a while, but I just thought of how much fun is taken to the graveyard, and I didn't care."

"When husband comes home, I will abide in happiness with him and him alone,' declared Mrs. Granger when asked what the further consequence of the affair might be and then she added:

"But there will be shooting—shooting I say, when he comes back, and if he learns it now he will immediately desert to come."

Her husband is a Lieutenant with Pershing's troops in France.

Prof. Thomas declared he was willing to stand the consequences.

"I am going to stick to Mrs. Granger through thick and thin," he said. "She is a nervous wreck as a result of the questionings she has gone through."

The professor declared that Mrs. Granger was under the care of a physician at his home.

Meanwhile, there was a hastily assembled meeting of the University of Chicago faculty, but it was understood in university circles that no action will be taken until next week.

U. S. AGENTS "INTERN" HAMILTON CLUB MEMBERS FOR AN HOUR

Doors Closed and Guarded While Report on Ground Glass in Food is Investigated.

CHICAGO, April 13 (By A. P.).—Several hundred guests and employes of the Hamilton Club were interned in the club for an hour at noon today when the doors were closed and guarded while Federal agents searched the building as the result of the alleged finding of particles of "ground glass" on an order for lamb chops served to a guest. No incriminating evidence was found, but samples of the food were taken for analysis.

YELLOW PAINT SMEARED ON SHOP

Joplin (Mo.) Delicatessen Man Accused of Pro-Germanism.

JOPLIN, Mo., April 13 (By A. P.).—The delicatessen shop of G. A. Brautigan here was smeared with yellow paint today as a result of his alleged pro-Germanism.

A crowd began forming when Brautigan is said to have declared he could whip, one at a time, the members of the vigilantes committee who did the painting. He was removed to Carthage. Saloons were closed temporarily.

315 St. Louis Doctors Have Been Commissioned Since Recruiting Began Last Year

Estimated Quota of City in New Call for 7000 Army Surgeons is 650.

Three hundred and fifteen St. Louis doctors have been commissioned in the United States Medical Reserve Corps since February, 1917, when recruiting for the unit was begun. Of the 315, 19 were commissioned as majors, 60 as captains, and 236 as first lieutenants. Of the entire number fewer than 40 have not yet been called.

Under the call for 7000 doctors, issued Friday, it is estimated that St. Louis should be able to furnish at least 650, although no definite quota has been set. At present there is one doctor to each group of 500 people in the city. There should be but one doctor to each group of 1000.

A census of the 1750 doctors in St. Louis is being taken by the Medical Auxiliary Committee of the Council of National Defense, under the direction of Maj. W. H. Luedde, in order to ascertain which doctors are eligible for military service. They will be classified in the Reserve Corps, for military service, and the Volunteer Corps, to care for the civilian population.

A list of the doctors, who have been commissioned, follows:

HEADACHE DOSING IS UNNECESSARY

Sloan's Liniment does away with internal treatments.

That splitting, crazing, shooting pain in the head, if of neuralgic origin, succumbs to the first application of Sloan's Liniment. It creates a counter-irritation that starts the blood pulsing normally and soothes in its prompt relief.

Apply without rubbing—for it penetrates—for rheumatic twinges, sore, stiff muscles and joints, sprains, strains, pains, sciatica, and bruises. Clean, don't stain the skin. Generous sized bottles at all druggists.

No increase in price—25c, 50c & $1.

German Warship Stranded in Baltic.

AMSTERDAM, April 13 (By A. P.).—The German battleship Rhineland, which was reported to have struck a mine and sunk, has not gone down, according to a Berlin dispatch. She is said to have stranded near the Aland Islands, in the Baltic, in a fog on Wednesday, and efforts are being made to float her again.

OPERETTA WRECKED ON 'GERMAN-LIKE' SONG

Belleville Township High School Students Refuse to Sing About "German Regiment."

Students at the Belleville Township High School stated yesterday that plans for an operetta, which was to have been given by the pupils' chorus have fallen through, due to their refusal to sing a song which they considered pro-German.

The objectionable song, they said, was played and sung before the male chorus Thursday afternoon by Ludwig Carl, instructor in music and French. They understood that Prof. Carl was the author. The words ran as follows:

"Hurrah, hurrah for that German regiment!
O we are proud
That we should shout,
Mit joy, also mit glee.
For we are a gallant regiment,
As you can plainly see.
Chorus.
"We left our dear old vaterland,
To dis land did we went,
To fight mit merry England
Mit dot German regiment."

It is related that Prof. Carl called upon the students to sing the song when he had finished, but that only about six out of 60 obeyed. The teacher remonstrated, the students say, whereupon nearly all of the chorus arose, walked out and registered a complaint with Principal H. G. Schmidt. The pupils declared to him that they were true Americans and would under no circumstances sing the song.

It is reported that the incident will be brought to the attention of the Township High School Board of Education. Principal Schmidt declined to discuss the matter this morning.

Carl denied that he had written the verses quoted or any other part of the operetta. The composition is a patriotic cantata, he declared, named "Old Glory," which is being played at schools all over the country, and which shows regiments of various nationalities rejoicing over the opportunity to serve under the Stars and Stripes.

"The operetta was approved by Principal Schmidt," said Carl, "and he said there was no disloyalty in it. There is no reason for any excitement about the matter."

Carl said it would not be decided until school reassembles Monday, whether an attempt will be made to go on with the production.

Lecture on Boy Problem.

A lecture on "The Boy Problem" will be given before the Clifton Heights School Patrons' Association, at the schoolhouse, Southwest and Clifton avenues, Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock.

W. H. STEAD, ILLINOIS POLITICIAN, ENDS LIFE

Former Attorney-General's Body Found in Room in Chicago Hotel.

CHICAGO, April 13 (By A. P.).—W. H. Stead, former Attorney-General of Illinois, and present Director of Trade and Commerce in the administration of Gov. Lowden, killed himself at a hotel here today. He was 60 years old.

Stead's home is at Ottawa. He was one of the most prominent Republican leaders in the State. He registered at the Great Northern Hotel Thursday night. The body was discovered shortly after noon today. There was a bullet hole in the head and life apparently had been extinct for about four hours.

Stead's letter to his brother, as given out at the home of the latter, said that he was feeling depressed—had not slept for three nights. He spoke of going to his former home near Alexandria, Minn., and then again of "taking a long vacation."

"If anything should happen to me I have made disposition of my property," he wrote. His estate is said to be comparatively a small one—thirty or forty thousand dollars.

Lecturer Held at Springfield, Mo.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 13 (By A. P.).—The Rev. J. J. Mastin, charged with misuse of the mails, waived preliminary examination here today before United States Commissioner Pepperdine. He was held for trial at Harrison, Ark., next October, and released on $1000 bond. Mastin has been giving lectures in Southern Missouri and Northern Arkansas.

What Are You Going to Do?

THE time is coming when it will be difficult to make local shipments and take care of customers a hundred miles or so away unless you follow the example of thousands of keen business men and buy dependable motor trucks. You can be independent of traffic conditions, give better service to your customers, and still keep your cost of hauling at a low figure, by investing in

INTERNATIONAL MOTOR TRUCKS

Then you can make your local shipments on time as promised, help relieve the congestion at railway terminals, and keep your business going—all at a reasonable cost.

The International engine and the International internal gear drive rear axle are mechanical features that will interest you because they are responsible for the "built-in" mileage that is found in every International Motor Truck.

In the International line of motor trucks there are 7 models to choose from—a size to meet almost every requirement, at prices ranging from $1450 to $2550 for the chassis (cash f. o. b. factory), with suitable bodies for every business.

See the International Motor Truck at the local dealer's showroom. Telephone or write to the nearest company branch listed below for information.

DECLARES FRANCE STILL HAS ARMY OF 5,000,000 MEN

French Lieutenant, City Club Speaker, Says 3,250,000 Are Under Arms and Remainder Behind Lines.

WILL MAKE GOOD ON GUNS PROMISED U. S.

Twenty Divisions of American Forces Will Be Supplied With Artillery by First of July.

Lieut. Dewierzbicki of the French army, when speaking in behalf of the Third Liberty Loan at the City Club luncheon yesterday, declared that France had promised artillery for 20 divisions of the American army by July 1 and would make good that promise. Artillery, he pointed out, would greatly reduce the percentage of casualties. He presented interesting figures on the sacrifices the French had made contributing to war loans and tax assessments, and also statistics of the man power and casualties suffered by France.

Before the war Lieut. Dewierzbicki was a lecturer on art and literature in French colleges and in the United States. He spent the winters from 1897 to 1914 in New York, and was in France when war was declared. Being past 50 years of age, he enlisted as interpreter and was assigned to the staff of a British army, with which he remained until last February.

Touching on the battles at the Marne and Verdun and the German drive for the channel ports, Lieut. Dewierzbicki declared that Gen. Foch, now in supreme command of the allied armies, was entitled to a great share of credit for these French and British victories, and that France had the greatest confidence in Gen. Foch's strategy.

When French Displayed Tenacity.

"At Verdun, when we declined the magnanimous offer of assistance proffered by the English," Lieut. Dewierzbicki said, "and when the French general staff sent out word that France would hold and that the Germans would not pass, the world stood aghast.

"The world said: 'Why, hello! Here are those sprightly, airy, highly perfumed Frenchmen displaying the tenacity that belongs to Anglo-Saxons! They are actually holding off the great German army! Incredible!'

"And the world continued: 'It isn't the same flippant, pleasure-loving France; it is a new France; France has been born again.'

"The resistance of the French, both civil and military, is intense, calm, regular, continuous. Tenacity does not belong exclusively to the Anglo-Saxon."

The speaker warned against the tendency in some parts of the world to underrate the German fighter. He said the German was intelligent, intellectual, cultured and efficient.

"And he excels particularly in ruthless destruction. There never has been a Hun or a devil who can destroy like the German soldier of today. I have beheld fine forests reduced to ashes, sawed orchards, ruined roads and once-flourishing towns level to desolate wastes. In one city of 14,000 inhabitants the only things that escaped total destruction were two plaster busts."

Statistics on German Invasion.

Reading statistics from a notebook, Lieut. Dewierzbicki said:

"Before the war France had a population of 39,000,000 and annual revenues of about 32,000,000,000 francs, which averaged about $900 for each family. In 1914 the revenue of the United States, if equally apportioned, would have been $1800 for each family.

"The invasion of Northern France by Germany deprived France of 4,000,000 people, 2554 townships. Two hundred and forty-seven other towns were under fire and 753 towns and villages were entirely destroyed. Altogether about 14,000 square miles of territory was wrested from us.

"This territory supplied 67 per cent of our coal, 90 per cent of iron, 85 per cent of pig iron, 94 per cent of combed woolen mills, 50 per cent of carded woolen mills, 50 per cent of the cotton industry and more than 87 per cent of our beets. The annual production of the invaded district amounted to about 5,000,000,000 francs, or about one-sixth of our total annual revenue.

"All healthy men between the ages of 20 and 48 were mobilized for a total of about 7,000,000. Of this number about 1,000,000 have been killed and a million maimed and invalided. Other losses were offset by recruiting, and the army is now 5,000,000 strong. Of this number about 3,250,000 are in the fighting line and about 1,750,000 are behind the lines in noncombatant military work.

"The total expenditures for the war to Jan. 1, 1918, amounted to 106,500,000,000 francs, about $21,300,000,000. In 1914 we expended 1,680,000,000 francs, and in 1917, after two and one-half years of war, 3,500,000,000 francs.

"If our loans were equally apportioned they would show a per capita of $333. To make a similar showing, the United States would have to raise $37,000,000,000.

"But considering that the average family income in America is double that in France, and were Americans compelled to make the sacrifices we have made, on that basis you would have to raise $74,000,0000,000 to equal our achievement.

"Before the war our national debt was 25,000,000,000 francs, about $5,000,000,000, representing a per capita of $124. The United States national debt was $3,000,000,000, representing a per capita of $27, or about one-fifth that of France.

"The French army now has more than 15,000 heavy guns and the factories produce more than 300,000 shells daily. We provide several hundred big guns each month for the American army."

Lieut. Dewierzbicki was preceded by Eugene Lewis, a Texan, who, with his two brothers, has seen service with the Canadian army in France. He fought at Ypres, Paschendaele and Cambrai in 1916-17. He was "gassed" at Ypres and wounded at Cambrai. At Paschendaele he was one of 15 survivors of 500 men sent "over the top," he said, and in that same battle he saw 45,000 Germans killed and wounded in 15 minutes.

Vienna Version of Peace Letter of Emperor Ascribes It to Duchess of Parma

Charles Is Said to Have Added a Few Lines Under His Signature Creates Much Excitement in Capital.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—The Austrian semi-official explanations of the peace letter of Emperor Charles, according to a dispatch today from France, is that it was written by the Duchess of Parma, mother of Empress Zita, to her son, Count Sixtus de Bourbon, and that the Emperor must have added certain lines over his signature. The Vienna view is that this explains how Premier Clemenceau was able to say that the letter was signed by the Emperor.

The dispatch from France concludes:

"The following information was telegraphed Friday evening from Berne which gives us an idea of the effect which may be produced by the revelations of Clemenceau. It has been possible this morning to note the impression caused by this publication among the journalists of the Central Powers living at Berne. During an extremely animated conversation this morning in which several German and Austrian journalists took part, one of them exclaimed with the approval of his interlocutors: 'It is a veritable bomb that has just exploded. He will have to abdicate.'

"Before the publication of the text of the letter the Austro-German press, conforming with the insane lies of the Emperor Charles and his Minister, had the audacity to declare that it was a pure invention. The confusion produced in the camps of the Central Empires must be nearly as great as was their impudence of yesterday. They will attempt to throw the responsibility of the famous letter upon certain members of the imperial family."

Official Statement Says Charles' Letter Was Falsified.

AMSERDAM, April 13.—An official statement issued by Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, "by all highest command" declares that Emperor Charles' letter published by the French was falsified. It says that Prince Sixtus began the correspondence and that the Emperor wrote a purely private letter, not mentioning Belgium, but saying:

"I would have used all my personal influence in favor of the French claims for the return of Alsace-Lorraine if these claims were just. They are not, however."

The Vienna newspapers make various explanations, some saying that the letter is a forgery and others that it was garbled.

KAISER THANKS CHARLES FOR HIS LOYALTY MESSAGE

Repudiation of Alsace Lorraine Letter Shows Our Solidarity, He Says.

VIENNA, via Basel, Switzerland, April 13 (By A. P.).—Emperor William in a telegram to Emperor Charles cordially thanks the Austrian Emperor for his telegram repudiating the affirmation of Premier Clemenceau of France.

The German Emperor's telegram to Emperor Charles reads:

"Accept my heartiest thanks for the letters in which you repudiate the assertion of the French Premier regarding your attitude towards the French claims on Alsace Lorraine as entirely baseless, and once again accentuate the solidarity of the interests which exist between us and our Empires.

"I hasten to tell you that in my eyes there is no need whatever for such assurance on your part, for I have not for a moment been in doubt. You have made our cause your own. In like measure we stand for the rights of your monarchy.

"The heavy battles in these years clearly demonstrate this for every one who will see. They have only drawn the bond closer. Our enemies, who are unable to do anything against us in honorable battle, do not recoil from the most sordid and lowest means. We must put up with that that all the more it is our duty ruthlessly to grapple with and beat the enemy in all the war theaters."

500 MEN SOUGHT HERE FOR NITRATE PLANT

Government Is Speeding Muscle Shoals (Ala.) Erection to Completion by August.

An agent of the Air Nitrates Corporation, which is constructing a $50,000,000 Government nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala., is in St. Louis to obtain 500 white laborers for work in erecting the extensive plant. Between 5000 and 6000 men are employed in the erection of buildings and the laying out of a model village for workmen, and the Government plans to increase this number to 15,000 men so that production of nitrates, essential in the manufacture of explosives, can begin not later than August.

In connection with the development of the plant, which itself will be the largest nitrate company in the United States, one of the largest dams in the world is being constructed across the Tennessee River at Muscle Shoals, Ala., in order to generate water power for the operation of the company.

The nitrates are taken from air by means of a patented process now successfully used in a large plant in Norway. Congress appropriated the money for the plant last fall and work started in October. Although production probably will start next August, it will be a year before the entire plant is completed.

W. H. Mumms, the representative of the company, who is in St. Louis, said that every possible comfort and convenience is being provided for the men employed in building the plant. Within two months a model village, where houses will be rented to men at cost, will have been completed and provision will have been made for 3000 families.

The laborers wanted now will receive $3.30 for a 10-hour day. Free living quarters are provided and meals are served at 25 cents each, Mumms said. Enemy aliens are not eligible.

Why Gray Hair Is No Longer Necessary

New, Clean, Easy Harmless Treatment. First bottle gives satisfaction

After having been tried and proven successful by hundreds of their customers, leading stores are recommending "Canute Water for Gray Hair" to those who wish the color of their hair restored. Famous-Barr Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores, Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co. sell it, and all questions one naturally asks are here plainly answered.

IS IT ABSOLUTELY SAFE TO USE? By all means—yes. You may use Canute Water for Gray Hair without the slightest fear or injury to the hair, scalp or eyes, as it contains none of the injurious elements of the ordinary hair dye, being entirely FREE from acid, sugar of lead, sulphur or coal tar products of any kind—making it harmless to the hair and scalp as ordinary water. It is for external use only.

WILL IT SOIL THE HANDS OR SCALP? No, it will not. Our own patented process prevents it from staining the hands or scalp. Canute Water for Gray Hair is an especially clean, convenient treatment—not being sticky or greasy. It restores so naturally and evenly no one will be able to tell you are using anything.

IS IT A DYE? Positively not. That is just the thing it isn't. Canute Water is a simple and natural method of reviving the youthful color of hair that has turned gray from age, illness or other cause. Proof that Canute Water is not a dye is that it has no numbered shades—the same bottle is good for all shades of hair, while, as the reader knows, dyes are numbered 1, 2 or 3.

HOW IS IT APPLIED? Very easily. Just wet your hair with it and allow to dry in good, fresh air. Nothing hard about that, is there? Apply on hair once daily, and day by day observe the hair becoming darker and darker. And by the time you have finished the first bottle the youthful color of your hair will be restored. It will then remain that way, and simply require a retouching once every week or two as the hair grows.

CAN THE DARKENED COLOR WASH OR RUB OFF? The color will not wash off. Shampoo the hair all you like—you may even use a hot curling iron, as not even that will effect the color. On the contrary, the more you shampoo the hair the softer and fluffier the hair will become. Remember, it will only be necessary to use Canute Water for Gray Hair afterward once every week or two on the new hair that grows.

Believe us, after a week you'll thank yourself for having tried it. Sold at the above-mentioned stores for $1.00 a bottle or by mail direct. Friedman Canute Co., 27 East 22d St., New York City.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Clean Up and Paint Up Your Automobile

This is the time of year to fix up old things—to freshen up and remove the weather-worn appearance of houses, clothes and automobiles.

Our shop is the Mecca for motor car owners, for here we renew cars from top to bottom so that they will look well and wear well for another year or so.

A coat or two of paint will change the whole appearance of a car and make it last longer.

A new top cover will take away the annoyance of leaking roofs. A little time on wheels will stop the irritating squeaks of rims and wheels.

All of these things we do and do well at a moderate price. Stop in some time and let us explain.

NATION FACING GREATEST CRISIS, HOOVER DECLARES

Food Administrator Telegraphs Boston Mass Meeting That Wheat for Allies Must Come From Savings.

STREAM OF SUPPLIES MUST CONTINUE

Massachusetts Administrator Says Critics Who Charge Waste From "Official Muddling" Are Disloyal.

BOSTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—Critics of the Federal Food Administration who assert that the country is being treated to "an exhibition of food hysteria," and that there has been frightful waste through "official muddling and meddling," were characterized as either disloyal or irresponsible, in an address by Henry B. Endicott, State Food Administrator, at a patriotic mass meeting tonight.

A telegram from National Food Administrator Hoover, read at the meeting, said:

"We stand at the threshold of perhaps the greatest crisis we have ever faced as a nation. We have staked our fortunes and the lives of our sons and sunk our personal desires in the struggle for liberty. These men who have gone over need never question our support, but it is just as important to continue the stream of supplies, especially wheat flour, to valiant Britain, France and Italy, without whose assistance and unimpaired morale our forces could accomplish nothing.

"The allies use every possible cereal substitute and yet require some wheat flour to bind their scanty loaf. This flour must be furnished and because our surplus has long been exhausted it can only be supplied from our saving. From all sections of the country, from the organizations and individuals have come messages pledging complete abstention from wheat until next harvest. I am hopeful that the response will be nation-wide from all who can afford it and we will be able to give to the women and children and soldiers of our allies the bread they ask."

Endicott asserted that the total shipment of foodstuffs from the United States and Canada to our allies during the month of March were 2,200,000,000 pounds.

"This does not look like 'muddling and meddling,'" he said, adding that not only wheat but rye, barley and corn were being shipped.

ALTON ENTERTAINMENT FUND CAUSED LARRIMORE'S TROUBLE

Officer Dismissed and Given Prison Sentence Was in Charge of Guard at Bridge.

It was learned yesterday by the Post-Dispatch reporter that fraudulent conversion of $335, the proceeds of an entertainment given in Alton by B Company, First Regiment, National Guard of Missouri, was the charge on which Capt. Frank R. Larrimore of that company, now a part of the 138th United States Infantry at Camp Doniphan, has been sentenced to serve a year in the disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth. His sentence carries with it dismissal from the army.

B Compay was detailed, early last summer, to guard the Alton bridge, and it was during this stay that the company gave its entertainment in the Temple Theater. Capt. Larrimore made restitution of the funds before his trial by courtmartial, but he failed to offer any defense or explanation regarding the charge.

Congressman Dyer said in Washington yesterday that renewed efforts would be made to have Larrimore's sentence commuted by the President. He said Larrimore had written hi mthat the offense charged was absolutely of a technical nature, that every dollar was accounted for, and that these facts were not properly brought out at the trial.

ST. LOUISAN GOING TO FRANCE AS PORTUGUESE BALLOON PILOT

Lieut. H. L. Meyers Gets Discharge From U. S. Army to Enter Aero Service of European Nation.

OMAHA, Neb., April 13 (Special).—Lieut. Henry Lee Meyer, son of W. A. Meyers of St. Louis, who has been at Fort Omaha Government balloon school for several months, has secured an honorable discharge from the United States army and has entered the aero service of the Portuguese Government. Lieut. Meyers is tonight en route to Washington, where he will receive his orders from the Portugal Minister and will sail at once for France, where he will be connected with the army of Portugal as a balloon pilot.

Young Meyers secured balloon training under Maj. Lahm, famous as a balloonist, and holds a license as a balloon pilot. He is a graduate of Washington University, St. Louis, and was a member of Company D, Fourth Balloon Squadron, of Fort Omaha.

When the Fourth left for France two months ago Lieut. Meyers was sick and was unable to accompany the men he had trained.

WAR SITUATION EXPECTED TO BRING IRISH QUESTION TO A PACIFIC SOLUTION

Restraint Exhibited by Leaders in Opposition to Conscription—All Proclaim Belief in Cause of Great Britain.

LONDON, April 13 (By A. P.).—There are strong hopes in London that the Irish troubles will undergo a gradual and pacific solution. An important fact is that the menace of critical events in France overshadows all other considerations and imposes restraint upon even all the factions of Irishmen and their ardent British supporters.

This restraint has been exhibited in several ways. If former ex-Premier Asquith had translated his judgment against conscription into a motion to reject the Government's proposal last night he might have arrayed a majority of the members of the House against it. This would have meant a change of Government. But Asquith considered that an impossible thing to propose under the present circumstances and confined himself to registering his conviction that conscription in Ireland would be a great mistake. As a result the minority which voted against conscription was composed of Irish Nationalists and a few Liberals, most of them pacifists and generally listed as faddists.

John Dillon and Joseph Devlin, who have been jointly filling John Redmond's shoes as leaders of the Irish party, might have made a much more troublesome fight than they did, if they had felt strongly enough to go to extremes, they might have repeated the old scenes of the Parnell days, when Irish members were dragged out of the House by the police and popular expectation looked forward to such action. But they refrained from parliamentary obstruction and limited their offensive to strong words.

Upholds England's Fight.

Both of them tempered their fight against conscription with the statement that they believed the cause of Great Britain in the war was a just cause. Devlin went further by proclaiming his desire to fight for it. This attitude is bound to have an influence in Ireland.

Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader and his Ulster followers, who generally manage to kindle all the animosity there is latent among the Irish factions whenever any Irish question is raised, also exhibited restraint by remaining silent instead of denouncing Irishmen who oppose conscription as they might have done.

The Nationalist and Sinn Fein newspapers in Ireland maintain a belligerent tone, but Asquith once described this mostly "contingent and rhetorical belligerency." A striking example was recently given by events in County Claire. Lieutenant-General Mahon, commander of British forces in Ireland, proclaimed martial law. There were, as a consequence, rioting and attacks on the police. Small detachments of soldiers took charge of the strategical points. There has been no trouble since, while the people have been very friendly to the soldiers, and given them hospitality which was unheard of in the Land League times.

Ireland is enjoying a prosperity heretofore unknown. She is the chief feeder for England. Her farmers are becoming rich. They are the backbone of the country and rebellious events would destroy their property.

The Sinn Feiners, of course, are irreconcilable. But they represent none of the property interests of the country.

The foregoing are the features of the situation which cause optimism. On the other side is the opposition of the Catholic clergy to conscription.

Leaders to Meet.

The meeting between John Dillon and Joseph Devlin and the Sinn Fein leaders to come at an early date may develop into a conciliatory influence rather than otherwise.

The Rev. Joseph W. Brady, administrator of Cardinal Logue's cathedral parish in Armagh, in a letter to the Freeman's Journal, says:

"Following the eminent example set us a few years ago by Sir Edward Carson, the priests and people of this cathedral parish of Armagh will hold a series of meetings on next Sunday for the purpose of founding a solemn league and covenant against conscription. The methods employed, however, will not be those sanctioned by Sir Edward—that is, arms, drilling, etc. The constitutional weapon of passive resistance employed so successfully by thousands of conscientious objectors in England, Scotland and Wales for years recently will be quite sufficient and we have the highest theological authority for its use. But there is no time to be lost."

The new home rule bill will propose a parliament for the whole of Ireland in which the Irish Unionists would have a little less than half of the whole representation, it is understood, according to the Daily News, and in which the representation would be so devised and supplemented by the Unionist nominations as to secure a coalition Irish government of the north and south.

The control of customs and excise would be retained by the Imperial Government, and not given to the Irish Government, save by an act passed hereafter in the Imperial Parliament, but an Irish representative would be appointed on the Board of Customs to safeguard Irish interests and a joint Treasury Advisory Committee would be established as a link between the two Parliaments in customs matters.

Control of the police and postoffice would be retained by the Imperial Parliament until after the war, when it would be given automatically to the Irish Parliament.

Representation of Ireland in the Imperial Parliament would be as provided for in the last home rule act.

Dillon and Devlin to Meet Sinn Fein Leader Next Week

DUBLIN, April 13.

JOHN DILLON, chairman of the Nationalist party, and Joseph Devlin, Nationalist member of Parliament for Belfast, have accepted the Lord Mayor's invitation to meet Prof. Edward De Valera, a Sinn Fein leader, and Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein organization, next week, for a conference on the conscription question.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—ADV.

TELLS OF ALLEGED 'FRAME-UP' IN HIS TRIAL FOR MURDER

Charles Koob Says Co-Defendant Killed Shoe Man, but Planned to Put Blame on Him.

The climax to a day of dramatic incidents yesterday in the trial in the Circuit Court at Edwardsville of Charles (Dutch) Koob and Nathan (Baldy) Walston, charged with the murder last September of Abraham Schwartz of 1422 O'Fallon street, St. Louis, a shoe merchant, came with the introduction of a shorthand report of a conversation between Koob and Walston, made while the shorthand reporter, ostensibly a prisoner, occupied a cell adjoining that of the defendants in the Granite City jail.

The shorthand notes were made by Arthur Ruedi, court reporter for Division No. 2 of the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction. Ruedi was on the witness stand three hours reading his notes. Ruedi told how he and another court reporter were put in the cell as vagrants and how they feigned a drunken stupor while listening to the conversation of the defendants.

According to Ruedi's notes, Walston spent several hours coaching Koob as to how he was to testify in order to baffle the prosecution.

"But I've already told them you said to me that you killed Schwartz," Koob was reported as saying to his companion.

"That's all right," the answer of Walston read, "you were not under oath and that can't be introduced as evidence, so just declare you have forgotten it."

Trial Is Interrupted.

There was another dramatic scene preceding the introduction of this testimony.

Koob, interrupting the State's testimony, announced that he "wanted tell it all." He then proceeded to confess his part in the robbery of Schwartz; charged that Walston killed Schwartz, and that James N. Bandy, former State's Attorney, and now Walston's lawyer, tried to "frame up" to lay all the blame on Koob.

"I want to make a statement—I'm going to tell it all," Koob announced as he arose. "Walston and I had been to Venice that night, and lost our week's wages in a craps game. As we were walking home, broke, we met Schwartz, and Walston suggested that we rob him.

"Walston held him up. Then he handed me the revovlver, while he turned Schwartz's pockets wrong side out. Schwartz had been making collections, and $17 fell out. I picked that up, and left. Before I started, Schwartz called us by name, and said he would get us in the morning. Walston stayed with him.

Says Walston Told of Killing.

"Next day Walston took me to his home. He said that he had marched Schwartz 3½ miles to Gabaret's slough, a lonely swamp, and there had shot him to death, and took his clothing. He showed me the clothes he took from Schwartz."

Koob, relating Walston's alleged conversation, said Walston told him Schwartz begged for his life, saying: "Oh, please don't kill me; don't kill me; I have a wife and five children. I won't say a word about this, if you will just not kill me. We'll forget all about it."

Koob testified that Walston said: "I came pretty close to letting him go when he begged that way, because I have a wife and two children myself. But I knew he would snitch, so I shot him in the hand and then shot him several times more. Then I took his clothes off. You are a pretty good fellow, but if you snitch I'll kill you, too."

When Koob had finished his testimony, Attorney Bandy started to cross examine him. "You have been promised something — didn't the State's Attorney promise to let you go if you would make this statement?" Bandy asked.

Reference to Frame-Up.

"No, he didn't promise me anything," Koob asserted. "The only man who promised me anything was you. You said you would get me out of this if I would keep my mouth shut. Then I found out you were framing up to lay al lthe blame on me. That is why I discharged your son as my lawyer."

Harold Bandy, the son, previously had been engaged as Koob's attorney, while the elder Bandy represented Walston. Koob told Judge Gilham a few days ago that he suspected a "frame-up," and the Court appointed another lawyer to defend Koob.

Walston and Koob are each about 35 years old, and both were employed at the Granite City steel mills when Schwartz was killed. Koob is married.

Koob's former roommate previously had testified that the day after Schwartz was killed, Koob showed him $17, and said: "We stuck up a shoemaker last night and got that." A man and woman also testified that Koob and Walston stopped them near the place that night, but allowed them to go when they said they only had 10 cents. They met Schwartz near there, they said.

Schwartz's nude body, pierced by several bullets, and hacked with a knife, was found the next afternoon by hunters. He was 34 years old. His store was in Granite City.

Bishop Quayle Here Tuesday.

FIFTH ANNUAL SALON OF LOCAL ARTISTS OPENED

Display at Artists' Guild Consists of 127 Paintings, Six Etchings and 16 Works of Sculpture.

The fifth annual salon of St. Louis artists was opened with a reception and advance view for the Artists' Guild and the St. Louis Are League last night.

The collection of paintings and sculpture, with a fewetchings occupies three galleries in the Guild, Union and Von Versen avenues, and will be open to the public free every afternoon for several weeks, on Sundays from 3 to 5 p. m., and weekdays from 1 to 5.

The display contains 127 paintings, six etchings and 16 works of sculpture. These were chosen by a jury of seven artists elected by the artists.

The collection contrasts strongly with those of former years when no prizes and special incentives to the artists were offered. Another jury, of notable artists from other cities, will meet two weeks hence to judge the exhibition and award ten prizes of a total value of $1300. These are the St. Louis Art League prize for the best work of art produced in the year in St. Louis, the Chamber of Commerce prize for the best St. Louis scene, two landscape prizes, two figure painting prizes, a prize for decorative painting, a prize for etchings and two prizes for sculpture.

Among the stronger competitors for the Art League prize are Fred G. Charles F. Galt, Edmund H. Wuerpel and Gustav F. Goetsch, painters, and Holm and Bringhurst in sculpture. Carpenter has several colorful pictures which it was confidently said would "stack up" against the prize winners in any of the current American exhibitions. Galt has a delightfully sympathetic portrait of the artist's mother.

Obvious competitors for the Chamber of Commerce prize are Berninghaus, Frank B. Nuderscher, Galt and C. K. Gleeson.

The prize for decorative painting, offered by Edward Mallinckrodt, brought out several efforts. Ruth Kate Felker, Mrs. Watherine E. Cherry, Gleeson, Galt, and Carpenter are strong bidders for this honor. The landscape prizes, offered by Charles Wiggins and W. K. Bixby, and the prizes for figure painting offered by George Warren Brown and "A friend of the Guild" have numerous prospective winners.

Victor Holm's bust of Abraham Lincoln and his life-sized model of the statue of "America Defending Civilization" are among the striking sculptures. Even more popular was Holm's small figure of a woman called "Somewhere in Belgium." Robert P. Bringhurst exhibits an admired portrait of the artist's daughter, a likeness of the late Isaac Taylor an da portrait of Colin Cameron.

UNIVERSITY CITY LOAN MEETING

700 Pupils Drill and Several Thousand Citizens Hear Addresses.

A patriotic mass meeting to increase the sale of Liberty Bonds, attended by several thousand residents of University City, was held yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the University City School Board, on the campus of the high school, Delmar and Kingsland avenues.

The meeting was opened at 4 o'clock by a drill of 700 pupils of the four grade schools. Patriotic addresses were made by Luther T. Ward, president of the School Board; Jackson Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce; ex-Gov. Folk, Lieut. Cameron of the British-Canadian Recruiting Mission and Sergeant-Major George Fellowes, who has recently returned from France, after being wounded at Ypres, and later escaping from a German prison camp.

33 BODIES FOUND IN STATE ASYLUM FIRE IN OKLAHOMA

Three Buildings, All Frame, Were Destroyed by Flames at State Hospital for Insane at Norman.

LIST OF THE MISSING IS INCREASED TO 37

Blaze Believed to Have Started From Defective Wiring—Many Helpless Patients Were Saved by Rescuers.

NORMAN, Okla., April 13 (By A. P.).—Thirty-three bodies, burned and charred beyond recognition today had been taken from the ruined building that housed Ward No. 14 of the State Hospital for the Insane here, ravaged by fire that started at 3 o'clock this morning. Three buildings, all frame structures, were destroyed, and a fourth damaged severely. The list of missing tonight stood at thirty-seven, having been increased to that number from thirty-six this afternoon.

According to the best information obtainable the fire started from defective wiring in a linen closet in Ward No. 14. A night watchman discovered the blaze shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, and when the door had stood open for a few moments, while the watchman ran for help, the floor of the building took fire and the blaze quickly spread throughout the first floor of the two-story structure. Thirty-five helpless negroes were carried quickly from the adjoining ward, No. 15, but the blaze in Ward 14 had gained too much headway to allow any effective rescue work there and it was in this ward that all the deaths occurred.

Ward No. 10, a one-story frame structure, next caught fire. Eighty negro patients were removed from it, most of them having to be carried out in the arms of rescue workers.

A two-story structure containing wards 13 and 16 next started to blaze. These two wards contained eighty-eight violent patients, most of them negroes. Some of the patients in this ward fought their rescuers as they were being taken from the building.

The fire here was extinguished before the structure was totally destroyed.

Efforts to arouse the patients in Ward 14 shortly after the fire was discovered failed of any great results, only a few of them, those nearest the doors, escaping death. All were burned beyond identification.

Nurses Help Fight Flames.

Sixty employes of the hospital, among them many nurses, distinguished themselves by their excellent work in rescuing patients and in fighting the flames. Women nurses risked their lives by entering the burning building and helping carry out crippled and paralytic patients.

The hospital has been conducted under contract until 1915 when the Legislature appropriated $100,000 for the purchase of the institution. The 1916 session of the Legislature made an additional appropriation of $85,000 to construct a new modern fireproof building and to make other improvements. This fund had been tied up in the courts until a few months ago, when it was released and a contract let by the State Board of Affairs for the new building. Construction work had been begun only a few weeks ago.

WOMEN ERECT WAR BOND BOOTH

Six Who Install One in Drug Store Refuse Aid of Men.

Six women of the Twenty-seventh Ward, headed by Mrs. E. C. Keys, 5816 Highland avenue, have erected a Liberty Bond booth in Goeddle & Igel's drug store, 5800 Easton avenue, and are busily engaged in taking subscriptions. The booth was erected by the women themselves, who refused the offers of help from patriotic men of the neighborhood.

A total of $700 was subscribed for during the first few hours that the booth was open yesterday morning. In order that the working people might purchase bonds, the booth will remain open until 10 p. m. daily.

Three Miles of Autos, Horses and Vehicles.

If they were arranged in a procession, are advertised in today's big REAL ESTATE AND WANT DIRECTORIES—twice as many as the two other St. Louis Sunday newspapers combined.

NIGHT AND DAY CAMP SERVICE

Organization to Celebrate Its Fifth Anniversary.

A patriotic celebration in observance of the Night and Day Camp 6500 South Broadway, will be held at the camp from 3 to 5 o'clock this afternoon. A flag will be presented by a club of high school girls.

The speakers will be the Rev. John W. Day, Maj. L. B. H. Bahrenburg of the United States Public Health Service, and Mrs. B. F. Bush. Miss Olga Bates and five of her pupils will give aesthetic dances on the lawn.

MRS. EMMA STUART MADE 79 SPECIFIC BEQUESTS IN WILL

Cash Gifts of $500 to $4000 Left to Many Relatives and Friends—$50,000 Set Aside for Missions.

The will of Mrs. Emma Carradine Stuart, widow of Robert Stuart, who died April 9 at her hame, 4368 Lindell boulevard, was filed yesterday. She made 79 specific bequests and remembered many relatives and friends with cash bequests ranging from $500 to $4000. She left $50,000 in trust of Robert E. Speer of New York to be used in advancing home and foreign missionary work. An additional $8000 is left to advance the work of the student volunteer movement, the object of which is to train missionaries.

The will also disposes of a great amount of personal wearing apparel and jewelry to relatives and friends of Mrs. Stuart. The residue of the estate goes to her son, Robert Stuart Jr., of New York. Albert N. Edwards was appointed executor.

Among the St. Louis cash bequests are $1000 to the First Presbyterian Church, of which testatrix was a member; $1000 to the Markham Memorial Mission at Menard and Julia streets; $2000 to the Young Women's Christian Association; $2000 to the Rev. Beverly Carradine; $500 each to Mrs. Baarent TenBroek and her daughter, Miss Maurine G. TenBroek; $1000 to Gerret TenBroek; $2000 to Mrs. Mary Lamb Gilman; $500 to Mrs. Mary G. McDonald, and $1000 to Mrs. Robert E. Williams.

The will also provides bequests to three servants, as follows: Kate Dorsy Issler, $3000; Emma Price, $4000, and Henry Loving, $2000.

The Rev. Rockwell G. Brank of Savannah, Ga., gets $500, as does the Rev. A. Lee Wilson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Wyoming, O. The will was written June 8, 1911. It sets forth that the testatrix addressed a letter to Emma Price as to the disposition of certain personal belongings.

Bequests of $2000 each are left to the Presbyterian Church at Natchez, Miss., and the Protestant Orphan Asylum there. Mrs. Stuart's body was taken to Natchez, her former home, yesterday for burial.

DANDRUFF SOON RUINS THE HAIR

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have.—This simple remedy never fails.—ADV.

RAILROAD WAGE AND LABOR BOARD READY FOR WORK

Completes Organization, Preparatory to Considering Disputes Involving Four Railway Brotherhoods.

WASHINGTON, April 13 (By A. P.).—The Railway Board of Adjustment today completed its organization by the election of Charles P. Neill as chairman and L. E. Sheppard as vicechairman, and is ready to receive wage or labor disputes for settlement. Monthly meetings will be held, the first on May 7, to consider pending applications transferred from the defunct commission of eight, which sought to harmonize disputes arising under the Adamson act.

The Board of Adjustment will hear only cases involving the four leading railway brotherhoods, and similar boards are soon to be created for other classes of railway employes.

The board announced that only disputes certified by the chief operating officer of a railroad and the head of the brotherhood concerned would be considered.

INDICTMENT AGAINST CRITES IS QUASHED

Was Charged With Violating Anti-Lobby Act in Working for Optometry Bill.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 13.—A motion to quash an indictment against Joseph J. Crites, of Rolla, candidate in the last primary for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor, was sustained this morning by Circuit Judge Skinker of Bolivar on the technical ground that the title of the legislative act prohibiting professional lobbying at sessions of the Legislature was not sufficiently broad to cover the provisions in the body of the act.

Crites was indicted a year ago by a Greene County grand jury in connection with a legislative graft investigation conducted by Attorney-General McAllister. He was charged as a lobbyist with having violated provisions of the antilobby law in accepting employment on a fee contingent upon the passage of an optometry bill by the 1917 Legislature.

Quick, Harmless Way to Remove Wrinkles

Springtime brings wrinkles to many sensitive skins that are much exposed to winds and changing temperatures. To make an effective wrinkle remover, mix an ounce of powdered saxolite and a half pint witch hazel. Bathe the face in the solution—immediately every wrinkle is affected. It acts wonderfully on sagging facial muscles, also the lotion possessing remarkable astringent and tonic properties. Use it once a day for a while and see how it will improve your facial contour.

This simple lotion can not harm the most delicate skin. The treatment itself leaves no trace—no one guesses the secret of your increasing youthful appearance. But be sure to ask the druggist for powdered saxolite.—ADV.

REDFIELD WILL ADDRESS C. OF C. 'SAFETY MEETING'

Secretary of Commerce to Speak on "The Human Factor in Production" at Odeon Monday Night.

The Safety Council, St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, will hold a safety meeting at the Odeon Monday evening at 8 o'clock, when William A. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce, will speak. Secretary Redfield's subject will be "The Human Factor in Production." He will deal with the conservation of man power.

Secretary and Mrs. Redfield will arrive in St. Louis tonight, and will be the house guests of Col. and Mrs. Philip B. Fouke. Secretary Redfield will address the members' conference of the Chamber of Commerce at the Planters Hotel tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock, when he will speak on "Our Part in the War.". The Liberty Loan Organization of the Rotary Club will meet jointly with the members' conference of the Chamber of Commerce.

Monday afternoon Secretary Redfield will address the St. Louis Woman's Committee, Council of National Defense, on "Governmental Relation of Women Through the Council of National Defense," at the Statler Hotel, at 3 o'clock, at which the ward and precinct chairmen of the St. Louis Committee, Council of National Defense, will be present.

Mrs. Fred C. Lake, a girlhood friend of Mrs. Redfield, will entertain with a small luncheon in honor of Mrs. Redfield at the St. Louis Woman's Club Monday. While in St. Louis Secretary Redfield will tour the large manufacturing industries and commercial houses of St. Louis.

SECRETARY REDFIELD TO SPEAK TO WOMEN HERE TOMORROW

He Will Be Guest of Their Committee of the National Defense Council at Sea.

A Secretary Redfield tea will be given under the auspices of the Council of National Defense, St. Louis Women's Committees at the Hotel Statler tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Secretary of Commerce will speak on "Governmental Relation of Women Through the Council of National Defense," and will advise the women how they can best aid the Government in the war.

Mrs. N. A. McMillan will preside. Mrs. Philip B. Fouke, Mrs. B. F. Bush and Mrs. Philip N. Moore will also participate. The committee has been conducting a quiet financial campaign with Mrs. J. Lawrence Mauran as chairman to raise funds to carry on a campaign in all of the war activities. Mrs. Mauran has been assisted by Mrs. Emmett Myers, vice chairman of the Finance Committee; Mrs. Willard Bartlett, treasurer; Mrs. B. C. Arthur, auditor; Mmes. John Fowler, Edward Meissner, Mark Steinberg, Charles Rice, Edward Faust, D. G. Taylor George D. Markham, Samuel C. Davis, J. L. # COAL OUTPUT FAR BELOW NEEDS OF U. S., MINERS SAY

United Mine Workers' Committee Telegraphs Garfield Warning That There May Be Recurrence of 1917 Crisis.

SUGGESTS MEANS OF RELIEVING SITUATION

Declares Many Mines Are Working Half Time, Others Closed Because of Price and Distribution Conditions.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 13 (By A. P.).—Declaring that the present coal production in the United States is far below the nation's lowest possible estimated requirements, the International Executive Board of the United Mine Workers of America, in a telegram to Federal Fuel Administrator Garfield, urged the immediate stabilization of prices and distributing agencies to prevent a recurrence of the crisis of 1917.

The telegram declares that mines in the States of Iowa, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and West Virginia are working less than half time, and that in many mining towns large producing mines are actually shut down. Miners are leaving the mines in industrial centers where the car shortage shows no signs of improvement, the committee states, and adds:

"If the exodus of miners to other lines of employment is permitted to continue full car supply and more satisfactory distributing facilities provided later will be destined to failure."

Pledges Full Co-Operation.

The committee reiterates its pledge of full co-operation to all agencies of the Government to the end that the maximum coal production may result, and recognizes that the Fuel Administration has full and complete authority to regulate the coal industry in every way. The telegram asserts that the miners of the country stand ready to dig all the coal that could possibly be used by the nation, and that they are "able and eager to break all records in coal production and distribution if given the necessary facilities and co-operation."

Continuing, the telegram to the Fuel Administrator states:

"The best evidence of this fact is the record production of 1917 under the most trying circumstances. The international, district and local organizations have subscribed for approximately $2,000,000 of the three Liberty Bond issues. We want to help with all our force in the present crisis—not hinder. But we feel that the outlook for an adequate coal supply is of such grave concern that we must for the protection of the mine workers and as a public duty call your attention to what we are constrained to believe is a menace to the hope of providing sufficient coal.

Many Changes of Price.

"Almost every day coal prices are changed in the whole or part of some State. Distributing agencies are annulled as they exist, or restricted or so completely changed as to upset every stable calculation. Whenever the prices are lowered in any State the operators affected immediately ask for a hearing. This invariably results in decreased production in the operators appeals are definitely determined. When prices are raised the coal miner naturally feels that he should receive a proportionate amount of such increase.

"This condition has created an unrest that nothing short of a stable, permanent price arrangement can satisfy. We are inclined to believe that the stabilizing of prices for production and every agency distribution will have to be brought about before the coal industry can reach that degree of efficiency necessary to supply the needs of the times.

"The coal miners feel that they have not had that degree of consideration in adjusting the affairs of the industry and the promulgation of policies that rightfully is theirs. Therefore, we feel it our duty to ask of the Fuel Administration that a greater degree of consultation be given the half million of our members through the organization's representatives in order to promote the most efficient and effective co-operation."

The message is signed by Frank J. Hayes, president; John L. Lewis, vice president, and William Green, secretary, of the United Mine Workers of America.

The soloists of the St. Louis Orchestra Club's concert at Jefferson Barracks today at 3 p. m. will be Virginia Yeakle Rizer and Russel Rizer. The St. Louis Orchestra Club is a voluntary association of St. Louis musicians of about 80 pieces.

Fake Red Cross Solicitor Sentenced.

CHICAGO, April 13 (By A. P.).—Three years in the Federal prison at Fort Leavenworth and a fine of $1500 were imposed on Joseph Wilkowski, convicted today of unlawfully soliciting funds for the Red Cross.

THREE COAL MINES IDLE A DAY BECAUSE OF 'SPIRIT' MESSAGE

450 Men Refuse to Go to Work Near O'Fallon, Ill., After Warning of Accident Is Received.

Three coal mines employing about 450 men, near O'Fallon, Ill., were idle yesterday because one miner had received a telegram from his mother-in-law, a spiritualist, who gave a warning which she said she had received from her dead husband. The miners refused to work after hearing of the message.

The telegram was received by Elmer Birch, an employe of the Taylor mine. It read:

> Kansas City Mo.
> This is warning. Don't go to work Saturday, the thirteenth. There is an accident for you if you go. Don't think this is fun. Grandpa said there would be an explosion, and listen to this. Letter will follow. MAMMA.

Mrs. Birch said her father, known in the family as "Grandpa", was dead and her mother frequently told of having received spirit messages from him. When 200 men at the Taylor mine refused to work because of the message, their example was followed by 200 at the Yoch mine and 50 at the Angel mine.

Three Shot in Family Quarrel.

RUMOR, Ok., April 13 (By A. P.).—J. B. Bentley, a carpenter, was shot and killed and his wife and stepmother severely wounded today when Mrs. Leonard Brown, the stepdaughter, drew a pistol which Bentley attempted to take from her. There had been a family quarrel.

SCHOOLS REPORT $12,500 IN WAR STAMP SALES FOR WEEK

Interest in Campaign Continues Despite Fact Many Children Are Selling Liberty Bonds.

The Thrift and War Savings campaign is still being conducted in the public schools with increased interest. The report for the week ending Friday, April 12, showed $12,528.70, with nine schools still to report. Prof. Carl G. Rathmann, in charge, said that he was highly gratified with the report, as the school children were now engaged in a campaign for soliciting subscriptions for the Third Liberty Loan.

"The splendid showing for this week," said Prof. Rathmann, "indicates that saving has become a habit with the children and that no matter what other thing comes up the Thrift Stamp campaign is not interrupted."

The public schools have purchased $215,000 in stamps since the opening of the campaign. Mrs. N. A. McMillan, chairman of the Woman's Division of the War Savings Committee of St. Louis is manning the booths in the large department stores and hotels and will continue an active campaign until the St. Louis allotment of $16,000,000 has been disposed of. The letter carriers under the direction of Postmaster Colin M. Selph, are conducting a continuous campaign in the sale of thrift and war savings stamps.

Business firms who want your orders for cleaning, repairing and other services are advertising in the Post-Dispatch Want Pages.

OFFICER UNDER ARREST IS A GRADUATE OF WASHINGTON U.

Maj. J. M. Birkner, Held at Camp Cody Under Espionage Act, Was Lieutenant With Kaiser.

OMAHA, Neb., April 13 (Special.)—Maj. J. M. Birkner, who was arrested yesterday at Camp Cody, Deming, N. M., for alleged violation of the espionage act, is one of the best known physicians in Nebraska. He is a graduate of Washington University, St. Louis, of a class of the early eighties, and came to Nebraska in 1886 direct from St. Louis.

For 30 years he had taken a prominent part in Nebraska national guard affairs and fought through several Indian wars. He is German born, coming from Nuremburg. At the military school in Germany he was a classmate of the present Kaiser, and both were Lieutenants at the same time. He was with the German army which entered Paris and served seven years with the Prussians. He was naturalized in Nebraska in 1888.

In Lincoln, Maj. Birkner had a wife and two daughters and one son, Hugo Birkner, who played on the University of Nebraska football team, lives in Oregon. Mrs. Birkner says the ieda that her husband is disloyal is presposterous. According to information here, Maj. Birkner is accused by four officers with being openly pro-German. He served with the Nebraska fourth regiment on the Mexican border and was chief surgeon at Fort Crook for several months last year.

Dynamos, drills and other machinery offers appear from day to day in the Post-Dispatch Want pages.

MODEL GARDEN WILL BE SHOWN

One of Exhibits at Household Show to Open April 22.

A growing thrift garden will be one of the exhibit at the Household Show to open April 22 at the Exhibit Building, formerly the Southern Hotel. It will be planted under the direction of the production section of the Women's Central Committee on Food Conservation. The garden, on the second floor, will be surrounded by a border of growing flowers.

Other features of the show will be orchestra concerts, vocal music and dancing. A number of conventions and conferences are expected to be held in the convention hall of the building during the show.

BROWNS OUTPLAY CARDS FOR THIRD SUCCESSIVE GAME

Crowd of 7500 Sees Fielder Jones' Men Win 5 to 4, and Outshine Their Opponents in All Departments.

VERSATILITY of attack, which reached its climax in a successful squeeze play, put over the third successive victory of the spring series for the Browns at Sportsman's Park, yesterday. The Cardinals pulled up, winded, at the finish on the short end of a 5—4 score.

The Browns, as winners usually do, looked vastly superior to their opponents in all the departments of the national pastime. They tried practically every known maneuver of offensive strategy and nearly always succeeded. On the other hand, nearly everything the Cardinals tried went awry, accentuated because they lost.

The Browns' attack was an epic of offensive baseball tactics, yet it appeared for a few innings that they might be martyred by wretched pitching. This was particularly apparent in the fourth inning, when five successive bases on balls gave the Cardinals two runs and put them out in front.

Squeeze Play Ties Game.

But a perfectly executed squeeze play (they have to be perfect to be successful) tied it in the sixth and enabled the Browns to eventually count the run that bagged the matinee. Joe Gedeon and Les Nunamaker, former Yankees, carried the heavy parts in the squeeze play referred to. It happened this way:

Fred Walker, "the Mysterious Mitchell" of baseball, relieved Packard of pitching duties for the Cardinals at the beginning of the sixth. Gedeon greeted the newcomer with a double to left, going to third when Demmitt laid down a sacrifice. Enter Les Nunamaker.

The signs apparently read that Nunamaker was to drive out a long fly, thus sending Gedeon over the pan. Therefore, what really happened probably was all the more surprising, for Nunamaker laid down a slow-rolling bunt just within the first-base line. Gedeon, of course, was half way home when Nunamaker connected, and Joe scored, pulled up.

Mr. Walker became so excited at this unique happening that in an effort to erase Nunamaker from the scenery he cracked the big catcher in the shoulder. All of which prevented Gene Paulette from making the putout, and, the ball rolling to right field, Nunamaker reached third, whence he counted the second run of the inning and the winning marker, as it later developed, on Gerber's ace shot to right.

Heathcote Boots a Chance.

Previous to this hilarious stanza, the Browns had counted two in the second and one in the third innings. The pair of tallies in the second were produced by Gedeon's ripping single, which Cruise couldn't hold, a base on balls to Nunamaker and a hit by Gerber which was good for a triple, but which, but for the fact that Heatchcote played it badly, might have been only a single.

Fritz Maisel's fleetness of foot on the paths, added the run in the third. With Tobin out, Maisel walked and when Sisler singled to right, Fritz advanced to third. He scored easily, while Hornsby was throwing to Smyth to force Sisler on a grounder from Hendryx.

Aside from the sixth, Walker got by very admirably, although the Browns had runners on the sacks in the seventh and eighth.

Lowdermilk to the Rescue.

Bert Gallia, the hurler who figured in the deal which sent Bert Shotton and Johnny Lavan to the Senators, made his bow before the home talent as the Browns' boxman. Bert had a very turbulent afternoon and Jones was forced to apply the derrick in the fourth, sending Grover Lowdermilk to the rescue, which accounts for the fact that the Cardinals did no more scoring subsequent to that session.

Hendicks' charges got away to a one run lead in the first. With Betzel out of the way, Jack Smith drew a pass and stole second. Maisel made a neat assist on Paulette's grounder, getting his man at first, but when Sisler made a wide return in an effort to nab Smith at third, the latter scored.

A single by Cruise, Smyth's sacrifice and Gonzales' one base hit to right, after Heathcote had been expunged, gave the Cardinals their second marker in the second inning.

Gallia's control utterly deserted him in the fourth and the Cardinals tacked on two more runs. Hornsby and Cruise were out of the way, when Gallia walked Smyth, Heathcote, Gonzales and Packard, forcing home the first named of the quartet with the tying run.

Grover Forces in Run.

After Gallia had pitched one ball to Betzel, Fielder beckoned him to the bench and Lowdermilk appeared. Grover, however, also had lost the range and walked Betzel, forcing in Heathcote. Jack Smith ended the agony with a feeble tap to Lowdermilk.

The Cardinals started a rally in the ninth, and but for a stroke of ill fortune, might have knotted it. Baird, batting for Walker, beat out a hit to short, which Gerber stopped, but couldn't wing to Sisler. Betzel, trying to sacrifice, missed connections and a quick throw by Nunamaker to Sisler, caught Baird off first.

The play hurt, as a moment later Jack Smith bumped a double over the head of Tim Hendryx. Paulette, though, rang down the curtain with a fly to Hendryx.

Batting Orders Shifted.

Both managers presented changed lineups. Douglas Baird was relegated to the bench by Hendricks, Betzel shifted to third and Red Smyth stationed at the middle bag. Jones placed Tim Hendryx in left and Johnny Tobin in center, vice Earl Smith, who looked on from the bench.

The fourth game of the series will be played at Sportsman's Park this afternoon. It is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock. The Browns, by winning today, can clinch the series, which requires 4 victories to complete; but if they lose, a fifth game will not be played to decide the winner, as both managers have agreed to rest their players Monday for the opening games of the regular seasons on Tuesday.

~~Jack~~ Hendricks Removed Packard, Fearing Injury to Hurler's Arm

THE grandstand managers got busy in the sixth inning yesterday when Gene Packard did not reappear as the Cardinal hurler. "It's suicide to yank Packard and send in this fellow Walker with a one run lead," they chanted.

All of which, it developed later, was perfectly true. But Manager Hendricks of the Cardinals has a perfectly logical alibi and explained the situation satisfactorily last night. Hendricks said Packard felt at the end of the fifth that that was about as far as he could go, without risking a strained arm.

Hendricks, therefore, heeded Packard's statement and sent in Walker. One can form a pretty definite conclusion as to why the monicker of "Mysterious Mitchell" was wished onto Walker. It's a mystery how he ever got into the pitching business.

7500 Fans Turn Out.

A day of sunshine and higher temperature attracted a crowd of 7500 to the park, which considering the many postponements and the fact that a great many followers of both clubs figure the Browns certain winners, was about all that could be expected.

Previous to the game, the players of both clubs trailed Four-Minute Men around through the stands soliciting subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan. Phil Ball, president of the Browns, donated a brass band to help along the good cause.

Cardinals Lack Reserves.

The Cardinals are a pulsating example of the old baseball adage that no club is stronger than its secondary defense. The Cardinals are pitifully weak on substitutes. When their regulars are exhausted, the club borders on collapse, and nobody knows it any better than Jack Hendricks himself. He admits it.

There probably is an excuse for Heathcote's poor playing of Gerber's hit. The right field at Sportsman's Park is a sun field and players declare one of the worst in the league.

Manager Hendricks of the Cardinals stated last night that he would start Doak in today's game. Jones will probably rely on either Davenport or Tom Rogers.

Severeid Getting Better.

Hank Severeid has written a letter to Phil Ball, president of the Browns, in which he tells his boss he is getting along about as well as could be expected. He is still confined to his bed in a Shreveport hospital, however.

Mule Watson hasn't been found yet.

"Red" Smyth and Maisel in Close Play at Third Base Yesterday

In the sixth inning of yesterday's game between the Browns and Cardinals, "Red" Smyth drew a pass, and after Heathcote and Gonzales were out, Packard hit a single past Maisel. Smyth started for home, but when Maisel retrieved the ball, changed his mind. The picture shows both Smyth and Maisel sliding for the bag. The former was safe.

Missouri Victor in Final Battle With Ames, 6-3

Four Runs in First Inning Win for Tigers—Heezen, Losers' Catcher, Hurt.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 13.—Scoring four runs in the first inning, the University of Missouri team had little difficulty in winning from Ames this morning, 6-3, in the final of a three-game series. Missouri won two of the trio of contests.

Dennis started the Tiger scoring by drawing a walk. Haas bunted and when Pragge threw wild to second, Dennis went to third and Haas to second. Slusher flied out, but Summa hit over second, sending Dennis home. Morris tripled, scoring Summa and Canterbury. Messick counted Morris with a hit over short.

In the third inning, Ames scored two. Plagge walked. On Aldrich's attempted sacrice Dennis dropped the ball, and both were safe. Brotherlin doubled, scoring both. In the fourth Messick muffed Leven's fly and Owen walked. Plagge lined to Haas, who dropped the ball, Leven scoring.

Missouri scored in the fourth when Wire was safe on an error. Wackher scored in the sixth for Missouri on Dennis' hit. Missouri garnered six hits and made four errors. Ames made four hits and was charged with six errors. Heezen, Ames' catcher, split his thumb on a foul tip in the fifth.

SPORT SALAD

BY L. C. Davis

The Holdout.

"What's all the bloomin' row about?"
Said Rooter-on-Parade.
"I'm holding out, I'm holding out,"
The Center Fielder said.
"You want eight thousand bucks I guess,"
Said Rooter-on-Parade.
"I'll not accept one penny less,"
The Center Fielder said.
"For I'm going into business and that isn't any stall;
Those guys will have to pay me, or, I'm through with playing ball.
Say, stake me to a jitney, making 30 cents in all,
And I'll slip it to you first thing in the morning."

"What business are you goin in?"
Said Rooter-on-Parade.
"It's something that is bound to win,"
The Center Fielder said.
"How much do you expect to clear?"
Said Rooter-on-Parade.
"At least ten thousand bucks a year,"
The Center Fielder said.
"So you see I'm independent and I do not care a rap;
I've got 'em where I want 'em and they'll have to stand a tap.
Say, let me have that jitney, I'm a little short, old chap,
I'll return it to you first thing in the morning."

Tough Luck.

A recent fire in Cleveland, a report says, destroyed all of the season's passes. Anyone not receiving his pass, however, will be admitted at the pay gates at regular tariff rates.

Larry Kopf, who refused to join the Reds, has accepted a position with an automobile tire company at an inflated salary.

The Sunday bill has passed the New York Senate, but as the Governor and the House seem to be stronger for Bill Sunday than for the Sunday bill, its due for a rocky passage.

On current form the world's champions would run a bang up eighth in the Texas League.

Stop It!

This thing of having the grand old Commonwealth of Texas mopped up with world's champions isn't a very digestable dish for effete major league stomachs. It should be stopped.

The fans of Cincinnati are the earliest starters in either league. It only took a couple of wallopings by Detroit to start the knockers going.

Johnny Evers with the Red Sox and Buck Herzog with the Braves ought to give the Boston fans some fine exhibitions of oratorical second basing this year.

Cy Falkenberg, having decided not to play ball this year, has been notified by Indianapolis that he is suspended. How are you going to suspend a man who has already suspended himself?

The way Uncle Sam is grabbing the Senators' players, Griff will soon have nothing but the Washington Monument for a nucleus.

Get Together.

The daylight saving plan isn't going to do the early bird any good unless he can get the worm to come an hour ahead of time and be gobbled up.

The worm has pretty tough sledding. His destiny in life seems to be to act as the piece de resistance at a banquet for either a bird or a fish.

Not a Chance.

The worm has no chance to get ahead. He toils and struggles along and the minute he gets out of the hole he becomes fish bait or bird food.

It's enough to discourage any worm and make him wish that he was a microbe or something.

* * *

If the worm had any backbone he wouldn't stand for the stuff they're always pulling on him. They say a worm will turn but we ask you, have you ever seen one turn? No, and you never will.

* * *

The only time the worm turns is when he turns into a meal for a bird or a fish.

If the worm had any sense he'd do a turn in vaudeville. There's always a place on the bill for a contortionist somewhere between the Travalogue and the trained dogs.

Adam was very happy in his choice of names when he labeled the worm. You would never mistake a worm for anything but a worm. a tadpole turns into a frog but a worm can only turn from a little worm into a big worm and that lets him out.

SNOW STOPS SUPERBAS.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 13.—The exhibition baseball game scheduled between the New York Americans and the Brooklyn Nationals at Ebbet's Field today, was called off because of the snow-covered diamond. As the New York Americans open their league season Monday, the spring series between the two clubs has been abandoned.

Alexander Called, but Not Notified When to Report for Service

LINCOLN, Neb., April 13. GROVER CLEVELAND ALEXANDER, star baseball pitcher for the Chicago National League club, has been called to go in the next draft quota to Camp Funston, a telegram from the chairman of the county exemption board at St. Paul, Neb., Alexander's home, said this afternoon.

The telegram addressed to the Lincoln office of the Associated Press, follows:

"Grover Cleveland Alexander called to go in next quota, but he is not officially notified, as we are not yet informed by provost marshal just when they will entrain for Camp Funston.
(Signed) "W. H. Atwood, Chairman of Local Board."

Commission Makes Lajoie Free Agent

Failure of Toronto Club to Include $1000 Bonus in 1917 Contract Is the Cause.

CINCINNATI, April 13.—Failure of the Toronto club of the old International League to include, in the contract of Nap Lajoie a $1000 bonus, paid to him for winning the pennant last year, today caused the National Baseball Commission to declare the player a free agent. Incidentally, his services are lost to Brooklyn, as the commission annulled his transfer to the Dodgers from the Toronto club. But what is Brooklyn's loss will be Indianapolis' gain, as the veteran infielder will manage that club this season, it is stated on high authority.

Lajoie objected going to Brooklyn for the reason he said that he wanted to continue in baseball as a manager and that he had a good chance to manage a club in the American Association. Also that he was influenced by the chaotic condition of the International League and the uncertainty regarding its reorganization for the season of 1918.

The commission stated that investigation of the case that he whose expertness in all departments of the game earned for him signal distinction throughout his major league career from 1896 to 1916, inclusive, is entitled to his unconditional release from the Toronto club and the annulment of his release by that club to the Brooklyn club.

The compensation as stipulated in Lajoie's 1917 contract for 1917 was $3500, not including the $1000 bonus.

LAJOIE TO TAKE CHARGE OF INDIANAPOLIS TODAY

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., April 13.—Napoleon Lajoie, who today was declared a free agent by the National Baseball Commission, is on his way to Indianapolis to assume the management of the local (American Association) club, according to word received by Owner James C. McGill, this evening.

Lajoie will take charge of the Indianapolis club tomorrow, at its first exhibition game on the home grounds this season. This game will be against the Cleveland club with which Lajoie played for 12 seasons.

FOUR RIDERS ARE SET DOWN BY JOCKEY CLUB

NEW YORK, April 13.—The stewards of the Jockey Club have placed the law on five trainers and four jockeys. Action was taken at a meeting held here recently. Among the riders suspended is Frankie Keogh, who rode horses owned by James E. Widener and Emil Herz last year. Other riders who have been refused permission to ride are J. Glass, W. P. McIntyre and Charles Martin.

Keogh's suspension does not cause much surprise among horsemen. Last year his in and out riding caused a lot of comment. Keogh is regarded as being one of the best jockeys on the American turf today.

Most prominent among the trainers who earned the wrath of stewards was W. R. Mizell. For several years he has raced a string of thoroughbreds in his own name.

LEONARD STOPS BRAZZO

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, won an easy victory over Jack Brazzo of Hazelton, Pa., here tonight. The bout was stopped in the fourth round to save Brazzo from further punishment.

CATHEDRAL NINE WINS.

The Cathedral team of the Parochial School League defeated Field School of the Public School circuit in a practice game yesterday, 9—6. The winners made 12 hits off Shierk, while Wurdock allowed the losers six.

YEATMAN DEFEATS SOLDAN, 9-8, IN OPENING CONTEST

Ninth-Inning Rally of 1917 Interscholastic Champions Falls One Run Short.

CENTRAL EASY WINNER

Mid-City Aggregation, Aided by Cleveland Errors, Gets Away With 12-4 Victory.

The defeat of Soldan, the 1917 champion, at the hands of Yeatman, by a score of 9—8, was the outstanding feature in yesterday's opening game of the Interscholastic League at High School Field. This was the second contest, Central gaining an easy victory over Cleveland in the opener, 12—4. A good crowd witnessed the twin bill.

Behind, 6—3, going into the final half of the eighth, Soldan came with a rush and scored three runs, making the count 6 all. However, in the ninth, Yeatman put over a trio, while Soldan's rally fell one run short of tieing.

Both Yeatman and Soldan hit the ball hard, the winners being credited with 15 safeties against Sylvester, who hurled the West Enders to last season's flag, while the losers made a dozen bingles off Roettger, the Yeatman star. Fitzgerald of Soldan, with four out of six, one a double, was the batting hero.

All Pitchers Go Route.

One of the peculiarities of the two battles was the fact that not one of the coaches used a substitute hurler. The four flingers who started finished. Graves of Central, who held the Cleveland team to five hits in seven frames, made the best showing. Placke of Cleveland was found for 10 bingles, but many of Central's runs came as a result of errors behind him. Placke struck out 10 batters, while he did not issue a pass.

The fielding of all the teams was poor, but this probably was because of the earliness of the season and that the teams had little chance for practice the past week. Central was charged with eight errors, while the other three teams each made seven.

HOPPE IS WINNER OVER PETERSON IN 2 GAMES

World's champion Willie Hoppe won both his balkline and three-cushion exhibition games from Charles C. Peterson, the local expert, at the Hippodrome in Buffalo last Thursday. Hoppe captured the 18.2 match, 250—188, in nine innings, while he was the victor in the angle clash, 25—23, in 37.

In the three-cushion match, Peterson writes that he made a "hysterical masse shot," which brought down the house.

MASON EXPECTED TODAY

Frankie Mason, the little Fort Wayne bantam, who meets Kid Regan at the South Broadway Athletic Club Tuesday night, is expected to arrive here this morning, to complete his training for the bout. Mason will be accompanied by a delegation from his home city who are coming here to give Jack Hendricks a sendoff in the opening game of the baseball season.

About 30 fans expect to make the trip with Mason. Regan has practically finished his training for the bout.

GREAT LAKES WILL SEND THREE TEAMS TO COMPETE HERE

Boxing, Swimming and Football Elevens to Oppose Local Men, Laubis Says.

MITT MEN DUE THIS WEEK

Football Eleven Will Oppose St. Louis U.; Aquatic Meet "on the Iron."

Herman Laubis, former champion distance swimmer of the Missouri Athletic Club, and now one of the many celebrated athletes assembled at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station by Uncle Sam, is in St. Louis on furlough.

Laubis, who has been at Great Lakes for nearly 10 months, says he weighs over 15 pounds more than when he left St. Louis to volunteer. He adds that this is entirely due to the great life at the naval station, which "is paradise on earth for a young man," he declares.

Laubis is in the hospital department at Great Lakes, where have been gathered some of the best swimmers and athletes at the station. Laubis' most recent athletic performance was in the 500-yards swim at Chicago recently, where he finished fourth in the best company in the world—Norman Ross, McGillivray, McDermott and others.

St. Louisans at Great Lakes.

"Athletes are in clover at Great Lakes," Laubis told the Post-Dispatch. "Any kind of sport you want is featured there, from boxing to water polo. St. Louis is represented in most of these very ably. In boxing Leo Witt, Kabbas and Conzelman were especially distinguished, all holding the championship belt at different times. Witt and Kabbas have been at sea for some time, but Conzelman is in everything, almost. He played on the football team, on the basket team and he will probably make the baseball nine. I shouldn't wonder if he'd take up track, although there are so many good athletes in the field and running events that it's almost hopeless to enter.

"The Great Lakes has the most wonderful indoor atheletic arena in the world, I guess. It is quite possible to have a 200-yard straight away race in it. The Central A. A. U. meet, held there last Saturday night, showed the possibilities of the building since they had, for the first time in the history of indoor sport, probably, a 100-yard straight away dash, and the high and low hurdles run over straightaways for the full distance of 120 yards. Of course new records were made.

Arena Seats About 8000.

"This pavillion will seat over 8000 persons, besides affording the splendid track conveniences. Next Tuesday the inter-regimental meet will be held in this building. Many great athletes are entered.

"In preparation for the regimental baseball championships a new baseball diamond and grandstand with a seating capacity of over 5000 is being built. The company, regimental and training station championships will all be decided on this field. Ray Neusel, the St. Louis Municipal Leaguer, is at Great Lakes and will pitch for the Hospital nine.

"Boxing has never lost its grip at Great Lakes. Every Wednesday afternoon a program of fifteen bouts is carried out. The men fight and do not merely spar at each other. But the rounds are short, one minute. In championship events the rounds are extended to two minutes.

"These contests, like those of other branches of sport at the Great Lakes, are free to the public. Ladies attend the boxing matches and enjoy them immensely, although some lively exchanges occur and occasional knockouts, though these are not encouraged. Jack Kennedy referees all contests.

"The water sports at the Great Lakes will slacken now, until the outdoor season opens, although the water polo league championship has still to be decided.

Great Is Mike McDermott.

"The recent meet brought out one point—that Mike McDermott is the greatest breast stroke swimmer of all times. Despite the strong competition McDermott for the ninth successive year captured the 200-yard breast stroke championship of the country.

"McGillivray and Wallen, by the way, are expecting to go to San Francisco to attend swimming of the 100 and 200 national championships, April 24-28. Our swimming team is trying to arrange a swimming exhibition match with the Missouri Athletic Association squad and also with the Minneapolis A. C. The boxing team of the Great Lakes Station has already made arangement to appear at St. Louis this week, when they oppose the Missouri Athletic Association boxers.

Football Team Coming Here.

"The Great Lakes football team has also scheduled a football game with St. Louis University. St. Louis U. will need a regular eleven if it hopes to do much, for a team of stars will be at the station. Some of the men may be called to sea duty, but there are so many good players at the station that it is impossible not to have a strong eleven. Jimmy Conzelman will be on it again unless summoned to foreign duty. George Hallas and Paddy Driscoll, Chicago U. and Northwestern University stars, will be members of the eleven next fall.

"I wish all young fellows could go through this experience. There is nothing like it anywhere, I am sure, and the work is pleasure. You're so well cared for you feel like a prize steer at a stock show; I would not have missed the experience for anything you could think of."

Willard Admits He's Nearly 40; Boxing Guide Says Age Is 30

In Answer to Request That He "Go to France to Fight," Champion Asserts That He Is in "Landsturm" Class and Besides Has Several Children.

By John E. Wray

"SOMEBODY prevaricated," is the verdict of all those on the outside a-looking in on the controversy as to Willard's age, which broke out in a rash all over the United States, following the matching of Jess and Fulton for the world's championship.

Interested persons, who took the trouble to find out in Tom Andrews' pugilistic guide that Willard's birth date was there set forth as Dec. 29, 1887, wanted to know how it was that Willard had not been at least summoned for examination, he being under 31 years of age, according to the pugilistic record.

Willard in Landsturm Class.

IN Chicago last week Willard undertook to explain to these what the situation was. He is quoted as having said:

"I am close on to 40 years of age and have a wife and five children. I am far beyond the draft age. It's a matter of law, not choice. When the President sees fit to call the men of my age I will be only too glad to respond. It's my country first, then myself.

"I proved my loyalty, when, without solicitation, I offered to promote a championship fight, pay all the expenses and turn every cent over to the Red Cross. It would have netted $200,000. They gave it due consideration and declined it.

"The public clamored for a fight. They charged me with being afraid to fight, and yelled I should come out of retirement. Col. Miller signed me and closed a match, but censure continues."

This plan passes the buck to the guide book, which derives its information from Willard himself.

Willard's Manager Responsible.

TO find out the authority for the date of Willard's birth given in the guide, the Post-Dispatch wired the publishers and received the following reply:

MILWAUKEE, April 13.—Information regarding Willard's age published in our guide was supplied by Willard himself and his manager, Tom Jones, when they first started out. Have been trying to verify.

T. S. JONES.

Willard's Case Weakens.

THE admission, by the champion, of approaching middle age, will not help his standing with the gentlemen who speculate, when he faces Fred Fulton.

The chances are that Fulton will enter the ring favorite over Jess, if they succeed in getting together for a 20-round championship endeavor. The arguments are all against the title-holder. Here they are:

AGE—Willard, by his own admission, is at least 10 years older than Fulton.

EXPERIENCE — Fulton, although his career in the ring is shorter than Willard's has fought more fights, against better men.

RECORD—Fulton has stopped the best heavyweights of the day; Willard was beaten by two and failed to stop any one of the five fighters that have faced both challenger and champion; Fulton stopped them all in less than seven rounds.

Willard never beat a first-class foe, who was in first-class condition.

CONDITION—Fulton has been fighting regularly and often for two years; Willard has fought one bout; 10 no-decision rounds, since April 5, 1915.

SKILL — Fulton's continued fighting has vastly improved him; Willard, in three months, will have to regain what he has lost in the past three years; in that time he has had no chance to improve.

To offset all this Willard will be able to urge about 30 pounds weight advantage, much of it the accumulation of sloth and absence from the ring.

One look at the above is enough to make Willard an 8 to 5 chance on the speculators' slate, were the title glamor not cast about him.

Three States and 2 Cities Announce Ban on Willard-Fulton Go

DENVER, April 13.—GOV. JULIUS C. GUNTHER, in anouncing today that he would not permit the Jess Willard-Fred Fulton championship fight to be staged in Colorado, suggested Berlin as a battle ground for the fighters to show their wares.

Gov. Gunther is the third governor to take action against the world's championship fight, the New Mexico and Nevada executives have previously made similar announcements. Baltimore and Denver, preceding the gubernatorial pronunc'amentoes, had announced that the event was undesirable.

FLUG WILL REPORT AT CAMP FUNSTON MONDAY

Emil Flug, who played quarterback and halfback for the St. Louis U. Billikens, during his college career, and captained the eleven in 1916, has been drafted and will report at Camp Funston tomorrow, it was announced last night by Father Hermans, athletic director at the Grand Avenue School.

McGill for Late Start.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 13.—Baseball games at Washington Park, the home of the Indianapolis club of the American Association, will start a 4 p. m. this season. James McGill, owner of the club, believes that 60 per cent of his patrons favor the late hour under the daylight saving plan.

YACHT RACING TO BE RESUMED NEXT YEAR

NEW YORK, April 13.—Racing will be resumed next season by the Long Island Yacht-Racing Association. At a recent meeting it was decided to hold regattas for the smaller classes. Although there was considerable opposition to the plan by those who declared that in the present time of stress, on account of the war, yacht racing was out of place. The majority of the members held that the knowledge of navigation gained in these contests was invaluable in supplying men for the naval reserve force, and they won their case.

The contests will be entirely for amateurs, no professionals being allowed on the yachts, and the money usually devoted to prizes will be devoted to war charities.

KIENY GOES INTO LEAD IN SINGLES OF TENPIN EVENT

Omaha Bowler Counts 634 in Individuals in National Railway Tournament.

NEW 2-MAN PACEMAKERS

Mattimore and Murphy, Toledo, Counted 1136 for First Place in Rolling Yesterday.

New leaders came yesterday in both the individual and two-man event of the National Railway Bowling Association Tournament which is being staged on the Washington alleys. In the singles, L. Kieny of Omaha took first place with 634, while J. Mattimore and G. Murphy, Toledo, 1136 are the new doubles pace-makers.

In taking the lead in the singles, Kieny shot good tenpins. He started with a 238, counted 195 in the second and came back with 201. J. Mattimore was next best, with 574 in yesterday's squad.

Murphy was the star for his team in taking the two-man lead. He had a count of 603, falling down in the second and third, after getting a 244 total for the first 10 frames. Mattimore totaled 533, which included a 144 game. Hratik and Timmerman with 1097 were next.

Changes also came ni the standings in the rolling in the five-man last night was only fair; the Union Pacifics No. 1 of Omaha with a 2632 count, which placed them in fifth place, being high. The Bell Ringers of Louisville, 2590, took sixth, and the M. K. & T. five of St. Louis with 2585, ninth position.

The scores:

PENN GOLF TEAM WILL OPEN SEASON APRIL 27

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—Even though the intercollegiate golf championship tournament will not be held this year, the colleges are all planning for a busy competitive season among themselves. Six matches have been arranged for the University of Pennsylvania. The season will open April 27, with a contest against against Georgia "Tech," to be played over the course of the Chevy Chase Club. On May 4 the Red and Blue will tackle Columbia over the Richmond County Country Club links on Staten Island, while on May 11 they will oppose Williams College at Garden City.

The Marion Cricket Club course will be the next scene of action, when Columbia will visit Philadelphia on May 18. Two matches, one in the Quaker City, the other at Princeton, have been decided upon with Princeton, but the dates have not been set.

KANSAS TO ENTER TEAMS

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 13.—Coach W. O. Hamilton expects to send two teams to compete in the mile and half-mile relay races in the relay games to be held at Drake University, Des Moines, Io., April 20. The following week, Rice, high jumper, and Haddock, sprinter and weight man, will be entered in the Penn relay games at Philadelphia. Hamilton's track team has been crippled by the loss of John D. Shreve, quarter-miler and miler, who enlisted in the navy, and Erval Coffey, half-miler, who was drafted in the last call.

Pre-Season Analyses Give White Sox and Giants Edge in Pennant Struggles

Last Year's Flag Winners Conceded Great Chance to Repeat in 1918—American League Promises Exciting Race; National Is Top-Heavy.

TOMORROW, in two cities in the East, the American League's annual pennant struggle will officially begin. Tuesday, two more cities in the junior circuit will witness the start of the big league offensive, while on the same day, the eight clubs of the National League will swing into action.

And so, with the first game so near at hand, the 16 managers in whose hands rests the fates of their clubs, will begin the grapple for honors which only two clubs may win. Who will those two clubs be? What of the 14 others? What have 16 managers and their adherents to hope for?

Each year, soothsayers have gazed into the crystal and proclaimed they have witnessed the standing of the clubs when the curtain is lowered in the autumn. Sometimes they have been right, but more often wrong.

Draft Not Considered.

One guess—and it is all of that—is as good as another, however. The statements in this article are conclusions based on material gathered from experts in the various major league cities. They have set forth plainly the condition of each club as it faces the barrier. The aim was to get at the root of the situation and determined, as nearly as possible, what chance each club stands in the respective flag struggles.

But there is one great factor yet to be reckoned with and which, unfortunately, cannot enter into the analysis because of its uncertainty. That is the selective service. The prospects for the various clubs were compiled with the supposition that they would be able to retain their present rosters.

Draft and enlistments have robbed major league baseball of upwards of 75 players during the winter, not a few of whom were deemed real stars of the game. Yet baseball, like many other institutions, has not contributed its full quota. Others may follow—a foregone conclusion. Just when, no one, the players least of all, is aware, and it is this factor which threatens to make the coming flag races the most uncertain in all history.

White Sox Retain Strength.

ON the theory that a world's championship club must be considered the best in baseball until a better one appears, there seems every reason to believe that the White Sox are due to repeat in 1918. The Old Roman's machine lost nothing during the winter.

There is only one possible weakness in the Sox and that is in the pitching staff. Even this, however, is entirely a matter of supposition and it hinges around whether Eddie Cicotte, at an age when most pitchers are beating back over the trail, can have two successful seasons in sequence.

Urban Faber will return. This means, providing Cicotte retains his effectiveness, that Rowland has two first string pitchers of unquestionable ability. The remainder of the club is intact. Not a single member of the infield or outfield was lost through the draft.

It Looks Close Here.

The remainder of the "dope" indicates that the American League race will be as close as any in recent years, rivalling in intensity that of 1916 when six clubs were closely grouped below the Red Sox. In such a contingency the only way to form a conclusion as to where the clubs MAY finish is to weigh in the balance the strength and weakness and determine wherein one excels over the other. The dope shows:

BOSTON: Has three really great pitchers, weak at second base; infields and outfields, generally unsteady. Lacks cleanup hitter. Has new manager. Club's strongest point: pitching.

ST. LOUIS: Best good right-hand pitching. Has speed, a .353 hitter, team spirit and smart manager. Most apparent weakness: Left-hand pitchers and proven outfield.

NEW YORK: A new manager, powerful hitters, good infield, but questionable outfield. Few good pitchers.

DETROIT: Cobb and Veach back again, therefore, a strong offensive club. Pitching, as usual, very feeble.

CLEVELAND: Strong outfield and two good infielders. Riddled by army draft, considerably weaker than in 1917.

As Regards Our Browns.

ON first thought, and particularly when their showing of 1917 is concerned, rating the Browns as a possible first division club may elicit the well known horse laugh. But there is a very good chance that Fielder Jones' admirers may have a chance to laugh last when the curtain falls in October.

For, compared with its rivals, Phil Ball is backing a real club this year. The Browns have beyond question, the best right-hand pitching corps in the league. They also boast of two of the best catchers in the business. The infield is splendid at first and third, not yet proven at second and short. Jones has one of the greatest hitters in the game, George Sisler. The outfield is unproven but looks and figures good. It is in this department that the possible weakness of the club may develop.

The great reserve strength Jones has this season will stand him in good stead. On paper, he is better equipped to stand the race right now than any club in the league. He has lost only one fair player in the draft. It may require a month for the club to acquire unity of play. When that is achieved its pitching and hitting strength and its speed cannot be denied.

Red Sox Strong Club.

The Red Sox have retained just enough of their old players to insure them a contender, with the added stars obtained from Connie Mack. They have a strong pitching staff, as of yore, while the club's batting strength is more evenly distributed than in former years. No matter what sort of a manager Ed Barrow may prove, Boston still looks like a one-two club.

As for the Yankees, the outfield weakness, together with a lack of pitchers, may prove too much for even Hug's managerial genius to overcome. However, the Yankees must be rated a particularly strong offensive aggregation and the infield has been termed the best in the league. It will not be a flag contender, though, until some hurling talent is inserted, and for this very reason, the Browns should beat the Yanks to the wire.

Detroit May Be Wrecked.

Detroit is a mystery club. If its pitching comes through it ought to run as good as third or fourth. It will lose some of its talent in the draft and stands to have its club wrecked thereby if the nine men subject to Class 1 call are taken in midseason. Among these are Pitchers Mitchell, Cunningham, James and Donie Bush, Heilman, Jones and other good men.

This is a proven team, however, as it goes to the post, save for the exception of Leo Dressen at first. And he comes to the club with a fine record. Given Boston pitching this team would romp through the league, with its opening day lineup.

The Cleveland club has lost so many good men in the draft and stands to lose Wambsgans and Chapman in the near future, that it cannot be rated in first division this year. As it will take the field it, too, has a powerful hitting punch but seems to be helpless on tht pitching hill.

Shotton and Lavan may serve to increase the fleetness of foot of Clark Griffith's aggregation, but the club cannot hope to get out of second division until at least two sluggers are added, one of whom must be of the clean-up type. Griff's pitching staff, it seems, still consists of Walter Johnson and several in-and-outers.

Connie Mack's plight, pity 'tis, is hopeless, and hardly worth discussion other than to say that the Mackmen should not be as far beneath the other clubs as they were in 1917.

The Giants Again?

REPORTS on the National League clubs were scrutinized with keen interest in an effort to discover a club which might supplant the Giants as flag winners. None appeared, although one club, the Chicago Cubs, seemed destined to make it interesting for McGraw this summer until the draft took Alexander.

But now the Chicago outlook is gloomy. The Cubs' infield is composed of a two-time failure at third, a stripling up for the first time at short, a very promising youngster at second and a veteran at first. The outfield has speed, but lacks the punch. The catching is satisfactory.

There seems every reason to believe that the Cubs will run in second division.

As for the Giants, they still appear the class of the field. The addition of Doyle to the infield should make for strength. Jess Barnes is bound to help the tottering pitching staff, while the outfield, with Robertson gone and Benny Kauff to go later, holds the edge over the other rival clubs. McGraw's great reserve strength will carry the club along without much difficulty.

Cards in Fight Again.

NOW for the Cardinals. The strongest point about the Knot Holers is in batting. The apparent weakness at second has been plugged by the acquisition of Bert Niehoff, who should be able to care for Jack Miller's duties, aided by Bruno Betzel. Until Jack Hendricks lands another outfielder of known worth, though, the Cardinals cannot be considered a pennant prospect. They should do every bit as good as last season, despite a new manager and contractural troubles during the winter.

Christy Mathewson's Reds, reports say, once more will be a dangerous batting club. However, with Toney gone, the club has only two first string hurlers and nothing has been discovered among the recruits which would lead to the belief that Toney's shoes can be filled. The hitters, as was the case last year, may land the Reds in the first division. It's their sole hope of getting there.

The second division fight in the National League looks like a standoff with three wrecks contesting for fifth, sixth and seventh places, all very weak. The loss of Alexander, Rixey, Killefer and Niehoff makes it certain that Pat Moran can hardly hope for better than the top of the second four.

He has retained the nucleus of a strong club, however, for several of the regulars, notably Luderus, Stock, Bancroft and Whitted, will be back. The Braves are starting out with new material largely and consequently have been rated beneath the Phillies on the basis of inexperience.

Too Much for Herzog.

Charley Herzog may help Stallings, but the Chief has lost Maranville, Gowdy and Jess Barnes and Dick Rudolph still is a holdout at the time this is written. As for Brooklyn, Wilbert Robinson's best seems no better than seventh place. The draft has practically wrecked his pitching staff, while the outfield, with Stengel gone and Wheat a holdout, lacks the necessary class. Lajoie, if he reports, will stabilize the infield, but Daubert apparently has slipped and a third sacker of merit must be developed.

As for the Pirates, the outfield alone is the redeeming feature of an almost hopeless combination. There is no reason to believe the Pirates can escape the cellar this season.

JERSEY CIT MAGNATE WANTS EVERS TO LEAD CLUB COMING SEASON

NEWARK, N. J., April 13.—Just before the new International League club owners finished their schedule making here tonight, it was announced that Dave Driscoll, owner of the Jersey City franchise, was negotiating with Coach John J. Evers of the Boston Red Sox, to become player manager of the Jersey City club. Evers, who is said to be on his way from Troy, N. Y., is to meet Driscoll here tomorrow. In order not to stand in the way of the veteran players' accepting this position, it is understood the Boston club will release him.

The schedule agreed upon consists of 140 games, opening May 8 and closing Sept. 15.

WORLD'S CHAMPIONS IN VALLEY REGATTA

"Miss Detroit II" and "Miss Minneapolis,' the world's champion racing boats, have been entered in the annual regatta of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association at Moline, Ill., July 5 and 6. Other boats expected to be in the race for the Thomas H. Webb Cup are "Miss Peoria," "Distributer IV," owned by James A. Pugh of Chicago, and a new challenger built by C. C. Smith of Algonac, Mich.

A portion of the great marine band from the Great Lakes Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill., is being sought to give this year's races a war-time flavor. Government endorsement of racing as a stimulant for naval recruiting has added to the prospects for one of the most successful meets ever staged by the association. A portion of the proceeds will be turned over to Uncle Sam's war chest.

Pay Bets With Saving Stemps.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 13.—The Audobon Country Club, the biggest golf organization in this region, has decided, as a war conservation measure, to employ no caddy more than 9 years old. Moreover, it is intended to eliminate golf balls in payment of wagers and to substitute War Savings or Thrift Stamps. Other clubs in the vicinity of Louisville are understood to be considering the adoption of similar rules.

ARMY AMBULANCE CORPS BASKET QUINT WON 20 OF 23 GAMES LAST YEAR

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—That the basket ball team representing the United States Army Ambulance Corps, stationed at Allentown, Pa., is one of teh best in the East is the opinion of everyone who saw the team in action during the past season.

Averaging 41 points per game, the U. S. A. A. C. five won 20 games and lost three, playing the pick of the Eastern colleges and United States service teams at home and abroad. No other team in the country can boast of such a record. The U. S. A. A. C. claim the service championship—and rightfully, too.

The ambulance five played all comers, under all conditions and under all sorts of rules, and after the team was finally selected lost only one game. The first two games played were defeats because the players hadn't the fine points of the game systematized, but after the poor start they put over 16 victories in a row.

BETHMAN NAMED HEAD.

Robert Bethman was elected president of the East St. Louis Sportsmen's League at the annual meeting. David B. Beatty was chosen vice president, Conrad Reeb, treasurer, and Charles B. Carroll, secretary. These officers will act as delegates at a meeting of the county organization in Belleville next month.

Brewers Play Camp Custer.

MILWAUKEE, April 13.—The Milwaukee club of the American Association will play its first game on the home grounds this season on Sunday, April 21, meeting a crack team from Camp Custer. Proceeds of the game will be donated to the Soldiers' Athletic fund at the camp.

SCHOLZ TIES TWO WORLD'S RECORDS IN MISSOURI MEET

Runs 100 in 9 3-5 Seconds and 220 in 21 1-5 Seconds, With the Wind at His Back.

TIGERS EASY WINNERS

Capture 11 Firsts, While Only Four Are Credited to Losing Ames Athletes.

COLUMBIA, MO., April 13.—Two University of Missouri records and two Ames-Missouri dual meet marks were broken this afternoon on Rollins Field in the fifth annual meet which the Tigers won, 88 to 39.

J. V. Scholz of St. Charles, Tiger dash man, ran the 10 yards in 9 3-5 seconds, which is equal to the world's record, but will not hold because the wind was at his back. He ran in 220 dash in the world's record time of 21 1-5 seconds, but will not hold in national records for the same reason. The old 'varsity records were held by R. T. Branham, who ran these events in 9:4 and 21:4, respectively.

Frank Osborne of Kansas City broke the meet record in the high jump, with 5 feet 11¼ inches, and Berry made 4 feet 4 inches with the shot. W. F. Sylvester, cousin of the famous Bob Simpson, was high point man with two firsts, two seconds and a third.

The summary:

100-yard dash—Scholz, Missouri, first; Sylvester, Missouri, second; Dimick, Ames, third. Time 9 3-5s.

One-mile run—Stone, Ames, first; Cromer, Ames, second; Blackburn, Missouri, third. Time 4m. 55s.

120-yard high hurdles—Scholz, Missouri, first; Osborne, Missouri, second; Anderson, Ames, third. Time 16 1-5s.

440-yard dash—Mattingly, Missouri, first; Barlow, Missouri, second; Fish, Ames, third. Time 53s.

220 low hurdles—Osborne, Missouri, first; Albus, Missouri, second; Anderson, Ames, third. Time—26 1-5s.

880-yard run—Stone, Ames, first; Hawthorne, Ames, second; Roney, Missouri, third. Time—2m. 3 2-5s.

220-yard dash—Scholz, Missouri, first; Sylvester, Missouri, second; Dimick, Ames, third. Time—21 1-5s.

One-mile relay—Forfeited by Ames, lack of men.

Two-mile run—Hawthorne and Cromer of Ames tied for first; Banks, Missouri, third. Time—10m. 43 2-5s.

Pole vault—Wilken, Ames, first (11 ft. 9 in.); Marshall, Missouri, second (11 ft. 6 in.); Sylvester, Missouri, third (11 ft.).

Discus throw—Stark, Missouri, first (112 ft. 6 in.); Ewing, Missouri, second (111 ft. 9 in.); Berry, Missouri, third (105 ft. 7 in.).

High jump—Osborne, Missouri, first (5 ft. 11¾ in.); Pittam, Missouri, second; Boyd, Ames, third.

Broad jump—Sylvester, Missouri, first (21 ft. 2½ in.); Scholz, Missouri, second (20 ft. 10 in.); Dimick, Ames, third (20 ft. 1 in.).

Shotput—Berry, Missouri, first (41 ft. 4 in.); Wagner, Ames, second (39 ft. 3 in.); Marshall, Missouri, third (37 ft. 10 in.).

Half-mile relay—Missouri. Time—1m. 35 1-5s.

Referee and starter—Dr. J. A. Reilly, K. A. C.

O'DOWD IS IN ENGINEER CORPS AT CAMP DODGE

CAMP DODGE, Io., April 13.—Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul, claimant of the middleweight championship of the world, is now learning the whys and wherefores of army life here as a private in the 313th Engineers, under Col. R. P. Howell.

O'Dowd was among the 15,000 National Army men who arrived here in the final increment of the first draft from Minnesota and Iowa. He did not claim exemption.

Like other recent arrivals, O'Dowd is prohibited from leaving the company area for a period of two weeks or until the effects of the vaccination have become permanent.

AMES SCHOOL PITCHER GETS 19 STRIKE OUTS

Pitcher Herzog of the Ames School team of the Public School League, in a practice game against Lowell, yesterday allowed only four hits and struck out 19. His team was an easy winner, 16—1. Hoerig passed five batters. Ames pounded Snyder for 34 hits, including 11 doubles, three triples and home runs by Wagner and Hoerig.

Ames is anxious to arrange a practice game with Eliot, Webster or Blair for next week. Phone Central 7250.

SPERRY MEETS FARRAR.

Tom Sperry, city three-cushion champion, and Elmer Farrar, challenger, will meet for the second time this week for the championship, Sperry having previously defeated him. Because there is widespread interest in the match and consequently it is expected large crowds will attend, the players are trying to find a special hall at which to play it. The Moose Club is favored as a site.

EGAN TO MEET LEWIS.

MILWAUKEE, April 13.—Joe Egan, the Boston welterweight, is training here for his 10-round contest with Ted Lewis, the welterweight champion, to be decided here next Tuesday. It probably will be Egans last fight as he has been called into the national army.

MME. GALLI-CURCI ARTIST OF LYRIC AND FLORID SONG

Famous Diva Enthusiastically Applauded by Overflow Audience at Odeon, Reaching Climax With Brilliant "Shadow Song."

By Richard L. Stokes.

THE Marquise di Simeri, better known as Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci, scored a brilliant artistic and popular success last night at the Odeon, before an audience which, after hundreds had been turned away, filled every seat, crowded the boxes with almost double their usual quota, overflowed into extra chairs and stood in clusters at the entrances to the aisles. It would also have flooded the stage, as at Mme. Schumann-Heink's recent concert, had not the authorities forbade this use of the platform on account of fire regulations. It was Mme. Galli-Curci's first St. Louis appearance in recital, although she had been heard here once before in the opera "Lucia di Lammermoor."

Curiosity was therefore keen as to how she would comport herself in lyric song, for her forte is coloratura. The general verdict seemed to be that she interprets with a warmth and tenderness of feeling almost unexampled among the exponents of the trill and roulade. It is true that she scarcely approached poignant emotionalism, and that her modulations of accent were rather dynamic than colorful; they were due to variations of volume rather than to shadings of timbre. But her singing could never be reproached with coldness, and was always notable for its delicate musical skill, its fastidious taste, its restraint and sincerity.

Great Vocal Virtuoso.

These qualities were glorified by the unique gifts which have in two wears raised her from obscurity to the highest place in her field among woman singers now before the American public. The first is a delicious sweetness of tone, which from top to bottom of her compass resembles more closely than anything the plushlike lusciousness of the flute. The second is a voice equalized through its two and a half octaves with such an exquisite welding of the registers that the passage from one to another is almost indistinguishable. Finally, she has a great instrumentalist's mastery of the bravura resources of the voice, flinging off its feats of technique with the superb aplomb and ease of a violinist or pianist of the first rank.

Her sovereign command of the scale is sufficient to strike most vocalists with admiring despair; in elasticity, suavity and facility her runs and arpeggio passages, even when dispatched with dazzling velocity, are miracles to hear. She commands a pianissimo tone of the most etherial delicacy; it floats out upon the air as lightly as a feather, and dies away so softly that one scarcely discerns the moment at which it fades into silence. There was never a perfect singer, however, and flaws may possibly be picked in her trill, exciting as she can make it when she holds it at phenomenal length, swelling in a dramatic crescendo and then sinking to almost inaudible softness. Her trill, when delivered with power, appears to suffer from an unsteadiness of pitch and also from a certain rigidity, due probably to the fact that it is produced partly with the jaw, instead of in the throat. This defect may be one of the penalties of the fact that Mme. Galli-Curci is mostly self-taught as a singer.

Her Thorough Musicianship.

She has, on the other hand, one immense advantage over most other singers. Before she began developing her voice she enjoyed a consummate training as a pianist, and was a gold medallist at the Milan Conservatory. Sembrich had the good fortune of a similar preliminary training as a violinist. As a result, Mme. Galli-Curci's art is characterized by thorough musicianship and impeccable taste. This is no doubt the reason that, even in her most florid flights, her fioriture is continent; she is no mere prestidigitator of runs and trills; instead she seems, like a Heifetz or a Hofmann, to be tracing in tones a decorative pattern of exquisite beauty and finish, as legitimate as the arabesques which relieve and ornament architecture.

In addition, the diva possesses the gracious and charming personality of a richly endowed and highly cultivated woman. She is instantly on the best of terms with her audience, through a demeanor that is cordially friendly and completely unaffected. She has youth and physical attractiveness. And she is generosity itself in granting extra numbers; last night she increased her programmed task to half its length again, after one group of songs granting three encores in a row.

Her program began with Giordani's familiar "Caro mio ben," the old-style amplitude and slow-moving gravity of whose melody gave scope for her admirable legato. Then came the lovely old English song, Arne's "The Lass With the Delicate Air," and at the end the singer gave a foretaste of what was to come by interpolating an ornament of her own—a clear and pure high D, just touched daintily. Mozart's "Deh vieni, non tardar," from "Nozze di Figaro," enabled her first to show her highly intelligent skill in the delivery or recitative; and then, in the aria, her cantilena, that of a real artist, and also the melodious quality of the lower region of her voice. Rossini's "Tarantella," a sort of "Largo al Factotum" for soprano, afforded the evening's first exhibition of lively vocal agility. Then she gave with arch humor Liza Lehmann's "If No One Ever Marries Me."

Now for Pyrotechnics.

The fireworks began to flash in Rossini's aria, "Una voce poco fa," and the audience interrupted in the middle to applaud a prolonged crescendo trill. Here also she began scattering those dazzling staccati, in the execution of which not Melba in her prime was her superior. The audience would not be denied an encore, which was Waller's "Her Dream."

There followed a group of songs, in two of which, Grieg's "A Swan," given in French instead of the customary German, and Massenet's "Crepuscule," the prima donna proved that she could sing to the heart as well as the ears. Both were movingly done. Fourdrain's "Le Papillon" was an excursion into modern impressionistic French music, and Chapi's "Carceleras," sung in Spanish, was a rollicking lilt. The extra number here was Hahn's "Si mes vers."

Finally the Shadow Song.

Manuel Berenguer, a flute player, permitted the singer to rest a short time while he played Chaminade's Concerto in D Minor. Then Mme. Galli-Curci gave a group of bergerettes, or French shepherd songs, of the eighteenth century, which, infinitely better sung, still induced some reminiscences of the interpretive art of Yvette Guilbert.

The applause was so persistent that the singer added another of these songs, "Bella Manon." The handclapping increasing, she sang "Annie Laurie," with a quaint attempt at the Scotch dialect. Finally she sat down at the piano and, playing her own accompaniment with graceful skill, sang Tosti's "April."

Finally came the climax of the evening, her rendition of the Shadow Song from Meyerbeer's "Dinorah," with a flute bligato by M. Berenguer. The vocalist challenged the instrument on its own ground, meeting it in its own incomparable agility and speed, its characteristic faculty for ornamentation, its beauty of tone. This was the opera in which Mme. Galli-Curci was introduced to the New York public long ago, and this was the aria with which she created a pandemonium such as that city had not witnessed for a decade. Her St. Louis hearers raised a veritable storm of applause, and the artist was recalled to the stage perhaps a dozen times, until she finally made it understood that she was too weary to sing more.

CHIEF REQUESTS POLICEMEN TO SALUTE FLAG BY REMOVING HATS

Calls Attention to Custom After Receiving Letter From Lieut. Willson of the Navy.

Chief of Police Young in a letter published in the current issue of the Police Journal, requests all policemen to salute the flag by removing their hats, when it passes in a parade.

With this letter was published a communication from Lieut. F. M. Willson of the navy recruiting office, to the police, saying that during the recent visit of the Great Lakes Band the police failed to show the proper reverence for the flag. "This," he writes, "has a bad effect upon the public, as men in uniform are, in a sense, leaders among the public, and it is common to follow their example."

Chief Young, in his letter, says he believes that no disrespect was meant but that the custom of removing the hat when the flag passed should be observed in the future.

SHOP PROPRIETOR'S PATRIOTIC STAND CAUSES BOYCOTT

Owners of Gift Store Complain That Four Women Withdrew Accounts; Others Requested to Do So.

An interesting controversy has arisen between the woman proprietors of the Society of Applied Arts, a gift shop at 2812 Washington boulevard, much frequented by women of social prominence, and several of their customers as the result of a recent war discussion in the shop between Mrs. Isabel Brown of 5806 Von Versen avenue, one of the owners, and two prominent St. Louis women.

It has become known that Mrs. Cecelia Robinson of the Von Versen avenue address, who with Mrs. Brown jointly conducts the shop, twice has visited United States District Attorney Oliver's office to complain, that because of the pronounced patriotic attitude taken by Mrs. Brown during the course of the war argument, her shop is being boycotted by several women, four of whom have already withdrawn their accounts.

Report to Federal Authorities.

It was also learned that a negro maid, employed at the shop, overheard the conversation and has since made a written statement of what was said. This statement has been submitted by Mrs. Robinson to the Federal authorities. Mrs. Robinson further complained that at a Y. M. C. A. meeting held last Thursday afternoon and attended by a large number of women, a woman very prominent in social circles asked all those present who had accounts to withdraw them from the Applied Arts Shop. The woman explained, according to Mrs. Robinson, that the patriotism of two of her friends had been attacked by the proprietors of the shop, although their loyalty was above reproach.

Mrs. Robinson yesterday retained the services of W. Maffitt Bates, an attorney in the Third National Bank building, to represent her in any development that may grow out of her complaint to the District Attorney.

In explaining the situation to a Post-Dispatch reporter, Mrs. Robinson said that the affair grew out of a remark made by one of two women in the shop on March 23, several days after the present German offensive began. Both women came into the shop and Mrs. Brown was serving them when a discussion as to the casualty lists arose, during which one of the women is alleged to have remarked: "I don't care if 25,000 British and French soldiers are killed as long as our boys are not hurt."

Takes Exception to Remark.

Mrs. Brown took exception to this remark, replying that she did not agree with her because the French and English were our allies and their losses were virtually our losses. Mrs. Robinson said she learned soon afterward of the incident but did nothing about it until she heard of the systematic effort being made by both women to boycott her shop.

"Four women have called on the telephone and withdrawn their accounts," said Mrs. Robinson. One woman, with a pronounced German accent called and said: 'I cannot trade with the shop because of Mrs. Brown's attitude on the war. Maybe I come in after the war is over.' I understand these women say I reported the matter to the secret service and that they were reprimanded by agents. This is untrue because I did not report the matter until the boycott developed."

Bates said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that Mrs. Robinson wanted it distinctly understood that the women withdrew their accounts because of the decided American viewpoint expressed by Mrs. Brown.

Belleville Passes Loan Quota.

With Belleville's quota of $700,000 for Liberty Bonds surpassed, the salesmen who are canvassing every factory and business house in the city announced yesterday afternoon that they expect within another week to reach the $1,204,000 mark, which is the maximum fixed by the Government for the city. Many of the Belleville plants are already 100 per cent Liberty Bond.

"JIM" COLE, SOCIETY'S FRONT DOORKEEPER HERE, IS DEAD

Negro Servitor, 65, Invented Carriage Call System and Organized a Waiters' Club.

James T. Cole, better known as "Jim" Cole, 65 years old, a negro servitor who had achieved distinction in his chosen line of work and who died of heart disease at his home, 3955 Finney avenue, Friday night will be buried Tuesday after services at St. Elizabeth's Catholic church, 2721 Pine street. Mrs. Cole yesterday said Archbishop Glennon was expected to officiate.

Cole for more than 30 years was "society's doorkeeper" in St. Louis. No large social function was considered complete unless his smiling face was there to welcome the guests.

He was the organizer of the Caterer's Waiters' Club, an organization of 40 negroes who give expert service at dinners and receptions and he is said to have been the inventor of the "carriage call" system of giving numbers to vehicles so that they can be quickly called after a ball or reception.

It was Cole's boast that he had a wider acquaintance among members of leading St. Louis families than any in St. Louis, not even excluding those who employed him.

For many years he was proprietor of a downtown barber shop but devoted most of his time to his social engagements to which he was always ready to respond, day or night. He came to St. Louis in 1862 and was a valet before he became the guardian and arbiter of "society's front door."

GOODRICH TESTED TIRES

A YEAR'S testing, widespread as the American continent, has hammered Goodrich Tires through 4,178,744 tire miles, and proved them tested warriors of the road.

SILVERTOWN CORDS and BLACK SAFETY TREADS, they triumphed with an endurance that roused the enthusiasm of the tire experts detailed by Goodrich with the Test Car Fleets.

THE Goodrich Test Car Fleets in the South, on the Atlantic Seaboard, along the Great Lakes, on the Great Plains, amidst the Rocky Mountains and Pacific Coast deserts and highlands, have put the wear-and-tear test of rock, sand, gravel, mud and frozen slush to Goodrich Tires, and the tires have won with phenomenal mileage.

THE spiral-wrapped, cable-cord tire body, the cross-barred, close clutch, non-skid tread, the special quality of Goodrich Tires proved beyond a hint of doubt that Goodrich construction and Goodrich rubber making have brought the automobile tire to the peak of service. They give sure service because it is proven service.

THREE APARTMENTS ARE SOLD FOR A TOTAL OF $127,500

Several Other Similar Properties Reported in Process of Sale for Aggregate of Several Hundred Thousand Dollars.

INVESTMENTS DUE TO HIGH RENTALS

Modern Flats in Demand, Especially in Southwest St. Louis and West End, North of Forest Park.

By Berry Moore.

Acquisition of apartment buildings in the West End by individual investors and of other holdings for investment purposes gave substantial volume to transactions in realty during the week.

These included a six-family apartment building at 5321 and 5323 Savoy Court, at the northwest corner of Delmar and Union boulevards, sold by the Dyas Realty Co. for Fred Sibert to A. L. Slater for $42,500. This building comprises three stories and occupies a lot 80x105 feet. Each apartment has six rooms, a sun parlor and other novel features.

Another sale through the Dyas Realty Co. was that of a three-story apartment building at 5398 Berlin avenue, having a lot 61½x165 feet, from the Sam Hamburg Jr. Realty Co. to Mrs. Minnie Housam, for $50,000. This building, which is of recent construction and of most attractive design, has six apartments, each of five rooms, sun parlor and sleeping porch, with adjustable beds. The annual rentals, including those of five garages in the rear of the premises, aggregate $5250, according to the agency.

This is one of two buildings known as the Beltmoor Apartments, gracing a site in the Rock Island tract on the south side of Berlin avenue, midway between Union boulevard and De Baliviere avenue and opposite the entrance to Belt avenue. An attractive feature of these apartments is their proximity to Forest Park, which they virtually adjoin and overlook.

Another sale by the Dyas Realty Co. was that of the Richards Apartments, at 5578 Berlin avenue, in Washington Heights, to George Gorges, proprietor of the Standard Restaurant. The purchase price was $55,000. The building is divided into six apartments of four rooms, sun parlor and sleeping porch each. The premises include four garages for the use of tenants of the apartments.

Sales of Others Well Advanced.

Purchases have been practically concluded of a number of other high-class apartments, but details in these instances are not ready for publication. A deal embracing numerous holdings of this character, and aggregating several hundred thousand dollars, will be completed the ensuing week by Edward L. Bakewell.

The demand for apartment buildings on the part of investors has been a salient feature of the St. Louis realty market recently, according to real estate agents. This demand has been awakened, they declare, owing to the increased revenue derived from properties of this description, due primarily to higher rentals and absorption of vacancies, which has set a new record. Indications are that the demand for apartments soon will greatly exceed the supply.

The sale of the building at 3320 Pine street, home of the Yellow Motor Co., was effected by Eugene J. Altheimer to Kalman N. Horwitz, for $75,000. The building, recently erected, is of fireproof construction and covers a lot 175x128 feet. The purchase was made as a permanent investment, the purchaser being awake, according to Altheimer, to the future of Pine street as a center for the automobile business.

Sales of modern flats with steam-heating facilities, especially in Shaw's Lafayette addition and in Tower Grove Heights, as well as in the West End, north of Forest Park, were in large volume during the week. The Anderson-Stocke-Buerman Real Estate Co., the Christian Brinkop Real Estate Co., and the Joseph F. Dickman Real Estate Co. vied with one another in effecting the sale of this class of property in South St. Louis.

Rentals Attract Investors.

The purchasers, members of these agencies state, are attracted by the handsome rentals derived from this class of buildings, which yield from 10 to 25 per cent more than before the war. And it is said to be not unlikely that these buildings will command even higher rentals before the war ends, owing to the almost complete cessation of construction.

Louis Altheimer of the Ben Altheimer & Bro. Realty Co., says that his firm's rent list is virtually depleted so far as single flats and apartents are concerned. There is a dearth, said Altheimer, for the first time in years, of single flats and apartments.

"We have been advertising for single flats to supply the daily calls for such buildings at our office on the part of renters. There is no use of advertising for apartments, for there are nont. The absorption of apartments has been complete. We have two on our list, the leases of which will expire soon, but the lessees are still living in them, and we do not know whether they are going to move or not.

"The position of the landlord," continued Altheimer, "is such that he may fix the most arbitrary rentals for his apartments and get them. As a matter of fact, renting is good as to all classes of buildings. This applies particularly to houses ranging from seven to nine rooms.

"As a rule, owners are averse to renting houses in instances where they have been occupied by the owners as homes. This fact has had the effect of quickening sales of small houses appreciably, the houses being purchased outright when the owners refuse to rent them.

"Conditions governing realty in St. Louis," concluded Altheimer, "were never more gratifying, and all property, the indications are, will be on a high investment basis for a long time henceforth. Prospective purchasers are attracted by the handsome rentals forthcoming at this time. The only thing that is better than St. Louis real estate as an investment at this time is a Liberty Bond. The general realty market has been comparatively quiet this week owing to the fact that real estate men have been bending all their efforts toward the sale of Liberty Bonds."

One of Twin West End Apartments Sold for $50,000

A NOTEWORTHY sale of the past week was that of an apartment building at 5398 Berlin avenue, through the Dyas Realty Co., to Mrs. Minnie Housam. The price paid for this building, the annual rentals of which aggregate $5250, was $50,000.

The building is one of two known as the Beltmoor Apartments, recently erected by the Sam Hamburg Jr. Realty Co., the grantor in the transaction.

The building sold occupies a lot 61½x165 feet and comprises six suites of five rooms, sun parlor and sleeping porch, with adjustable beds.

There are five garages, with driveway from the front, in the rear of the premises.

COMMISSION COMPANY LEASES TWO MARKET STREET STORES

The Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. leased for the account of Lewis Rosenbaum two stores having a frontage of 50 geet on Market stret by a depth of 135 feet, to William Bray Commission Co., who have been located at 224-226 Market street for the past 35 years. They will occupy these stores as soon as alterations are completed.

The Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. also leased, for the account of the Front Realty Co., the store room at 5016 Delmar avenue to the William M. Clancy Plumbing, Heating and Supply Co. for a term of years. They will occupy the store for general business and will make a specialty of repairing and vulcanizing automobile tires. The leasing of the corner store in this building to John P. Pugh. Alterations are now being made for a candy shop in this building and the Bittel-Leftwich Tire Service Co. now occupy a store on the King's Highway side, leaving only three stores vacant.

96 LOTS IN INDUSTRIAL CENTER OF WOOD RIVER SOLD IN BLOCK

Purchaser to Improve Them With Homes for Workmen—New Subdivision at Granite City to Be Opened This Week.

H. H. Bauer, a capitalist of Bunker Hill, Ill., yesterday concluded the purchase of all the remaining unsold lots, 96 in number, in Sterling place, at Wood River, Ill., a subdivision platted and owned by the McCasland-Harnett Co. of Granite City. The price paid for the remainder of this subdivision was $23,000. The tract is in the heart of the industrial center of Wood River and is available for homes for workers. Bauer, who has ben a moving power in the upbuilding of subdivisions in Wood River, will at once begin the erection on the lots of houses, which will be offered on liberal terms to employes of plants in that district.

The McCasland-Harnett Co., one of the largest and best known concerns of the east side cities, has completed arrangements for the launching next week of Liberty Park, a subdivision in Granite City. This tract is located in the mose desirable part of the city and comprises 300 lots.

Members of this company believe that it will be disposed of, judging from the interest already evinced in the property on the part of speculators and homeseekers, within 60 days, especially owing to the large and increased demand for lots and acreage in that locality, which has developed into one of the most important manufacturing centers of the United States.

The lay of this subdivision is such that it lends itself to the erection of small homes and bungalows, which, according to real estate agents, are snapped up by purchasers as soon as they are completed in Granite City.

Speculators, as a rule, have formed the vanguard of purchasers, at the opening of subdivisions on the east side, anticipating the demand from homeseekers, purchasing the lots in large blocks and reselling them at snug profits. Hence, according to the agents, it behooves prospective homeseekers to be on the ground early, in order that they may precede the professionals and thus avail themselves of the ground floor prices.

It is understood that sites in Granite City have recently been acquired for several large plants, which, it is estimated, will give employment to thousands of workers. Thus, the new subdivision, it is stated, has been platted for home sites for the forthcoming army of wage earners.

LINDELL STORE BUILDING MAY BE DIVIDED INTO LOFTS

Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. Having Plans Made in Event It Cannot Be Leased in Entirety.

Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. have been appointed agents for the eight-story and basement building located at the southwest corner of Eighth street and Washington avenue. This building has been occupied by the Lindell department store.

The owners want to lease this building in its entirety and in the event this cannot be done, the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. have instructions to lease the building in lofts and stores.

Plans and specifications are being prepared to convert the building into one of the most modern loft buildings in the city, arranging it in the same manner as was done with the Lesser Goldman building at the northwest corner of Twelfth and Washington avenue. This building contains 260,000 square feet of floor space and was fully tenanted by the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. in a period of five months.

SHORTHAND MACHINE CO. LEASES FACTORY BUILDING

Will Occupy 30,000 Square Feet of Space in Structure at 2536-46 University Street.

Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. has leased for the account of Stifel estate part of the four-story and basement building at 2536-46 University street to the National Shorthand and Machine Co. for a long term of years. The building containing 30,000 square feet was leased to this company.

The National Shorthand and Machine Co. was organized about three years ago and R. H. Peck is president and W. S. Ireland is the inventor and manager. This company manufactures shorthand machines.

About one year ago this company leased a three-story building at 112 Pine street, containing 12,000 square feet of floor space and they were compelled to lease this additional 30,000 square feet to take care of additional demand for this machine.

ABSTRACTS AND TITLES FROM WAY BACK NEWLY INDEXED

Work Following Title Guaranty Trust Co. Removal Immerses Mark N. Anderson.

One of the most recently immersed-in-business men in St. Louis is Mark N. Anderson, vice president of the Title Guaranty Trust Co.

Two weeks ago the company removed to the new building of the American Trust Company, wherein the entire third floor has been given over to its occupancy. The replacing of records and indexing of abstracts and titles covering every piece of property that has changed hands in St. Louis since the first patents to the land were issued by the Government, has been done under his personal supervision. The company was organized 15 years ago, representing a merger of practically all the leading title examining companies of the city and county.

UNIVERSITY CITY PUSHES OPPOSITION TO STORAGE HOUSE

Score or More of Canvassers Seek to Increase Fund to Resist Proposed Use of Magazine Building.

WOODEN TABERNACLE ALSO IS PROTESTED

Advocates of Restrictions as Originally Placed Upon the Properties Claim Support From Court Decisions.

Twenty or more committeemen, assigned to small and convenient districts, have been canvassing University City during the past week for additions to the fund of several hundred dollars subscribed at last Saturday night's largely attended indignation meeting, to restrain the maintenance of a storage house in the heart of a choice residence section of that community.

The aim is to raise $2000 to oppose this and other possible encroachments. The Magazine buildings, whose diversion to the uses of storing household furniture is now threatened, are among the best known structures in the vicinity of St. Louis, and real estate men are discussing the contest interestedly, not only because of possible effects on this suburb, but because of the light that may be thrown on effective real estate restrictions in general.

This was one of the first of many suburbs just beyond the city line established with elaborate safeguards against depreciation in values. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been invested there on the understanding that it is one of the most highly restricted areas in the county.

An attendant of the indignation meeting stated that while in the employ of E. G. Lewis he had become responsible for the sale of home sites to 33 persons on the representation that such things as storage houses and other objectionable features were perpetually barred. An elaborate illustrated pamphlet, issued as late as 1910 by Lewis, sets forth the interpretation he placed on the restrictions. What he says is considered a happy expression of the scope and general purpose of all restrictions. A part of it follows:

Lewis on Restrictions.

"People seldom look far into the future. So imperceptible is the creeping in of the destroying nuisance and objections to a fashionable residence locality, that the home owner seldom realizes the great change that has come over his neighborhood, destroying its desirability, until his property has depreciated to a small part of what its value was when he built. There is one way, and only one way, in which a beautiful and desirable residence section can be permanently preserved as such, and that way is by restricting the neighborhood on all sides. In no other residence place in any American city has this been done on such a large and perfect scale as University Heights.

"Its name, University City, must become synonymous with its actual environment, one of culture, refinement, learning, elegance, entirely devoid of industrial or mercantile life, excepting in the single institution of the Lewis Publishing Co."

Certain property in the first two subdivisions laid out in University City was given a qualified exemption from the residential restrictions and "reserved," in the language of the restrictions, for minutely particularized purposes. Of this property the text of the restrictions filed at Clayton says: "The lots in this section described shall not, however, be used for any purpose other than the purposes for which they are respectively shall be used for private residence purposes, they shall be and remain shall be used for privade residence purpose,s they shall be and remain subject to all the provisions and restrictions in the proceeding sections."

Among the property so "reserved" was Block No. 4, consisting of one lot, on which the Magazine buildings on the north side of Delmar boulevard were built, which was "reserved for and on which, is situated the printery and office building of the Woman's Magazine."

Few Storage House Apologists.

Apologists for the storage house who, though few, are to be found in University City, contend that the language "reserving" the property to the specified uses of a particular concern defeats the purpose; that as the Woman's Magazine referred to is no longer in existence, the clause is impossible of enforcement, and hence of no binding force.

On the other hand, it is contended that it is absurd to assume that Lewis, who placed the restrictions on the property and still controls it, can effect their removal by any such technical construction. No claim is made that the successors and assigns of the Woman's Magazine would not have as much right to maintain a printery and office building on the property as the Woman's Magazine itself. But to assume that a covenant attaching to and imposing limitations on the uses of the land, into whatsoever hands it might fall, could at any time have been vitiated by the dissolution of the Woman's Magazine is preposterous, it is contended. Under former court decisions in which the University City restrictions have been construed very literally, it is argued that use as a storage house and, in fact, any uses other than those of a printery and office building, are shut out.

A wooden tabernacle for revival meetings, erected in violation of restrictions, has also become a subject of energetic protest. A movement for a zone system in University City, based on the principle of the City Plan Commission's system in St. Louis, has made some headway.

Kingsbury Place Home Sold to Investmen Company Head

Eugene J. Altheimer announces the sale of 57 Kingsbury place, on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Kalman W. Horwitz, to F. L. Cornwell, president of the University Investment Co. The price paid for the house, one of the handsomest in Kingsbury place, has not been disclosed.

The first floor comprises reception hall, breakfast room and kitchen, while the second floor has four bedrooms, with bath, a dressing room, with washstand and lavatory. A ballroom and servants' quarters provided with bath occupy the third floor.

There are hardwood floors throughout the house, the architecture and design of which is highly ornate.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR NINE NEW HOUSES IN HI POINTE

Construction in Subdivision Will Begin Soon—Several Lots Sold.

Charles de Largy, real estate officer of the Broadway Savings Trust Co., announced yesterday that plans had been completed for the erection of nine homes in Hi-Pointe, the new high-class subdivision at the northwest corner of Clayton and Skinker roads. Construction will begin without delay. Plans for other buildings for prospective purchasers are in process of development. An increased number of lots in the subdivision were sold during the week, the purchasers being both homeseekers and investors.

COMMITTEE TO ROUND UP REALTY CONVENTION PLANS

Four St. Louisans Going to Nashville, Tenn., for Conference—Will Return for Election Tuesday.

A committee, composed of James M. Franciscus, chairman; W. A. Giraldin, James P. Blake and A. R. Schollmeyer, has been appointed by the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange to go to Nashville, Tenn., to confer with the Executive Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards to perfect arrangements for the annual convention to be held here in June. The quartet will depart today, but will return in time to participate in the annual election of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange Tuesday.

Franciscus, who is president of Franciscus & Kunz, and a director of the American Trust Co., has been elected to succeed John J. Dowling, promoter and owner of Kathmar Acres, who resigned yesterday as chairman of the Convention Committee. Franciscus is prominent in both real estate and financial circles, and has been well chosen, according to members of the fraternity.

As the only nominee for the high office, Giraldin will be the next president of the Real Estate Exchange. He was president of the organization the year of the World's Fair, and was selected as one of its most eligible members. He is a director of the American Trust Co. and president of the Rotary Club. He will succeed Leo Block, the present incumbent.

Six directors are also to be chosen to serve the ensuing year. Nine candidates have entered the race for the board, as follows: James P. Blake, John H. Farish, Joseph W. Hannauer, Henry J. Korte, R. K. Kauffmann, John A. Peck, William Steck, Robert S. Williams and Henry R Weisels.

The retiring members are: William W. Butts, Clarkson Carpenter, William E. Caulfield, Bernard F. Dickmann, John J. Dowling and Hugh H. Stewart. The hold-over directors are: Joseph M. Ebeling, John W. Gibson, R. D. Kaime, Charles C. Kunz, Joseph M. O'Reilly and A. R. Schollmeyer.

GRUELICH REALTY CO.

The John C. Gruelich Realty and Investment Co. reports the sale of the seven-room residence on 50-foot lot, at 7115 Alice avenue, for James P. Dutton to Wm. Gerwitz and wife, for $5500.

Also the sale of the seven-room residence for C. F. George Lange to Stagier, for $6500.

STOLTMAN REAL ESTATE CO.

The B. H. Stoltman Real Estate Co. reports the sale of 4264 Flora boulevard, a three-story residence containing nine rooms; lot 50x125 feet, for Mrs. Fannie T. Fleming to Gilbert M. Chapman for $10,500. The purchaser was represented by the Kotarsan-Aithen Realty Co.

CHARLES GUNDLACH.

Charles Gundlach reports the sale of a vacant lot fronting 62½ feet on Florissant avenue, within two blocks of O'Fallon Park and adjoining the Lincoln Building at Florissant and Alice avenues, to August H. Hackemann and wife. This was the third sale made by Gundlach in that district within the last month.

BIG DIAPHONE AN ORGAN ADJUNCT IN EXHIBIT BUILDING

50-Mile Sound Range Attachment, Opening on Roof, Designed to Signal Start of Important Community Events.

ORGAN LEADERSHIP ASSURED TO CITY

Sectional Idea of Grouping Permanent Displays, Favored by Many Interests and Approved by Management.

A diaphone with a sound-carrying capacity, under favorable atmospheric conditions, of about 50 miles, is to be an adjunct of the $90,000 pipe organ to be installed in the Exhibit Building, the contract for which was closed Wednesday with the Rudolph Wurlitzer Company. This monster noisemaker, controlled by a mere touch of one of the innumerable electric attachments operated at the console, will have outlet in the roof, and is designed to signal any important community event such as the start of the Liberty Loan campaign.

The approved design of the instrument contemplates eight distinct organs, extending from the concourse section on the first floor to the third, with construction to carry full enjoyment of the music to the fourth and partial distribution to any part of the building. The main body of the organ will be on the second floor, the outstanding feature of the recital hall.

W. Meakin Jones, the chief expert of the Wurlitzer Company, has been instructed to come to St. Louis at the earliest practicable moment and take up the work of definitely arranging every detail incident to the installation of the instrument. When this has been finished the plant of the company at North Tonawanda, N. Y., will be set in motion to hasten the building of the organ, which is not to be done on standardized plans but especially for the Exhibit building.

Greatest Organ Safeguarded.

"There may be one other mammoth organ built by the Wurlitzer Company," said I. H. Lyons, southwest district manager, "as it would not be a bad idea to have one in New England, but beyond this we will not go and no plans are in mind even for that. There is nothing for the company, in the way of direct profit, in the building of such instruments; on the contrary, it is a positive detriment, serving to virtually tie up the plant for several months and delay output upon which we depend for profit. In the event of putting one in New England, St. Louis would be safeguarded in its purpose to have the greatest organ in the world, for the system of relays installed here would provide for additional stops well in excess of any possible developments during the next several years. In fact, I believe you will have in the initial instrument all that will be available for many years to come, as the limit of possibility in that direction seems to have been reached. Nevertheles, provision will be made for them here, to cover possible developmnts."

Sectional Grouping of Exhibits.

The sectional idea of grouping permanent exhibits, suggested by several business and industrial interests, is being adopted by the management of the building, to meet the desires of those who perceive advantage for themselves in it. The proposal came from chemical interests, who expressed a desire to submit it to their organization, and similar preference was voiced by leaders in the packing, stoves and ranges, and other industries. A. A. Busch, president of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, was among the first to definitely announce that "my interests will be exhibited in the Exhibit Building," but whether the brewing interests, with their non-intoxicating beverage products, will elect the sectional plan or the distinctly individual one has not been made known to the management.

J. H. FARISH & CO.

J. H. Farish & Co. report having sold 12 flats, each having four rooms, on the southeast corner of Compton avenue and Morgan street for [illegible] to Clarence J. Sandon.

The company also reports having sold through Sales Agent John S. Harris, the frame house at [illegible] avenue, [illegible] of a colonial Queen Anne brick [illegible] on lot [illegible] feet.

SUBURBAN PROPRTY FOR SALE

WEBSTER

A CHEERFUL HOUSE ALL IN WHITE

The entire house is in white enamel. For interiors in white there is a reason. It is always cheerful, and, besides, it is in vogue at present.

The living room and dining room are paneled and have a fireplace, a fireplace seat, bookcases, a buffet and window seat, all in white.

The kitchen and butler's pantry are large, with abundance of closet space.

On the second floor there are four bedrooms, a sleeping porch, fireplace and window seat, all in white.

The bathroom has down-to-the-floor tub, pedestal lavatory, large closet and linen drawers, all in white.

The third floor, two large rooms, all in white.

The cellar has laundry tubs, fruit closet, inclosed coal bin and toilet.

The house is well decorated, hardwood floors throughout, ample closet space, metal weather strips, shades, curtain rods, fixtures and copper screens.

The house is open for inspection. Meramec car to Lake av., Webster, walk west to 518 Lake av.

Want offer; 3-room cottage. Write E. G. Gut, 503 Railroad Bldg., Denver, Colo.

WHO WANTS A Bungalow in the City?

The proper setting for a bungalow is the country, where broad acres of grassy lawn fill the foreground and magnificent forest trees furnish the right backing.

GLEN ECHO PARK No. 2.

Furnishes the ideal setting for a bungalow, and we are just completing the best arranged and best built six-room bungalow that we have ever seen.

This bungalow was contracted for last year, when prices for building materials and labor were much lower than they are today. We are therefore able to sell this ideal home for much less than it could be built for today.

There is room for the kiddies to play, and for a garden and chickens at Glen Echo Park—COME, SEE FOR YOURSELF. Take St. Peter's car on St. Charles line at Wellston, direct to the property, or the Kirkwood-Ferguson car at Wellston to the Lucas and Hunt Road, walk three blocks south. Agent on the grounds today.

LAND—For sale; 94½ acres, 100 acres, 10½ acres, 160 acres, 80 acres, 20 acres; write for terms and price. Mrs. W. E. Dale, Mount Vernon, Ill.

BIG BARGAIN
Must Be Sold This Week

"The Stark Farm," now owned by Von Boston of Colorado; 386 acres, within 3 miles of Coulterville, Ill., 46½ miles from St. Louis, on the Illinois Central and Illinois Southern railroads, in the great Southern Illinois coal fields, and adjoining and near coal land and mine of the West Virginia Coal Co., one of the large coal companies, operating nine mines in Illinois.

100 acres open land for crops; 50 acres fruit, pears and apples, 236 acres pasture, with about 200 acres fine hardwood timber, white oak, red oak, hickory and walnut; over 30,000 ties and 100,000 coal mine props; the timber alone worth the price asked; all of this land underlaid with 7-foot vein of high-grade coal, with good rock roof; the coal is also worth all the price asked for the entire tract.

Has woven and wire fence around farm and cross-fenced; two tenant houses; large stock barn, two wells, cistern and running water in pasture; located on main roads and among good farmers and fine farms; we are offering three values for less than the price of one; the railroads and coal mines need the timber, the coal mines need the coal; fine market for the crops and fruit from this land.

Now, if you want a bargain in a land investment, go and see this place.

This Is the Beautiful New Gateway to

Hi-Pointe

The Highest Tract of Ground in St. Louis

Skinker and Clayton

MAKE it the gateway to your home. It stands for the most beautiful, best protected, moderate priced residence property in St. Louis—it is "The Ideal Home Place."

It is beautifully laid out with many parks. The improvements will be complete in every way, including paved streets and even paved alleys, granitoid sidewalks and curbs, sewers, water, gas, electricity, all included in the one original purchase price—$40 a front foot, at which price your choice of 140 lots, 40 feet wide, averaging 150 feet deep, can be bought.

Hi-Pointe offers every protection for your home. It is surrounded by Forest Park on the east, broad Clayton boulevard, lined on each side with a triple avenue of trees, on the south, the new campus of the Christian Brothers' College on the west and the Washington University district on the north. The very desirable restrictions on the entire property will keep Hi-Pointe the ideal home place which we have made it.

This is the most beautifully laid-out subdivision in St. Louis. Build your home here where Forest Park will be a permanent playground for your children.

The high elevation of Hi-Pointe assures perfect drainage and pure, fresh air, the prime requisites of health. Churches, schools and stores are conveniently near by. The transportation facilities are ample, with the Market street cars passing the property and the Hamilton avenue line now being constructed through the subdivision. Five-cent fare.

Sunday will be another great day at Hi-Pointe, as have been the past three Sundays. There is much to see, much to enjoy. Plan your motor trip to include a ride to this property, through Forest Park, or over Skinker and Clayton roads, and be sure to stop to see the many plans and sketches for houses which have been made ready for your inspection.

YOUR LAST CHANCE
I believe unimproved land in the Little River Drainage District, now selling from $50 to $75, will be soon unobtainable below $125. I and my correspondents have listed over 12,000 acres of cut-over unimproved land, which we are selling at $55 to $65. Some of this land is as fine as there is in the entire district; and it is today well worth double what we are selling it for; terms, one-fourth to one-half cash, balance to suit. Box A-13, Post-Dispatch. (c99)

THE GREATEST BARGAIN I have ever offered and by all odds the best buy in Southeast Missouri of which I have knowledge; authorities agree that better land does not exist than is found between Little River and Castor River in the Little River Drainage District in Stoddard County, Southeast Missouri; I own and offer an exceptionally well located tract of 3600 acres; 900 acres in cultivation; 1200 acres deadened; 14 houses, 17 barns; 25 miles woven wire fence; the Frisco R. R. runs through the land and the Cotton Belt R. R. skirts it on the west; two railroad shipping points and townsites, Zeta and Topertown, on the land; price for prompt acceptance, $232,000; one-fourth cash, balance to suit. Griff Glover, 5070 Waterman av., St. Louis. (c99)

BREAD MADE WITHOUT FLOUR BY FRENCH SOLDIER'S PROCESS

Wheat Is Macerated and Watered Directly and Yeast Added to Paste.

PARIS, April 13 (Special Cable).—A French commissariat officer named Pointe has just discovered a new way to make bread without flour, which, if the bread proves good and digestible, will greatly help the French authorities to solve the difficult food problem. Pointe's method has been examined by two French scientists, Le Prince and Cocq, and the results of their examinations have been submitted to the Academy of Medicine by Prof. Deloris.

By the method direct and rapid panification is realized very simply. The wheat used in making the bread is cleaned by strong water pressure. By maceration the wheat absorbs the necessary amount of water required for complete hydration and to the water taken up is added a little alcoholic yeast to prevent bad fermentation. The macerated wheat is then crushed by ribbed or corded cylinders and the pulp is got rid of by successive pressure on a metallic drum. Following this, there remains bran and a nitrogenous paste entirely assimilated. The paste contains as much water as a baker puts with flour. After adding a little salt and yeast the bread is ready for the baking, which takes no longer than baking the French bread of today.

Not only is the bread more digestible, but great economy can be realized in wheat. The quantity of wheat used yields 76 per cent of bread, which, when baked, is white (bread in France at the present time is almost brown), savory and nourishing. It will keep for a considerable time.

PATRIOTIC VESPER SERVICES

Archbishop Glennon to Officiate at Immaculate Conception Church.

Patriotic vesper services will be held at the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church, Lafayette avenue and Longfellow boulevard, tonight, in behalf of members of the Holy Name Society who are now serving in the United States army and navy. Archbishop Glennon will officiate.

Service flags will be unfurled today by congregations at the Christ Evangelical Church, 7117 Manchester avenue, and the Covenant Presbyterian Church, 2540 North Grand avenue. Special services will be held at both churches.

A silk service flag bearing 62 stars will be unfurled before St. Joseph's Church, Illinois avenue and Columbia place, East St. Louis, at 10.45 a. m. today. A parade and singing by the school children will feature the ceremony. One of the stars is for Father Edmund Baxter, pastor of the church, who will depart soon for service as a chaplain.

ARAB NEWSBOY TWICE AWARDED WAR CROSS

Tich Tapley, Familiar London Figure, Shows Bravery as Stretcher Bearer.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BEHIND THE LINES IN FRANCE, March 5.—One of the familiar characters of pre-war days in London was a street Arab newsboy who sold papers outside one of the hotels most frequented by American visitors. Delighting in the nickname, "Frog-faced Tich," he was the admiration of visitors as a master of repartee, varying his nightly refrain of "All the Winners" and "'Orrible Murder" with ironical comments on the world's events and caustic replies to pedestrians who ventured to bandy words with him as they passed.

Persons who knew Tich Tapley in the old days would scarcely recognize him now in his khaki uniform, with a "crowned" ribbon on his breast indicating that he has been twice awarded the prized Military Cross. His comrades of the London Regiment, moreover, declare that if he had been awarded a medal on every occasion on which he has merited it, he would be covered with ribbon from head to foot of his diminutive body.

Too small to go into the army by the regular channels, Tich, after several trials, was accepted as a stretcher bearer in the London Regiment. At the front he quickly became one of the most popular men in the regiment. One of his officers, in a report to headquarters, said of him: "Cheerfulness, courage, devotion to duty and disregard of danger are as much a part of his equipment as his haversack and his water bottle."

Tapley probably looks less like a hero than any other man in his battalion. But his caustic, good-natured humor which was little more than an amiable diversion in civilian life, became an invaluable asset in the trenches, keeping up the morale and optimism of the whole battalion. His officers find themselves continually paying tribute to his usfulness in this respect. One of them wrote a letter a short time ago:

"His gospel, whether consciously or not, is the gospel of cheerfulness, and in practice it works out that his spirits grow lighter in proportion as dangers and discomforts grow heavier. His jests in time of stress provide just the electric spark that turns the hearts of men from gloomy pessimism into luminous defiance."

The ex-newsboys has the reputation, from Lens to St. Quentin, of being absolutely fearless. In his work as stretcher bearer he goes busily about among the falling shells, always whistling a popular tune, with an ever-ready word of sympathy and encouragement for the wounded. He is generally looked upon as one who bears a charmed life, for he has never received even a scratch, and his very presence is regarded as a mascot.

Tapley won the second of his two decorations under heavy shell fire in the Chalk pit north of Loos when, single-handed, he bandaged and carried to a safe part of the trench all the wounded of his own company and several from a neighboring battalion.

TRIO DE LUTECE TO APPEAR HERE WITH APOLLO CLUB

Organization Coming to Odeon Tuesday at Local Club's Concluding Concert of Season.

The Apollo Club, which last season introduced the Trio de Lutece to local music lovers, is bringing this charming chamber music organization back for a return engagement Tuesday night at the Odeon, when the club gives its concluding concert for the year.

The Trio de Lutece—which takes its name from Lutetia, the Roman town on the site of Paris—consists of George Barrere, conceded to be one of the greatest of living flute virtuosos; Carlos Salzedo, who enjoys equal rank as a harpist, and Paul Kefer, one of the distinguished exponents of the violoncello.

In ensemble the trio will play four concert pieces by Rameau, a great French composer of two centuries ago, and the late Claude Debussy's "Petit Suite" in four numbers. Salzedo and Kefer will give Faure's "Berceuse" and Glazounow's "Serenade Espagnol," and Barrere will play a Chopin Nocturne and Valse transposed as flute solos.

The chorus, directed by Charles Galloway, will sing Parker's "Awake, My Lady Sweetlips," Vogrich's "In a Castle," "Robin Adair," harmonized by Dudley Buck, Nevin's "The King and the Singer," and Pache's "Home Dear to Me."

97 'WAR MILLIONAIRES' IN KIEL

But It Takes Only $250,000 to Be a Millionaire in Germany.

AMSTERDAM, April 20 (By A. P.).—As an example of "how the war breeds millionaires," the Socialist Vorwaerts states that in 1913 there were 105 millionaires in Kiel, whereas now there are 202, while multimillionaires have increased from 15 to 47. It takes only $250,000 to be a millionaire in Germany.

Two Plays at Jewish Hall Tonight.

The Confirmation Alumni of the Jewish Alliance Religious School will give their annual entertainment tonight at 901 Carr street. Two one-act plays of Jewish life will be presented "Sabbath Lights," by Ida Saul Williams, and "Riley," by Herman D. Levison. Those in the casts are Misses Evelyn Cohen, Bertha Bober and Birdie Zaichik, and Sam Schwartz, Morris Cohen, Nathan Haimsohn, Harry Pearl and Abe Feldman. Music numbers will be provided by Misses Mildred Razovsky and Florence Liebert.

THE SWORD OF JESUS.

BIBLE STUDENT.—"Think not I came to send peace on the earth; I came not to send peace but a sword. —Mat. 10-34. Dr. G. A. Gordon, Bosson, says: Matthew Arnold's noble comment upon the Greek poet Sophocles, that he saw life steadily and saw it whole, is of high moment here. Nothing is more needed today in the interpreter of the teaching of Jesus than the power to see that teaching steadily and to see it whole. If this method is not followed all sorts of contradictions will be found in the teaching of the Master. Jesus said, "I came not to destroy but to fulfill"; elsewhere he said, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my word shall not pass away." Among his utterances is this: "Peace I leave unto you, my peace I give unto you," and again this, "Think not that I came to send peace on earth; I came not to send peace but a sword." He counsels his disciples, on one occasion, to go forth in absolute trust, making no provision for life; on another he admonishes the impoverished disciple to sell his cloak, if need be, and buy a sword. We are delivered from this series of grotesque contradictions, which might be greatly extended, when we understand that he is giving counsel, not in universal propositions, but in reference to the occasion. Life is the one absolute value, and this value lies not in life's visible continuance, but in its integrity. Infinite values are here. and the disciples of Jesus, while slow to accept the challenge of brute power, can not allow themselves and their cause to be crushed out of the world by barbarian man. There is no contradiction in the behavior of the peace-loving men who formed Cromwell's Ironsides, when before going into battle they sang: "Let God arise, let his enemies be scattered." The cause of Cromwell and his army was the freedom of England from the mendacity and intolerable tyranny of the king. There is nothing unchristian, as a last resort, in the refusal to allow the worst men to degrade the best. A noble comprehensiveness will find all the precepts of Jesus harmonious with one another when the troubled environment of man is seen steadily, and seen whole.

TO TEST DIAMONDS.

L. H. W.—An expert says :"If you touch the diamond with the tip of the tongue you can judge by its heat whether it is genuine or not. A real diamond feels cold, a false one warm. The same is said to be true of ivory and celluloid, the ivory being colder than its imitation." Diamond tests: If a real diamond be used as a miniature reading glass, aided by a larger magnifying glass, a tiny dot on paper appears clear and clean. Substitute the false stone and several points, or one badly broken one will be seen, owing to unequal refraction. Then you can try the familiar experiment of scratching the sheet of glass. Because your stone will scratch does not prove its genuineness, however. Try to break the glass evenly on the scratch. No other stone can cut through the outer skin of a sheet of glass and give certainty of an even fracture like the diamond. If you can get a fine, hard jeweler's file, and do not value your false stone, try cutting your specimen. Your true diamond is proof against the hardest file, but the instrument will easily scratch any imitation that has ever been made. Having scratched your pretty bit of glass until it is worthless, drop it and the diamond into hydrofluoric acid. Before long the glass will be dissolved, but the diamond will suffer not at all. Then there is another experiment: Take a bit of stuff with red and white markings, pass the stone to be tested over it, and closely observe the result. If the stone be an imitation the colors will be easily distinguishable through it; if it be a diamond, no difference of color will be appreciable. A genuine diamond, rubbed upon wood or metal, after having been previously subjected to the rays of the electric arc, becomes phosphorescent in the dark; this cannot be said of any of the imitations. If the stone to be tried is covered with borax paste, and after being well heated in the alcohol flame, dropped into a glass of water, the proof will be instantaneous. The glass imitation will fly into bits, while the genuine stone will not be disturbed by the ordeal. Finally, try to crush between 2 hard plates a diamond and an imitation, and learn the difference.

MISCELLANEOUS.

McGANN.—Write F. M. Wilmot, Carnegie Hero Fund, Pittsburg, Pa. (Fire at Lutheran Hospital Nurses' Home, De. 6, 1917.)

A. O.—Government income tax for corporation 6 per cent—divided into 2 per cent regular revenue income, 4 per cent regular war income.

B. K. J.—While the German Emperor, as King of Prussia, is summus episcopus of the Prussian Evangelical Church, as Emperor he enjoys no such ecclesiastical hardship. Lutherans is the general title given those Christians who have adopted the principles of Martin Luther in his opposition to the Roman Catholic Church, to the followers of Calvin, and to the sections of the Reformation. Their distinctive name is the Evangelical.—Ency. Britannica.

INCOME.—"We are three partners, father and 2 sons, unmarried. Our business is that of novelty manufacturing, such as cloth-covered buttons, skirt pleating, hemstitching, etc. After paying out labor, rent, incidentals, etc., our personal profit is much less than $4000 a yr. Last year our personal profit did not reach $2000 mark. Our average business for this year may reach to $6000. Did we have to fill out the required tax blank and report to the Government Tax Collector?" No.

| RACE. | LOCATION. | NUMBER. |
|---|---|---|
| Indo-Germanic or Aryan.... | America, Europe, Persia, etc............ | 545,500,000 |
| Mongolian or Turanian ... | Greater part of Asia.......... | 630,000,000 |
| Semitic or Hamitic..... | North Africa, Arabia....... | 65,000,000 |
| Negro and Bantu....... | Central Africa.. | 150,000,000 |
| Hottentot and Bush........ | South Africa.... | 150,000 |
| Malay and Polynesian.. | Australasia and Polynesia..... | 35,000,000 |
| American Indian...... | North and South America...... | 15,000,000 |
| Total....... | ............... | 1,440,000,000 |

Food and the mode of living probably have much to do with the color of the various human races. Dr. A. Bergfeld, a German professor, wrote a book in which he attempted to prove that the kind of food eaten by the different races is responsible for the Caucasian being white, the Negro black and the Indian red. One theory is that the black races are made so as a result of continual exposure to the sun, but this theory does not seem to hold good throughout. Dr. Bergfeld points out that in the animal and insect world color is often determined by food, and he argues that by chemical process the same results are shown in the different human races. He thinks that the original man was black, as his principal diet must have been vegetarian. Fruit and vegetables contain manganates which ally themselves with iron making a dark brown combination. Dr. Bergfeld says that negroes who add meat and milk to their vegetable fare are never as dark as those who eat only vegetables. Indians are red because they have absorbed for generations haemoglobin, the red substance in the blood of animals killed for food. Mongols are yellow because they descend from dark fruit-eating races who penetrated into the plains of Asia, became shepherds and lived to a great extent on milk, which contains chlorine and has a bleaching effect.

In Memoriam.

For Mrs. Brennan, died April 10, 1917.

Twelve months have passed, dear mother,
Since you have gone to rest;
We hope and pray that ere this time
You are among the blest;
Although you now sleep peacefully
In Calvary's quiet shade,
Our love and prayers, dear mother,
For you shall never fade.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my dear father, Jacob Vetter, who passed away April 12, 1914.

We have longed for you, darling father,
Through four long, lonely years;
Our hears filled with sorrow,
Our eyes bedimmed with tears.
Oh, father, how we miss you,
No one but we can tell.
God, who loved you better,
Has taken you home to dwell.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my dear wife, mother and grandmother, Louisa Warning, who departed this life one year ago, April 11, 1917.

The Lord said you have finished,
Come up higher, mother dear;
You have won a home in heaven
For the pain you suffered here.
To part with you we loved so dear,
You left us broken-hearted,
And while you rest in peaceful sleep
You memories we shall always keep.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband and father, J. Henry Schmid, who departed this life April 15, 1917.

Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear father loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
Our dear father would be called away.
We could not realize nor understand what was said
When the message came saying that he was dead.

Sadly missed by

CARS
From the New Plant

THE USED CAR business is a specialty with us, not a worry. When you buy a car here we do not feel that we are burdening you with some one's cast-off property—but we give you a car carefully remade and refinished—something that looks and works like a real automobile—a car distinctly your own. 74 were sold last month.

AUTOMOBILES—MISCELLANEOUS

HUDSON-PHILLIPS Used Cars Represent Big Values

First. No war taxes to pay.

Second. No freight to pay.

Third. No cars taken from other dealers—all our own fresh stock, taken in exchange on new Hudsons—many cars only driven a few thousand miles.

Fourth. Depreciation practically all taken out. Most of our cars nearly as good as new. 80% of their good life still remains.

Fifth. Honestly rebuilt or renewed in our own shops by our own expert workmen.

Sixth. Our reliability your guarantee. Buy only from dependable people. Hudson-Phillips don't misrepresent and don't disappoint.

A big selection of good, dependable Used Cars now on hand. Prices very reasonable. Easy payment terms. We gladly demonstrate any car without obligation. Come and see our stock of touring cars, cabs, sedans and roadsters.

EGG PRODUCTION IS MATTER OF BREEDING

Eggs for Hatching Should Be Selected Only From Highest Layers in Flocks.

MANHATTAN, Kan., April 20.—Egg production is largely a question of breeding, according to Harold H. Amos, superintendent of the Kansas State Agricultural College poultry farm. Eggs from winter layers should be selected for hatching purposes.

Under natural conditions no eggs were laid in the winter months. Artificial methods have been resorted to until by proper selection and management a large number of eggs can be had during the coldest months of the year.

Hens Lay Well in Spring.

Feeding and care have a great deal to do with winter egg production. Of greater importance, however, is selection and breeding. It has been determined by careful observation that, generally speaking, the hens that make the best records during the fall and winter months are the best all-year layers.

All hens will lay fairly well in March, April and May. The poor layers seldom, if ever, lay in those months, when prices are the highest. They are not economical producers, and should not be kept as breeding stock.

Where possible breeding pens should be maintained during the hatching season. All poor layers, undeveloped pullets and otherwise imperfect birds should be discarded prior to the breeding season if satisfactory results are to be expected.

Hatch Chicks Early.

Early hatched chicks are the most profitable, both for meat and for egg production. They are the most easily raised because while they are young they are not subjected to the cloudy, rainy weather which comes later in the spring. They are usually more vigorous. Later chicks have a bigher rate of mortality, due to the extremely hot weather and the presence of a greater number of parasites.

General-purpose breeds should be hatched not later than the last of April if the pullets are to be developed for egg production the following fall and winter. The young cockerels can be disposed of as broilers at much better prices than those of later hatches.

With strictly egg breeds it is not advisable to hatch before the middle of March, as they will often begin to lay early and go into molt about the first of January.

In the present abnormal times it may prove profitable to hatch as late as June 15, but these chicks cannot be kept as profitable egg producers. They should be marketed in late fall.

Chicken Pox Is Easily Combated

Chicken pox in the poultry flock may be easily recognized and successfully combated, points out W. A. Lippincott, professor of poultry husbandry in the Kansas State Agricultural College.

Chicken pox—commonly known as sorehead—is recognized by warty excrescences which appear on the face and head gear of the fowls. These protrusions later become scabby. If removed promptly upon their appearance, and creoline or any stock dip is applied full strength, the trouble usually disappears.

It is an infectious disease, and as in most diseases of that nature, the infected fowls should be promptly isolated and not returned to the flock until the trouble has entirely disappeared.

Investigators are not certain whether chicken pox is caused by one or more organisms or a virus. Uncertainty also exists as to whether it is one form of roup or an entirely different disease. Chicken pox in fowls, so far as is known, has no connection with the chicken pox common to human beings.

Rabbits Need 2 Ounces of Food to the Pound

The average domesticated rabbit requires about two ounces of food daily for every pound of live weight. That is, a six-pound rabbit should have about 12 ounces of food, provided the ration is at least approximately balanced. For a rabbit of that weight kept confined, a balanced feed for a day would be three ounces of hay, eight ounces of a variety of roots such as artichokes, carrots, rutabagas, turnips and mangel wurzel, and one ounce of grain feed. When on range where the rabbits can get grass and weeds, a little of some form of concentrate or food scraps, in addition, will balance the ration.

Frequency of feeding depends very largely on the kind of feed and whether the rabbits are kept confined or have a grass run. But if confined they should be fed no less than twice a day. When not on grass they should have hay before them at all times. They require a roughage in some form just as other stock does. Young rabbits taken away from their mothers should be fed more frequently, of course, four to six times a day being none too often.

Egg Prices Lower Since Hen Eating Stopped

The Food Administration order that only roosters are to be eaten is drastic, but doubtless is justified, because it largely removes the danger that poultry stocks will be still further greatly depleted. In many sections this order has resulted in a marked drop in egg prices. This is unfortunate for producers, because, while eggs have ben high, they have been low in price as compared with most commodity prices. But this is one of the fortunes of war, and poultry keepers must in this way apparently help pay the cost of war.

The order has meant a lot of tough chicken meat in many hotels and restaurants. It is a good time to dispose of the surplus and inferior males. But it is also a time to be careful not to let go of the really good males. They should be carefully preserved for breeding purposes. Poultry prices are going to be good for a long time to come and in the long run poultrt ykeeping will be profitable. It is a good time for most of us to hang on by our eyelids.

How to Make Tough Old Roosters Eatable

Because of the order of the Food Administration that hens and pullets are not to be put upon the market of preparing male birds for the table, especially old and tough males, is one of interest and importance. Most birds of this class can be made at least fairly tender and palatable. First they should, if possible, be fattened. If fattened rapidly many old mates are not tough.

A good way to cook them is to boil long and slowly. Provide plenty of gravy and dumplings to go with them. A still better plan is to use the fireless cooker, if you have one. First boil for something like an hour and a half, then put into the fireless cooker over night. This will make most old fowls tender. Of course, if you have a bird with no fat on it, all lean, tough muscle, the acse is nearly hopeless. It is a good time to make the best use of foods that are wholesome and yet are not the best in quality.

POULTRY, BIRDS and ANIMALS

BUFF ORPINGTON AS AN ALL PURPOSE FOWL

St. Louis Coliseum Show Prize Winner Explains Value of Breed.

By RICHARD J. KENNETT,
Solid Gold Poultry Ranch, 2800 Belt Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

When beginning to raise poultry you should choose a breed which will answer all general purposes. In my 25 years of experience with poultry, I have never found another breed the equal of Single Comb Buff Orpingtons. I herewith give a few facts which you readily will find after raising this grand breed only a short time.

Hens will lay from 230 to 240 eggs per year per bird. They will lay from 20 to 23 eggs a month in the winter. They have won many Government laying contests against all breeds. They start to lay at five to six months old. They are immune to climatic changes. They are a very hardy breed. They are larger than the usual clean-legged breed. They grow quickly. They produce broilers over two pounds and a half at two months old.

They produce roosters of eight to nine pounds in six months. They are a handsome and stylish breed. They are very tame and do not fly around. They make setters and mothers. They do well in confined runs or free range. They lay a large egg, much larger than a Barred Rock or Wyandotte. They are a splendid table fowl as their meat is full of flavor.

They do well on any soil or any location. They are a splendid all-around fowl. They are always profitable as the demand is and always will be greater than the supply for good birds at high prices.

Regarding Plants.

I have been asked numerous times as to what plants are the most profitable to begin with. From my experience I would say to a breeder who is raising Single Comb Buff Orpingtons that he has the three plants combined. First he has a market fowl, secondly, an egg producer, and thirdly, a first-class show bird. You can sell your broilers that will bring you from 35 to 40 cents per pound, when they are from five to six weeks old. Of course, there are many who raise broilers and feed them for broiler purposes and sell them when they become eight to ten weeks old, at which time they weigh from three to three and one-half pounds.

But let me say right here that if you raise for market it is only a question of time until you become a fancier and breed for fancy. At least that is the history all over the world with breeders, they will start in raising for the market. In the first or second year someone will come along and see a very good bird in the flock, because it is true if you raise for market you will surely raise lots of birds, and where you raise lots of birds, there must be some few or more especially good ones. You will immediately sell a bird for $25 or $35. This is when you begin to open your eyes. You will learn more about how to breed your birds for fancy purposes, as well as the market and it is only a question of a few years until you are raising 200 or 300 for show purposes in the place of 2000 or 3000 for market, because the 200 or 300 will bring you more money with less time than the 2000 or 3000 did for market purposes. But do not think for one minute that chickens that are bred for show purposes are no good for broiler purposes or egg production. That is a mistake, because a chicken that wins in a showroom must be perfect, then of course you have good stock to breed from.

Description of Fowls.

They are large, stately in appearance, with long, round, deep bodies, with extra full breast and back development. The standard weight of the cock bird should be 10½ pounds, with head of medium size, carried well up. Beak, short, stout, regularly curved. Eyes, large, dark bay. Comb, single, of medium size, in proportion to specimen, set firmly on head, perfectly straight and upright, with five or six well-defined points, those at front and rear smaller than middle ones. Wattles and ear lobes, wattles of medium size, pendent, well rounded at lower edges. Ear lobes, smooth, of medium size.

Neck, of medium length, large, with abundant hackle. Back, broad and long, rising with concave sweep to tail, saddle feathers of medium length and abundant. Breast, broad, deep and extremely full. Wings, of medium size, well folded, wing fronts well covered by breast feathers. Tail of medium length, well spread, carried at an angle of 45 degrees. Legs and toes, thighs large, rather short, covered with soft feathers, shanks short, stout in bone, set well apart at knee joints, smooth. Toes, of medium length, straight, strong, well spread. Shanks and toes free from feathers. The abundance of hackle and saddle feathers on the male gives him the appearance of having a short back. In color, a harmonious, rich golden buff in all sections. The same shade of color ssould prevail throughout the specimen.

March and April are the best months to hatch S. C. Buff Orpington, so your pullets will begin laying around September and will also be developed and ready for show purposes. One of my winners, a cock bird at the St. Louis show, 1917-18, weighing 12 pounds, was hatched in the middle of April, and my winners in other shows were hatched in March and April.

In feeding my chicks I never feed until they are from 48 to 60 hours old, and then I start them on a buttermilk mash until about a week old. After then I start feeding steel-cut oats and very little baby chick feed. I keep plenty of fresh water before them at all times. I feed five times a day for the first week or 10 days, and four times a day for the next two weeks; from then on three times a day regular. I separate my cockerels from the pullets when they are about 3 months old, and find I get the best results. I generally feed male birds more grain than I do the females, because too much grain for females creates too much fat and stops egg production.

Concluding, I will say a beginner in a back yard, or on a farm range will get the best of results by using my methods, and years of experience with other breeds, by breeding and raising S. C. Buff Orpingtons. I know no one can praise them too highly.

Business partners are seeking each other through Post-Dispatch Wants.

BUYING CHICKS ONE TO TWO MONTHS OLD

Price Is Fair and Birds Usually Are Past Infant Diseases.

In recent years there has been a large business in baby chicks. Newly hatched chicks can be shipped considerable distances, unless the weather is too severely cold, because of the well understood fact that they require no food for two days or even for a longer time. But there are signs that another form of selling chicks is to some extent displacing the traffic in baby chicks. Chicks 4 to 8 weeks old are sold in increasing measure, either locally or are shipped to other points by express. There is merit in this class of business.

The chicks can be purchased at fair prices and with profitable and satisfactory results to both buyer and seller. The buyer must not, however, expect to buy such chicks for the proverbial song. If from good stock one should expect to pay a fair price for them. Such chicks from superior flocks are purchased for foundation breeding stock. They are, with good care, past the infant diseases, especially white diarrhoea. With good care most of them can be raised to maturity.

In the big egg-producing districts, such as those on Long Island, in New England, in the Petaluma district or in the San Fernando Valley in California, pullets of the age referred to, especially White Leghorns, are purchased in large numbers. Often they are purchased at a greater age. These pullets, intended for future layers, are hatched at large incubator stations by men who specialize in this branch of the business, while many of the purchasing egg farmers do no hatching whatever. In other words, egg farming in such sections is a highly specialized business. The advantages of such methods are obvious.

Soldiers Appetite Is Whetted for Eggs

The soldiers in our army camps are well fed, and they complain very little on the score of their "mess." But there are certain things they rarely get, and therefore crave. I get plenty of excellent food to eat but miss especially butter, eggs and sweets. Soldiers crave sweets and therefore consume on the side large amounts of sweets, in the form of cakes, soft drinks, candy, milk chocolate. Recently I saw a soldier on his way to "San Antone" for a half day off. I asked him what he was going to eat. His reply was, "Good old ham and eggs." I can sympathize with his feelings. I care little about the ham, but at every opportunity I indulge in butter and eggs on the outside. This situation is one reason for the specially high egg prices near large army centers.

TOMATO BLIGHT HAS NOT BEEN OVERCOME

Experts of Department of Agriculture Are Not Yet Ready to State Remedy.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Preventive measures that should be taken against Western blight of tomatoes, a troublesome disease which occurs in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast states, and last year appeared in the Mississippi Valley states, are described in a recent statement from the United States Department of Agriculture. The disease, Federal specialists explain, is distinguished by a marked upward and inward curling of the leaves, by a yellow color of stems and foliage, and by failure of the plants to produce fruit. It is believed to be due to a soil fungus which attacks and kills the feeding roots. This parasite can live on organic matter in the soil and is beyond the reach of sprays. Control, therefore, is difficult, and has not as yet been fully accomplished. The following precautionary or preventive measures are advised:

Grow the tomato seedlings in soil in which tomatoes have shown no symptoms of the disease or in soil sterilized by steam or boiling water.

There is some advantage also in setting out large plants, as they make considerable growth before the fungus invades their tissues, and therefore produce fruit.

It should also be helpful so to grow the plants that their roots will not be injured in transplanting. Although a parasitic fungus can invade uninjured tissues of its host plant, it usually enters more readily through wounds. If from the seed bed the plants are pricked off into paper pots, dirt bands or paper drinking cups without bottoms, they can be grown to considerable size and transplanted to the field without removing the paper or injuring the roots. This is also a convenient and relatively economical method of doing the work.

One of the most effective means of controlling tomato blight is the use of other crops in rotation with tomatoes. As the parasite is unable to live on other crops, it is obliged to exist saprophytically; that is, living on dead or decaying organic matter, in competition with other fungi. This does not entirely eliminate it, but greatly reduces it in quantity. To prevent its accumulation, tomatoes should not be grown on the same land oftener than once in four or five years.

The breeding of blight-resistant varieties is the most hopeful means of controlling this disease. Some preliminary tests of resistance are now being made with a view of developing a resistant variety, but every grower should also make selections for himself. Select from a badly infested part of the field only the plants that are free from the disease, and plant the seed of each selection in a separate row or plat. Determine the relative merits of the selections from the average disease resistance and yield and quality of fruit of their progeny. Do not mix selections nor save seed from any but the one that transmits the most desirable qualities to its progeny. When this is found multiply it and use it as seed for the field crop.

Auto School for Drafted Men Opens Tomorrow With 400 in Attendance

Recruits From St. Louis and Missouri Will Receive Training—Joseph M. Dooley Among Number.

Special instruction in automobile driving and mechanics for 226 draft eligibles from the 28 St. Louis wards, who have volunteered under the special call issued April 5 for 900 men from Missouri for training in this branch of army work, will begin tomorrow. The men will be assembled at the Jai Alai Building, De Baliviere avenue and Kingsbury boulevard. The instruction will be given at Washington University and Central, Soldan and the junior high schools and will continue for four months.

A total of 400 men under this call will be trained in St. Louis, the remaining 174 coming from points in the State outside of St. Louis. The other 500 Missourians will be sent to Iowa State College, at Ames.

One of the St. Louis volunteers is Joseph M. Dooley of 3131 Russell avenue, one of the "Dooley twins," who had been selected from the Fourteenth Ward to be sent to Camp Funston, April 26, with a contingent of the ward's second draft quota. At his request he was inducted for mechanical training. He was married in February, 1917, to Miss Edmee Anheuser and sought to be placed in class 4, but his claim was denied.

Cared for by Y. M. C. A.

The men to be trained here will be housed and fed under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. at two hotels, the Albany, 4875 Page boulevard, and the Lodge, 5512 Etzel avenue, leased by the Y. M. C. A. for this purpose. It was originally planned to house the men at the Jai Alai Building, but this was found to be impracticable.

The names of the men selected from the Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Twenty-third and Twenty-fifth Wards were printed in the Post-Dispatch last Thursday. Following are the names of those selected from the remaining wards, with the exception of the Twentieth, Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth, which had not announced their selections last night.

SENATOR PROPOSES A WORLD ALLIANCE AGAINST GERMANY

Owen Would Make Teuton Nation an "Outcast" Unless She Agreed to Certain Principles of Government.

NEW YORK, April 13 (By A. P.).—An organization of belligerent and neutral nations which would make Germany a political and commercial outcast among the people of the world unless she agreed to certain elements of international government and those principles which are recognized as true to the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan," was advocated by United States Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, in addressing a luncheon of the National Security League here today.

Having declared for the principles of international government, including disarmament at the end of the war and other policies set forth by President Wilson, Senator Owen said this compact of nations should say to the captains of Germann industry: "You sought to rob us. We do not desire to rob you, but we say to you that unless you underwrite these great principles of international government, unless you use your influence to bring this war to an end, we will, after a limited number of months, impose upon you the following penalties."

The speaker then enumerated the exclusion from all ports of the confederated nations of all German shipping; the banning of importation of German-made goods and of the exporting, "directly or indirectly," of any manufactured or other articles of commerce in Germany, the seizure of German-owned property in the nations of the confederacy and its sale to indemnify "any of our nationals who have property in Germany," the severance of all communication with Germany and a declaration that "we will isolate you as far as we have power, for a limited time, until you shall have learned the lessons that you cannot by organizing military force, rob the other peoples of the world of their property or of their liberties."

"This suggestion I make because it would save, possibly, the slaughter of the youth of the world," Senator Owen added. "It is intended to notify these commercial and financial thieves behind the Kaiser that not only they shall not succeed, but that unless they use their influence with the Emperor and his miltiary group to end the slaughter, we will end them as far as we can."

Entertainment at Jefferson Barracks.

An entertainment consisting of music and readings will be given at Jefferson Barracks at 7 o'clock tonight by the Communal University, under the direction of Adeline Palmier Wagoner.

Summer homes are advertised in Post-Dispatch Want Pages.

STRIKE SETTLEMENT EXPECTED

Definite Action in Case of Garment Workers Is Expected Monday.

Definite settlement of the garment workers' strike, in which 3000 girls and men have been on strike at 13 factories since March 15, is expected at a mass meeting Monday at 9 a. m. at Central Trades Hall, 2228 Olive street, union officials announced yesterday. Committees who visited the employers yesterday morning reported at a meeting in the afternoon at that place. Union officials would make no statement of the result of the conferences. Federal Mediators Oscar Nelson and David W. Benjamin attended the meeting.

Entertainment and Dance.

An entertainment and dance will be given by the Municipal Gymnastic Association Friday at 8 p. m., in the auditorium of the Grover Cleveland High School. The program will include esthetic dancing, drills and songs.

DENTIST RUST SAYS:

I have devoted fifteen years' dental experience to the problem of how to produce high-grade work at a minimum cost. The result is this wonderfully equipped office, which covers an entire floor, and its business system which bases the price of dentistry on the cost to produce rather than on an exaggerated idea of professional fees, and makes possible a genuine dollar's worth for a dollar, or first-class dental service at prices you can afford to pay. All results come under my personal supervision.

“The Sultan,” Chief of a $10,000 Tribe

ONE of the rare sights to be seen at the Missouri Botanical Garden this spring is a collection of 100 or more amaryllis bulbs, the most valuable in the world. John H. Scheepers, a New York fancier, a few years ago toured the length and breadth of Europe, picking up as he went the most perfect specimens of this flower which he could find. Last fall he sent the entire collection, valued at $10,000, to St. Louis for display at the National Flower Show, which was abandoned. But the collection was allowed to remain for the purpose of giving the Shaw's Garden experts an opportunity to see what they could do toward producing additional varieties. The one pictured here, named "The Sultan," is a wonderful creation in a deep, rich red, and with the "White Lady," a beautiful specimen in delicate white and green, is the rarest of the family.

AROUND THE GLOBE WITH "TEX" O'REILLY, SOLDIER OF FORTUNE

Enlisting for the war with Spain at 17, he fought in Cuba and the Philippines, became a teacher of English in Japan, a policeman and officer of the army in China, joined a revolution in Venezuela and for five years followed the armies of Mexican rebel leaders

IT was patriotism which sent Edward S. O'Reilly, 17 years old, into a recruiting office in Chicago one day in the year 1898, and prompted him to lie about his age, so that he could go by the shortest route—the regular army—to Cuba, and fight the Spaniards. But it was the "curse of the meandering foot," as his friend, Paddy Walsh, called it, which was to take him from that day hence for nearly 20 years into strange adventures in strange lands.

On the day he enlisted "Tex" O'Reilly's career as a wanderer began. He saw his share of fighting in Cuba, and still more of it in the Philippines, where he was of that little American army which chased the wily natives through their fever-ridden jungles for two years. After that he was successively proprietor of a school of English in Kobe, Japan, bodyguard for a Chinese rent collector, bouncer in a Chinese theater, a member of the Shanghai police force and an instructor in the Chinese army. Returning to the United States, he landed in Chicago with 25 cents, which was just 10 cents more than he had when he first offered his services to Uncle Sam.

But his days of wandering were not over. He joined a revolution in Venezuela, was made "chief" of the insurgent artillery and barely escaped from the country with his life. And after that his "meandering foot" led him into Mexico, where for five years he accompanied the various armies which had set out to overthrow the old regime. Now—he hopes—he has settled down, and having settled down, the logical thing to do was to write a book about his adventures. It is called "Roving and Fighting," and has just been issued by the Century Co.

As O'Reilly explains, a man whose life has been chock full of adventure is more prone to recall, in later years, incidents of small import rather than events which have had a bearing on world history. There was the case, for instance, of Private Tice, who was on guard duty when O'Reilly's regiment was at Tampa, awaiting transportation to Cuba. A man in civilian clothes attempted to pass. Tice halted the stranger and ordered him to advance and be recognized.

"I am an officer of the camp," the visitor explained,

"Get out! What are you trying to give me?" responded Tice. "Officers don't wear them clothes. You might be a spy."

"I tell you I am an officer," retorted the stranger. "I am Lieutenant-Colonel Roosevelt of the First United States Cavalry."

"Colonel nothin'," said Tice. "You don't look like no Colonel to me. I'll just call the Corporal of the Guard and let him size you up. And if you try to run away I'll bust you over the head."

So the Corporal of the Guard was called to identify the future President of the United States. Fortunately for Tice, the latter accepted the situation with good humor.

The Fourth Infantry, which O'Reilly had joined, participated in the charge on the blockhouse at El Caney. The men had been marching all night and were suffering terribly from thirst.

"That last climb up to the breastworks was agony," says O'Reilly. "My lips were swollen and dry, my lungs heaving, my feet staggering.

"One last scramble and we topped the trenches. I stumbled in my weakness and fell to my knees. Dazed, I knelt and looked down into the ditch. A Spaniard below me raised his rifle, pointed it at my breast, and drew back the breech bolt. Casually, as if watching a scene which held no personal interest, I saw him snap the cartridge into place. Lifting my gun, I duplicated his actions, like a stupid recruit learning to drill.

"Suddenly I was aware of a figure leaping past me. It was an American soldier with gun uplifted. The gun swung down and the butt smashed the Spaniard in the face. As he fell, the bullet intended for me smacked harmlessly into the sand."

O'Reilly returned to the States with his regiment and was offered his discharge, but when he learned that the Fourth was to be sent to the Philippines he elected to remain. The journey to the islands was made from New York by way of Gibraltar and the Mediterranean. Presently, the regiment found itself on duty at the Church of Caloocan. One day when O'Reilly was on guard duty at the church he was approached by a little man in a blue shirt and tan overalls.

"He seemed much interested in the long cruise of the Grant, and seated himself on another box by my side," O'Reilly narrates. "For nearly an hour he questioned me, smoking a huge native cigar as he talked. As he arose to leave I said: 'What kind of a man is this little runt Funston we are supposed to be guarding? He might come mooching around here and I'll have to give him the salute.'

"'You might ask the cook over there,' he answered, nodding toward a cook shack a few yards away. 'I have reason to believe he has it in for Funston.'

"When my visitor had departed, I called the cook and repeated my question.

"'Why, you poor rookie, that was Col. Funston you was chinnin' with!' replied the cook. 'He's a fine little fellow in most ways, and a natural born scrapper, but he's a darned crank about his meals.'

"I repeated the question I had asked the little Colonel.

"'Well, anyway you went to headquarters for your information,' was all the consolation I received."

O'Reilly was a member of a skeleton battalion which one day marched into a Filipino trap near Das Marinas. In the subsequent fighting, O'Reilly's bunkie was killed and the author found himself in what was probably the tightest corner of his entire career. He had gone to the rescue of a wounded comrade when a squad of insurrectos leaped out of a thicket and closed in on him. Before he had time to shoot they were slashing at him with their long knives.

"Back and forth I danced," he says, "guarding myself with my gun. As if by instinct, I was going through the movements of the bayonet manual as if on the drill ground. There is only a vague recollection of a ring of flashing bolos. A Filipino in a blue jacket stood not 10 feet from me aiming his gun at my head. I could see his yellow, grinning face and his eyes squinting over the sights. He fired. The flame blazed in my face, but the bullet, by some freak of luck, missed me.

"I do not know how long I had fought—probably not over two minutes—when Lee Crowell came fighting to my side. With a group of L Company men he had run back to my rescue. The Filipinos ran off into the brush.

"Those hours of drill on the parade ground had saved my life. My gun was chipped and scarred with bolo cuts, but I had not received a scratch."

There followed two years of active service in the Philippines, during which O'Reilly distinguished himself as a member of the Filipino Scouts. Then one day he found himself on a transport bound for San Francisco, with his discharge papers in his pocket. At Kobe, Japan, the ship was forced to lay up for repairs and O'Reilly, with some new-found Japanese friends, took advantage of the delay to see some of the country. He arrived back in Kobe just in time to see the transport steaming out to sea.

As his funds were low he hit upon the idea of opening a school of English. It proved to be too tame and he turned it over to a Japanese friend. It is in existence to this day. After a series of minor adventures, O'Reilly shipped on a tramp steamer and spent most of the voyage in irons for having fought the captain when that functionary struck him when he was at the wheel. At Shanghai, China, he was sent ashore, and here, through the efforts of the American Consul, he became a member of the Shanghai police force.

His beat was on the bund, or water front. One day he chanced to pass the German Field Marshal, Count von Waldersee, who then was in command of the allied armies in China, and a member of his staff.

"He halted me," O'Reilly relates. "Glaring at me as if about to shrivel me with the lightning of his glance, he said:

"'Are you a policeman?'

"'I am,' I replied.

"'Then why don't you salute me?' he demanded.

"Now, we were not supposed to salute army officers. On that particular beat it would have required three pairs of arms to salute all the officers who passed.

"'Why should I salute you? Who are you?' I queried, though I knew well who he was.

"'I am the Field Marshal Count von Waldersee!' he sputtered. 'I will not permit such insolence from a common policeman!'

"'Well, Count, you've got a danged fine job,' I answered. 'My advice to you is to behave yourself and hang on to it.'

"He almost choked in his indignation, while I walked on. The next morning I was called before the Chief, who told me I was right not to salute. He said that I should consider myself officially reprimanded and dismissed me."

The adventurer's experience in the American army won him a commission to drill a body of troops for the Governor of the province, who wanted a foreign-drilled bodyguard. After carrying this out successfully he was stricken with homesickness and used his army papers to get passage on an American transport bound for the States. From the Pacific coast to Chicago he beat his way and finally landed at his starting point after traveling around the world.

After working on Chicago papers for a time he visited the St. Louis Exposition and the "curse of the meandering foot" struck him again when a friend told him of an impending revolution in Venezuela. The rebels wanted men to operate machine guns. Upon his arrival at the junta headquarters he was handed a Major's commission and appointed "chief of artillery." But he says:

"Alas for my dreams of the pomp and pageantry of high command! The 'artillery' consisted of one old smooth-bore cannon and two machine guns. One of the machine guns had no breech mechanism, and thus proved useless. As ammunition for the cannon I found a supply of blasting powder and solid iron shot, but the shot were too large for the bore of the gun. This reduced our artillery to one machine gun in good order."

The rebel army was roundly defeated, and O'Reilly had a difficult time in escaping from the country. When he again reached the United States the Mexican troubles were just starting. While he saw fighting with this organization and that during the next five years, he served chiefly across the border as a correspondent of the Associated Press.

Long Live the King! ---

"I recognize them," she said clearly.

"You acknowledge, then, that they are yours?"

"I acknowledge nothing."

"They bear certain indications, madame."

"Possibly."

"Do you realize what will happen, madame, if these papers are turned over to the authorities?"

She shrugged her shoulders. And now No. 7 rose, a tall figure of mystery, and spoke at length, in a cultivated, softly intoned voice. The Countess, listening, felt the voice vaguely familiar, as were the burning eyes behind the mask.

"It is our hope, madame," he said, "that you will make it unnecessary for the Committee of Ten to use those papers. We have no quarrel with women. We wish rather a friend than an enemy. There be those, many of them, who call us poor patriots, who would tear down without building up. They are wrong. The Committee of Ten, to those who know its motives, has the highest and most loyal of ideals—to the country."

His voice took on a new, almost a fanatic note. He spoke as well to the other shrouded figures as to his comrades. No mean orator this. He seldom raised his voice. He made no gestures. Almost, while she listened, the Countess understood.

They had watched the gradual decay of the country, he said. Its burden of taxation grew greater each year. The masses sweated and toiled, to carry on their backs the dead weight of the aristocracy and the throne. The iron hand of the Chancellor held everything; an old King who would die, was dying now, and after that a boy, nominal ruler only, while the Chancellor continued his hard rule. And now, as if that were not enough, there was talk of an alliance with Karnia, an alliance which, carried through, would destroy the hope of a republic.

The Countess stared.

"No wall is too thick for our ears," he continued. "Our eyes see everywhere. And as we grow in strength they fear us. Well they may."

He grew scornful then. To gain support for the tottering throne the Chancellor would unite the two countries, that Karl's army, since he could not trust his own, might be called on for help. And here he touched the Countess' raw nerves with a brutal finger.

"The price of the alliance, madame, is the Princess Hedwig in marriage. The Committee, which knows all things, believes that you have reason to dislike this marriage."

Save that she clutched her cloak more closely, the Countess made no move. But there was a soft stir among the figures. Perhaps, after all, the Committee as a whole did not know all things.

"To prevent this alliance, madame, is our first aim. There are others to follow. But"—he bent forward—"the King will not live many days. It is our hope that that marriage will not occur before his death."

By this time Olga Loschek knew very well where she stood. The committee was propitiary. She was not in danger, save as it might develop. They were, in a measure, putting their case.

She had followed the speaker closely. When he paused, she was ready for him. "But, even without a marriage, at any time now a treaty based on the marriage may be signed. A treaty for a mutually defensive alliance. Austria encroaches daily, and has Germany behind her. We are small fry, here and in Karnia, and we stand in the way."

"King Karl has broken faith before. He will not support Livonia until he has received his price. He is determined on the marriage."

"A marriage of expediency," said the Countess impatiently.

The speaker for the Committee shrugged his shoulders. "Perhaps," he replied. "Although there are those of us who think that in this matter of expediency, Karl gives more than he receives. He is today better prepared than we are for war. He is more prosperous. As to the treaty, it is probably already signed, or about to be. And here, madame, is the reason for our—invitation to you to come here."

"I have no access to state papers," the Countess said impatiently.

"You are too modest," said No. 7, suavely, and glanced at the letter on the table.

"The matter lies thus, madame. The Chancellor is now in Karnia. Doubtless he will return with the agreement signed. We shall learn that in a day or so. We do not approve of this alliance for various reasons, and we intend to take steps to prevent it. The paper itself is nothing. But plainly, Countess, we need a friend in the palace, one who is in the confidence of the royal family."

"And for such friendship, I am to secure safety?"

"Yes, madame. But that is not all. Let me tell you briefly how things stand with us. We have, supporting us, certain bodies, workingmen's guilds, a part of the student body, not so much of the army as we could wish. Dissatisfied folk, madame, who would exchange the emblem of tyranny for freedom. On the announcement of the King's death, in every part of the kingdom will go up the cry of liberty. But the movement must start here. The city must rise against the throne. And against that there are two obstacles." He paused. The clock ticked, and water dripped into the tin pail with metallic splashes. "The first is this marriage. The second—is the Crown Prince Ferdinand William Otto."

The Countess recoiled. "No!"

"A moment, madame. You think badly of us." Under his mask the Countess divined a cold smile. "It is not necessary to contemplate violence. There are other methods. The boy could be taken over the border, and hidden until the republic is firmly established. After that, he is unimportant."

The Countess, still pale, looked at him scornfully. "You do my intelligence small honor."

"Where peaceful methods will avail, our methods are peaceful, madame."

"It was, then, in peace that you murdered Prince Hubert?"

"The errors of the past are past." Then, with a new sternness: "Make no mistake. Whether through your agency or another, Countess, when the Cathedral bell rouses the city to the King's death, and the people wait in the place for their new King to come out on the balcony, he will not come."

The Countess was not entirely bad. Standing swaying and white-faced before the tribunal, she saw suddenly the golden head of the little Crown Prince, saw him smiling as he had smiled that day in the sunlight, saw him troubled and forlorn as he had been when, that very evening, he had left them to go to his lonely rooms. Perhaps she reached the biggest moment of her life then, when she folded her arms and stared proudly at the shrouded figures before her.

"I will not do it," she said.

Then indeed the tribunal stirred and sat forward. Perhaps never before had it been defied.

"I will not," repeated the Countess.

But No. 7 remained impassive. "A new idea, Countess!" he said, suavely. "I can understand that your heart recoils. But this thing is inevitable, as I have said. Whether you or another—but perhaps with time to think you may come to another conclusion. We make no threats. Our position is, however, one of responsibility. We are compelled to place the future of the republic before every other consideration."

"That is a threat."

"We remember both our friends and our enemies, madame. And we have only friends and enemies. There is no middle course. If you would like time to think it over"——

"How much time?" She clutched at the words.

"Women vary," said No. 7, mockingly. "Some determine quickly. Others"——

"May I have a month?"

"During which the King may die! Alas, madame, it is now you who do us too little honor!"

"A week?" begged the Countess desperately.

The leader glanced along the line. One head after another nodded slowly.

"A week it is, madame. Comrade Five!"

The one who had brought her came forward with the bandage.

"At the end of one week, madame, a fiacre will, as tonight, be waiting in the Street of the Wise Virgins."

"And these papers?"

"On the day the Republic of Livonia is established, madame, they will be returned to you."

He bowed and returned to his chair. Save for the movements of the man who placed the bandage over her eyes, there was absolute silence in the room.

"How I Fired My First Shot for Britain"

know that my first shot was a trifle short, probably owing to the excitement of the moment, but I made no mistake with my second bullet. I nearly jumped with joy when, almost coincident with the report, I saw a Uhlan throw up his hands and then tumble in a heap from his saddle.

I am sure the millions who have since gone out to fight the enemy will realize the feeling of intense satisfaction that came over me at that moment, in knowing that I was the first man in the British army to bring down a German in the war. Many a shot I fired afterward at the Huns, but even although I had been told I had killed a German General it could not have equaled that moment of elation when the first Uhlan crashed to the ground with a good British made bullet in his body.

Mounting our horses we dashed off at full gallop, and within a few minutes a regular shower of bullets was whizzing all around us. How one or more of that rain of bullets did not touch any of us is one of those mysteries not easily explained. I am certain that if the positions had been reversed such faulty marksmanship would not have been chronicled.

After a very exhausting ride we at last succeeded in getting into touch with our regiment. We were greeted with great heartiness, and the eyes of our comrades in arms gleamed at the prospect of at last getting to close quarters with the enemy.

I was in the great charge at Mons. In the midst of the terrific clash of arms a shell blew off two of Darkie's legs. I was flung over his head, broke several of my fingers and was otherwise injured. But I sobbed like a child when Darkie died. I seized the bridle of a riderless horse and took part in the rear-guard action of that bitter day. My injuries were more serious than I had imagined, and I was among the first batch of wounded men to return to Britain.

I was taken to St. Thomas' Hospital, London, and I occupied the corner bed in the ward. A day or two after my admission to the hospital it was announced that the King and Queen intended to pay a visit to the wounded men, and I remember that a number of distinguished people, including Lord Kitchener, accompanied the royal visitors. Being the senior man in the ward, and also from occupying an end bed, I was asked to lead off the cheer when the King and Queen arrived in the ward. To me this was a greater ordeal than charging into a group of Hun cavalrymen, but I managed to rise to the occasion.

I remember when the King and Queen had passed, after inquiring kindly about the health of the patients, Lord Kitchener came over to my bed.

"What is the matter with you, my man?" Lord Kitchener asked, bending down and glancing kindly at me.

"My horse was shot from under me, sir, and I broke several fingers and injured my shoulder blade when I was flung over his head," I replied.

"You had better hurry up and get better, as the Germans are still waiting for you," his lordship remarked, with a slight laugh.

By October, 1914, I was able to return to France, and at the first battle of Ypres, at Loos and in numerous other heavy engagements I took my share of what was going in the fighting line. Here again my old luck seemed to favor me, and while my old comrades who went out at the start became a gradually dwindling body, I seemed to emerge from every fresh engagement impervious to German bullets.

One day in 1916 I was sent for by an officer who explained that a telegram had arrived from headquarters stating: "Please cause Trooper William Craig to be sent back to the base, as he is due for discharge." That is how I came to return to civilian life after having served 21 years in the British army.

Girls! Here It Is at Last!

Now You Can Use a Perfectly Pure Face Powder That Really Stays On Until You Wash It off.

A specialist has at last perfected a pure face Powder that really stays on; that stays on until you wash it off. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder to make it stick. This improved formula contains a medicinal powder doctors use to heal the skin. White lead poisons the skin and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that encourages enlarged pores, blackheads, and rice powder pimples. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. It is also astringent, discourages flabbiness, crow's feet and wrinkles. To get this unusual powder, learn to pronounce the name correctly. It is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and because it stays on better than any other, it is already sold by thousands of dealers everywhere, like Nugents in St. Louis. There are two sizes. The large size is only 50 cents and the half size is twenty-five cents. When you use this delightful La-may and you see how wonderfully it beautifies your complexion, you will understand why it so quickly became the most popular complexion powder sold in New York. One thousand dollars is offered to anybody who can buy a better face powder anywhere at any price. Remember, La-may is guaranteed absolutely pure, and it stays on better than any other face powder. When you use La-may and, if it is possible you are not delighted, your dealer is authorized to return your money without question. If you live out of town and your best dealer does not sell La-may, he can easily get it for you, or you can order by mail from the American Agent, Herbert Roystone, 16 E. 18th st., New York. Save this notice.

FANNIE LEAR'S GRAND DUKE

Strange romantic history recalled by death of Nicholas Constantinovitch, who paid with life-time of exile and obscurity for one moment's mad infatuation—When a young man fell into toils of Philadelphia-born international siren of half a century ago -:- -:- -:- -:-

Nicholas, in a fit of Slavic rage, beat Fannie black-and-blue, and discolored her mesmeric eyes.

FAR off in the exotic city of Tashkent death laid hold the other day of a man who committed one of the historic follies. His name was Nicholas Constantinovitch, and long ago, in his youth, he had been the son and cousin of Czars. At his death he was a forgotten man. Forty-odd years ago this young imperial highness incurred the displeasure of Czar Alexander II.

Those who were of the age of recollection in 1874 will not have quite forgotten the circumstances. Nicholas Constantinovitch, son of Grand Duke Constantine, Grand Admiral of the Russian fleet, and brother of Olga, Queen of Greece, was then a rollicking boy of 22, a tall, fair, imperious lad, one of the handsomest in Petersburg.

In this impressionable year of his life he met a Woman of Thirty. Nicholas' Woman of Thirty was no ordinary charmer of youths. She was, in truth, one of the most ruinous beauties of any time.

This Circean person had been born among the traditions and placidities of Philadelphia. More than that, she was the daughter of a clergyman, the late Rev. Dr. Ely. After some preliminary experiences in social adventure and on the stage, she married. Her husband died soon afterwards. A few years later she married, in Paris, a man named Blackford, of whom she wearied with readiness.

It was in the early seventies that Mrs. Hattie Blackford made her appearance in London as Fannie Lear—the unforgotten Fanny Lear!

The underworld queen of London in those days was Mabel Grey, the daughter of a cab driver. Under the guidance of Mabel Grey, Fannie Lear was for some years the princess of London Bohemia. Her conquests were many and notorious; her greed beyond satisfying. It was this last that led her, about 1872, to leave London for Petersburg. Much as London adored her, Englishmen did not throw their fortunes at her fast enough.

On the day Fannie Lear set foot in Petersburg she was just turned 30, a woman a little above the medium height, with bright golden hair, dark eyes and a skin white, soft and glowing.

The royal and noble debauchees of the Russian capital were already in her train when her appraising eye focused the young Grand Duke. She saw in a moment that here was the ideal prey. Nicholas was rich, was a Prince Imperial, was full of wild romantic youthfulness, and he was acceptably handsome.

In a few months Fannie Lear had exhausted the means of the young Prince. Owing to the inconvenient fact that his father was still alive, Nicholas had not possession of his full fortune and his father had sensibly restricted him when he saw the trend of affairs.

But Fannie Lear was exigent, and young Nicholas was caught fast in her charms. He struggled and writhed. One night, when he could no longer satisfy her thirst for money, when she threatened to be done with him unless he could fulfill her wants, Grand Duke Nicholas Constantinovitch was driven to theft by his passion. He entered the private rooms of his mother, the Grand Duchess Alexandra Josephovna, and abstracted her jewels. Madder still, he stole some of the gems from the royal chapel and turned them over to Fannie Lear.

Fannie Lear went with effrontery to the most fashionable cafe of Petersburg a few nights later, decked in the familiar necklace and tiara of the Grand Duchess Josephovna. Some of the royal revelers instantly recognized the jewels, and paled at their young kinsman's folly.

Reckoning was immediate and terrible. The affair was told to Alexander II the same night. In the morning troops of the imperial secret force took possession of Nicholas Constantinovitch, and called on Fannie Lear. She refused to surrender the gems and fled for protection to Eugene Schuyler, the American Charge d'Affaires. The enraged Alexander wanted to send her to Siberia, and would have done it in spite of her foreign nationality had not Schuyler used the utmost firmness. His activity in her interests offended the Russian autocrat. The Czar demanded his recall from his post in Russia, and not many years later Schuyler left the diplomatic service.

But first he had saved Fannie Lear. After considerable negotiation she finally surrendered the jewels and various papers and documents which her mad young Prince had turned over. She was escorted to the Russian frontier and soon returned to Paris, where she was resuming her mode of life, when, on intimation of the Czar, the French authorities asked her to continue her journey. A few years later she was also expelled from Italy on the plea of Countess Rosina Mira-flori, when her young son became entangled with the seductress. Fannie Lear's day as a temptress was ended.

She retired to London and wrote a book about her Russian experiences, into which she inserted various indiscreet letters bearing on secret Russian court scandals. Then she sank out of men's minds altogether. And some years afterward she died in the New York tenderloin, abandoned and starving.

Alexander II was not less severe on his nephew. He meditated sending Nicholas to Schusselberg for life, but the boy's mother interposed pitiful protests and finally softened the Czar. Nicholas was eventually stripped of all rank and titles, deprived of his military honors, decorations and privileges and banished to Uhl, in Siberia.

It developed that about the time Nicholas and Fannie Lear were sliding toward the end of the tether, Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, afterward Edward VII, went to St. Petersburg on one of his trips. That was in January, 1874. Fannie Lear, having vainly angled for the Prince in London, where he was in the habit of being exclusive, reasoned that in Russia, far from British eyes and British morals, the game might succeed.

Accordingly, she put herself in the path of the Prince's eye, that inclusive organ which was said never to have overlooked a pretty woman. The Prince bowed, and, the story goes, permitted the siren to be presented. That night Nicholas, in a fit of good Slavic rage, beat her black-and-blue and discolored her mesmeric eyes. In this shape she was unable to pursue her assaults upon the heart of the Prince.

Nicholas was detained for some time at Uhl, and then shifted to Orenburg on the Ural. Here he was placed under charge of the local Chief of Secret Police. This excellent official watched his imperial prisoner with some assiduity, but he quite overlooked one element of peril. One morning he woke to find that his daughter had been married to the dishonored Grand Duke.

Nicholas lived with his wife for some years, and she bore him several children. But in the end, it is said, they were divorced, and the wife and children were pensioned with $10,000 a year from the imperial treasury.

In 1877 came the Russo-Turkish War. Nicholas joined the army, was allowed to leave Orenburg, and served in the Plevna campaign with distinction. After the war was over he was permitted to settle in the Crimea, at one of the noted Russian seaside resorts.

But Nicholas was to fall under the ban again. The outlawed Grand Duke began to take his first interest in the Russian people. He looked about him; he saw life from new heights and depths. The fate of the poor moujik reminded him of his own. He became a radical. He began to be seen with the peasants at their meetings.

Precisely what Nicholas had done has never been allowed to escape to our knowledge. It has been said he was organizing terrorism. In any event, he was sent where he could do no more harm. An order came from Petersburg, in the hands of a military escort. Nicholas crossed the Black Sea to the Caucasus coast, made his way through Caucasia, sailed to the far shore of the Caspian and arrived, after weary marches, at Tashkent, Province of Sirdarya, and capital of the Government of West Turkestan.

The imperial castaway was installed in a fine old villa, provided with all needs and placed under the care of the Governor of Turkestan. Once he tried to escape, but the British caught him crossing into India and returned him to the pursuers. That was his last dash out of the cage of his fate.

In 1911, when the Grand Duchess Alexandra Josephovna died, full of years and sorrows, her son was allowed to return to the capital for the funeral. Nicholas II had restored to him the order of St. Andrew as single token of his imperial blood.

When the unhappy old woman was laid in her tomb, Nicholas Constantinovitch went back to Tashkent, to its languors and roses, and to its armed guards walking in the dusk beneath the trees of apricots and almonds. And there he died the other day, having lived long enough to see his dream of revolution come true.

you thought you had an armor-plated hide that not even criticism could puncture, and shot in the heel at last! Shot in the heel, sir—just keep your mind on that."

"What's that got to do with it?" growled Achilles.

"Well, to me," returned Priam, "it proves your great reputation as a warrior to have been mere press agent stuff. In other words, Achilles, no man ever gets shot in the heel running toward the enemy."

Achilles sprang to his feet and would doubtless have made short work of the aged Priam, had it not been for the prompt action of William Penn, who, like a true Quaker desiring only peace, grabbed the belligerent warriors by the neck, and throwing Priam into one corner, and Achilles into another, smilingly remarked:

"Come, come, gentlemen! Thee must not introduce rough stuff into Hades!"

"Well, I don't like his reflections on my courage," said Achilles.

"He will take them back, will thee not, brother?" said Penn with so menacing a glance at Priam that the Trojan immediately acquiesced.

"Sure!" he said. "Indeed I'll go further," he added tremulously. "Achilles was one of the bravest men that ever honked his way to fame. The fact is, you know, that whenever I think of that game his people put on me I see red, and say a lot of things I don't really mean. You were a brave old lad, Achilles, so brave that you forgot to protect your rear, and besides there are times when running away is the highest type of courage."

"Well," said Homer, who had been a yawning listener to the discussion, "you're all off in thinking of camouflage, for as a matter of fact for centuries before the Trojan trick was pulled off camouflage had been a favorite pastime on high Olympus. Those old gods up there took to camouflage like a pacifist to grape juice. Even Jupiter himself went into it to an extent that kept his domestic entourage in a constant state of turmoil. Indeed the only constant thing about Jupiter was the state of turmoil in which his camouflage behavior kept him. He was the prize camouflage of the ages. There was a good deal of the Brigham Young about Jupiter, but Juno was so jealous, Brigham Young's tactics wouldn't work. Jupiter couldn't marry every woman in sight after the Brigham method of wedding every girls' boarding school that happened to look like the only woman he had ever loved, and get away with it. Juno was strong on woman's rights, and so Jupiter had to resort to camouflage. Whenever he met a lady that he thought he could support in the style to which she was accustomed, he called his secretary of the exterior and had himself camouflaged so his own mother wouldn't know him. One day he'd rig himself up as a swan, and paddle gracefully along the skyline of the lady whose eye he wished to catch, knowing full well the feminine weakness for the cold bird. Another day he'd make himself up to resemble ready-money, and sprinkle himself over the fair one's horizon like a gold reserve on a spree. Another time he would stroll by looking for all the world like a quiet little wooly lamb, and some pretty little shepherdess he'd taken a fancy to would scratch his nose for him, and feed him nice fresh cauliflower with her Dresden china fingers, and so on. I guess Jupiter had the Kaiser beaten 70 ways for Sunday with his camouflage clothes, and the calm, nonchalant way in which he fooled the ladies of the hoi polloi was a caution to militant suffragettes. Savonarola was right when he said camouflage was old as the hills. Noah probably thought Ararat was a sea beach, until he found his own scow stranded on top of a mountain. Eve doubtless thought the serpent was a gentleman, and discovered later that he was a snake. Life is full of it. That things are seldom what they seem, the sages have told us for myriads of years. Art is eternal, and eternity works both ways, fore and aft. We have always had camouflage and we'll continue to have it to the end."

"Ubetcha!" said Socrates. "And what I am glad about is that over in France they are fighting fire with fire today. If there is anything that can beat camouflage it is camouflage itself."

"The point of which wise remark is just what?" queried Solomon.

"Just this," replied Socrates. "They are using camouflage to down kultur, which is the most insidious bit of camouflage yet developed by Satan to befool the human race. Pretending to make men free its real intent is to forever enslave them. Pretending to elevate a people to the heights of spiritual greatness, it has debased them to the level of brutish savagery. Claiming to be a blessing, it has turned out to be the blackest curse that has ever afflicted the human race. Promising its followers heaven, it has loosed hell itself upon them."

Solomon leapt to his feet, his face flaming with enthusiasm.

"Sock, old man," he cried, holding out his hand, "put it there! By every George and Jove in history, my boy, you've said something at last!"

And the members of the Associates Shades rose and cheered until the very keel of the House-Boat on the Styx shook with the reverberance, for even in the realm of the shadows kultur knows no brother.

to play a waiting game. We continued our flight side by side. After a while, however, the Hun began to get restless and started to maneuver for position. I noticed that he was trying to side-slip—go down a little—evidently for the purpose of shooting me from underneath. I was not quite sure yet that such was really his intention, but the man was quick. Before I knew what had happened he had managed to put five shots into my machine, but all of them missed me.

"I maneuvered into an offensive position as quickly as I could, and before the Hun could fire again I had my machine gun pelting him. The Hun began to spin earthward. He landed with a crash. A few minutes later I landed two fields away from the wreck and ran over to see the kill I had made. I had hit the Hun about 50 times and had nearly cut off both his legs at the hips."

Lieut. Roberts, in telling of his first fight with a German, as an observer, says:

"We were doing patrol over our lines and behind the enemy trenches. We'd been flying about an hour and a half when I saw a little spot away off in the sky. It kept coming nearer, until I could see it was a plane. I called my pilot's attention and he said it was a Hun. The fellow came over and tackled us. As he rushed by my pilot shouted 'Fire!' But the Hun was gone a mile. I thought if I had to shoot a man down going that fast I'd never get him. We both maneuvered for position and came in side by side. I took aim with a Lewis gun. Just at that moment one of the German's bullets hit a strut about four inches from my face. I dodged instinctively and pulled the trigger at the same time. I could see my fire bullets hit the Hun machine. He started to glide down to the ground. We followed him down a ways to make sure he was gone. Then I sat down, feeling satisfied. That was my first."

He felt a little excited when it was over—that was all.

"And the very next week," he continued, "we were out on a reconnaisance—two of us in a British machine—60 miles behind the German lines. We were returning when six Germans attacked us. We forced one to land. Then two of them tackled my machine at the same time. At the first brush my pilot was shot through the shoulder. Our machine tipped so that I came near being thrown out. I could see the blood oozing from his wound as we righted. One of the Huns then dove (the soldier always says dove) at us from behind. I took careful aim. When he came close enough I pulled the trigger. He went down. Meantime two French machines came over and joined us. They forced down two Huns. The other Germans were satisfied to leave us alone."

Lieut. Roberts was an observer over the lines at the time of the Somme offensive. There he did contact patrol, taking messages from the advancing infantry, relaying them back to headquarters by wireless and returning to drop message bags to the infantry. On July 2, at 8 o'clock in the evening, air volunteers were called for for a special reconnaisance. Roberts was among those who offered. He and his pilot went back to the position of Pozieres after its capture by the Canadians. They saw a working party of some 50 Germans walking through the town and dived to the attack.

"We shot off about 30 of them," says the flyer, "and started to fly off to our original position. We were in the act of turning when I got two bullets in the head. I was unconscious for about five minutes. The pilot wanted to take me home, but I insisted on flying over and getting the message. We dived over the German lines for the second time and saw the men who were to give me the message, about 2000 Tommies who were cut off behind the German lines. We had to descend within 75 feet of the ground to get their word. I took the message back and handed it to the General of the corps.

"Then I was taken to the first field dressing station. My head was bound up and, in a semi-conscious condition, I was transferred to a base hospital on the French coast. I was operated on twice at this place. Then I was sent to another hospital in England. Here I lost eyesight, hearing and speech for two weeks. One day they were washing up the ward and a door next my bed was slammed. The shock made me jump and all my senses returned. I was then operated on twice more. In all, 18 bullet fragments were removed from my head."

"Those Terrible Ear Noises Have Stopped"

"Those terrible Ear Noises have stopped." is what hundreds of letters are telling me. You remember that on Jan. 20 I offered 300 Treatments for Head Noises, Free, to St Louis Post-Dispatch readers, and this is the happy result.

Head Noises! What a picture of intolerable suffering these words bring to mind. Reader if you have Head Noises, I know well that no words of mine can describe the weary misery. But you are the one to appreciate the blessed relief in the words "My Head Noises have stopped," and these are the words which every day's mail brings me.

The joy and gratitude of the people who received the 300 free treatments offered in this paper last January has been so great and their appeals for friends so urgent that I am going to offer again

200 Treatments Free

Think what it would mean to no longer suffer with these intolerable, roaring noises—the whistling—the escaping steam—the hum of insects—the buzzing—all the weary catalogue of sounds, which at times make you feel that they must stop or you will go insane. Perhaps, too, your hearing is beginning to fail, but whether it has or not, you know in your heart of hearts that it will go, and the voice of science warns you in unmistakable terms. If you have Head Noises, sooner or later, you will be deaf.

Here is your opportunity. Send for one of my Free Treatments and see my method which has cured hundreds in just your condition. Just drop me a note or a post card, giving your full name and address. You will never regret it.

This offer and talk is for YOU. Perhaps you have tried other things and become discouraged. Perhaps you have been told there is no help. Perhaps you are carelessly neglecting your case from day to day thinking it will get well of itself.

In the Matter of Camouflage

Several miles longer than the Statue of Liberty.

THE most interesting thing to me about this row that is going on on the other side of the river," said Michael Angelo, as he sculped the Kaiser's head out of his camembert and tossed it to Dick Whittington's cat, "is the business of camouflage, and proud as I am of my own achievement along lines of art, I take off my hat to these French and American artists who can calcimine a fleet of 46 battleships so that it looks like a strawberry shortcake floating on the surface of the ocean a mile away, and so titivate a battle front with colored chalk and gew-gaws that to the eye of a German spy it appears to be nothing more than a row of peace-loving Charlotte roosters greeting the dawn with song."

"Oh, I don't know, Mike," said Savonarola, who happened to be lunching at the club that day, having wearied of his third consecutive eatless week. "I wouldn't wear out the brim of my hat taking it off to those chaps if I were you. They didn't invent camouflage. It is as old as the everlasting hills, and I don't know that your modern camouflaggers had anything on some of our first families of Italy when it came to flagging an enemy in the good old days of long ago. You were no piker in the camouflage line yourself, Mickey, dear."

"What, I?" said Michael Angelo, apparently very much surprised.

"Si, Signor—sure pop," said Savonarola. "I have known you to take a piece of plain, common garden, kiln-dried brick that was so poor in quality that it couldn't even be used on a Government contract in Russia, and as raucously red as a New Jersey mudbank, and with a few deft strokes of your brush turn it into a baby-blue masterpiece that an American squillionaire would pay $945,429.2s for at an auction sale. You know that as well as I do, and then look at Lucrezia Borgia"——

"Lucrezia Borgia?" echoed Michael Angelo. "O, come now, Savvy, what in all cimmeria had Lucrezia Borgia to do with camouflage?"

"She was a pippin at it, that's what," returned Savonarola. "Camouflage was that lady's long suit."

"Well I never knew that before," laughed Michael Angelo. "As I recall Lucrezia Borgia's record she ran a sort of de luxe delicatessen shop for people who were tired of life."

"Ask Leonardo da Vinci if I am not right," persisted Savonarola. "How about it, Len?"

"You can search me, Savvy," smiled Da Vinci. "Now you've got it you'd better keep the floor yourself."

"O tut," retorted Savonarola. "I thought you chaps had some brains. Why my dearly beloved Bambini, if Lucrezia Borgia wasn't Queen of the May in the line of pure camouflage, I'm blest if I know what else you'd call her. Did you ever see one of her Welsh rabbits?"

"I've heard of them," said Da Vinci, "but I never ate one. Fact is, I made it a rule never to eat anything at any of the Borgia chafing dish parties, just as I always wore holeproof B. V. Dees when I attended a reception at the Medicis. Safety first is my motto."

"Sure," said Savonarola, "and that's just my point. Those Welsh rabbits of Lucrezia's were pure camouflage"—— Michael Angelo laughed.

"Oh, I see," said he, "you're thinking of camembert, Savvy. We were talking of camouflage. Camouflage isn't a cheese, you know."

"I know what camouflage is just as well as you do," retorted Savonarola, reddening angrily. "And when I say that Lucrezia's Welsh rabbits were pure camouflage, I mean it. They appeared to be one thing when in reality they were another. On the surface they were the most innocent looking little bits of golden sunshine that ever gloried a piece of toast. To look at 'em you'd say that as symbols of peaceful innocence they had the dove lashed to the everlasting mast—but underneath! Largo di Gardi, Mike, they were seething maelstroms of destruction, and the man or woman Lucrezia wanted permanently removed from the social register after they had eaten a half-portion of Borgia-made golden buck had about as much chance of getting home alive as they'd have if they'd swallowed a drug store. Socrates' hemlock cocktail was as buttermilk alongside of one of the fair Lucrezia's loganberry flips."

"I hadn't thought of it in that light, but I see your point," said Michael Angelo, "and while I deprecate Lucrezia Borgia's fondness for getting her guests fed up on cyanide of potassium, and other indelicacies, I am glad if Italy may lay claim to the paternity of the wonderful art we are discussing."

"Italy nothing!" interjected Shakspeare. "I guess you never read my play of Macbeth, Mike?"

"Ah?" laughed Michael Angelo. "Another bit of dramatic camouflage I suspect, my beloved Bard—ostensibly Shakspeare, but underneath a mere side of bacon. That it, Billious?"

"O," said Shakspeare amiably, "I'm perfectly satisfied to let that matter rest just where it stands. I'm beginning to believe that from the way my works are being attributed to everybody but me that even at that I was the most distinguished person of my time, since I seem to be the only guy then living who didn't write 'em. But the point I wanted to make was that whoever it was that wrote my play of 'Macbeth' he foresaw this whole business of camouflage when he disguised Macbeth's enemies as a picnic grove, so that when Macbeth saw what he thought was Birnam Wood marching on toward him with a real Sousa swing, it gave him an attack of the Willies that left him as full of pep in the hands of MacDuff as a Bolshevik in the presence of a German peace soliloquy. Don't you remember the line——

> As I stand by my watch upon the hill
> I look'd toward Birnam, and anon methought
> The wood began to move!"

"Never heard 'em before, Bill, but if you say they're there I'll take your word for 't," replied Michael Angelo. "It only goes to prove that after all art is the original knockout. Whether it was invented by you with your peripatetic picnic park, or Lucrezia Borgia with her cunning little rabbits so disengaging in their habits that started it, camouflage was some discovery."

"It went further back than you imagine," put in Priam sadly, spreading a thick layer of horseradish on his toast. "It may have done a lot for MacDuff, but I want to tell you right now, boys, it ruined me. I had the nicest little kingdom in the world up around Troy. It had Seattle and Oklahoma City and all the rest of your marvels of modern growth, backed off the map. We were all happy and prosperous until that fool son of mine, Paris, awarded the blue ribbon for beauty to Venus, and thereby knocked us all galley-west. That decision made certain other leading ladies of the Olympian Sorosis so immortally mad that they sicked the Greeks on me at a time when preparedness was my short suit. But even at that they had to use camouflage to put me on the mat. We had 'em beaten to a frazzle when some wizard on the Greek side got the big idea, inducing Agamemnon to holler for peace, and as a token of Greek sincerity, instead of handing me a loving cup they made me a present of a horse several miles longer than the Statue of Liberty. You know the rest. That old cob looked like a midway stunt at a World's Fair, and while I didn't want the darn thing any more than London wants Barnard's statue of Lincoln, I thought it would please the children, and took it." "And then what?" said Wat Tyler.

"Then what?" roared Priam. "Do you mean to tell me you never heard of the Trojan horse?"

"No," said Tyler. "I never studied mathematics."

"Well, it was a horse on me, all right!" said Priam moodily. "It was built of wood and stucco, and was about the size of Billy Sunday's tabernacles. It was mounted on wheels, and rolled into our Central Park by the Greek peace delegation, and formally accepted by my royal highness as a token of Agamemnon's love. We made a great festival of the occasion. All the schools were closed for the day, and the leading Nestors and Chauncey Depewsters of the time delivered addresses on the 'Era of Good Feeling,' and 'The End of the War,' and 'The Overthrow of Mars,' and so on, from every angle of that old nag, and then when as a grand climacteric I climbed up the old hack's neck and planted a Trojan flag in one ear and a Greek flag in the other, while the band played 'There Are No Pals Like the Old Pals," the populace yelled themselves to exhaustion with joy. Like a Bolshevik boob on a Potsdam payroll I ordered the army demobilized, and went to bed happy. And then"——

Priam wept bitter tears.

"And then the camouflage got in its fine work," he resumed, nerving himself up with a long, deep draft of Worcestershire sauce. "That old horse wasn't a horse at all. It was a cantonment! Instead of being a mere bit of equine pleasantry it turned out to be a division of Rough Riders, only they rode inside the horse instead of on his back. The horrible beast held the whole Greek general staff, 15 brigades of discus throwers, seven regiments of natural gasoliers armed to the teeth with the fiercest kind of Greek propaganda and a highly efficient fire department that for making things burn to an ash beat anything in that line in all history. They started the home fires burning, and kept 'em going to the last flicker of the ultimate ember. In short, Wat, while I slept, dreaming sweet dreams of peace, those Greeks inside shinned down that old jade's hind legs, and when I waked up in the morning Troy was a flickering reminiscence."

"It was a great piece of strategy," said Achilles proudly.

"It was a low-down Dutch trick!" retorted Priam, angrily. "But much as I have always regretted it, two good things came out of it. It inspired Virgil to write a great poem, and it showed you up for what you were—jealous, sulky when you couldn't have your own way, and brave only because

A NOVEL FRENCH STRATEGIC WAR PUZZLE

IT is not often that a puzzle, which has all the earmarks of a big popular success, is the result of a war dream. Nevertheless, the accompanying illustration, called "The French War Puzzle," is the direct result of the following dream as told by the inventor, R. C. Germain of New York City.

I HAD been reading about the war and studying the maps and movements of the troops for so long, that one night I just naturally dreamed about the great war.

I dreamed I was on top of the Eiffel Tower in Paris, and could plainly see all over France. I saw the movements of the French troops, moving to different points around and about France.

I saw division after division moving from one city to another, but what struck me most particularly was the fact that all these troops' movements were made in the shortest and most direct lines.

I do not know how long that dream lasted, but at any rate, when I awoke, the war had not been decided, in fact it had hardly begun. That dream preyed on my mind for over a week. One night when I sat smoking my cigarette in my room that dream seemed to picture itself again on the wall before me.

At last I said: "I have it, just the thing!" The whole world is at war. My puzzle must be on the war.

For divisions I decided to use little disks. I started in to move each division from one city to another in the most direct line, which is a straight line, and after locating a division in a city I determined not to start it, or any other division, from that city to another.

I succeeded in locating first four divisions, then five, and finally six, safely into cities, but the seventh division could not be moved strictly to orders, namely; in a straight line from its starting point to another city. That proved to be the "puzz in the puzzle."

Well, to make my story short, it took me some time to succeed in getting that seventh division located properly.

I did it—you can do it—in fact, anyone with eyesight can do it. So go to it and best of luck is all I wish those who try it.

DIRECTIONS: Cut out seven paper disks or take seven buttons or pennies and place in your hand. These represent divisions of troops. Move one division at a time from any one of the eight cities in a straight course or line to another city. (Moving out of a straight course or cutting around corners is not allowed.)

As soon as the divisions are placed in the cities the cities are occupied (no moving divisions out of a city after once in) and cannot be used as a starting point for any of the remaining divisions.

deal when I was your age and—rations was sort o' short, this way.

"You must have been having a run of bad luck," observed their neighbor, obviously dallying with his food to prolong the conversation.

"I—have," said Carrington, truthfully.

"Let's see—what did you say your trade was?"

"I'm a lawyer."

"Oh—are you?" For an instant his surprise was tinged with suspicion. "I thought lawyers always—But mebbe you got hit hard, and lost everything at once?"

After a moment's hesitation Carrington nodded gloomily.

"Say that's tough! Lose much?"

Again the lawyer nodded.

"That is tough! How did it happen?"

"It happened," said Jean, in a curiously low and vibrant tone, "because he refused to be—bribed."

"Oh!" exclaimed the other auditor, with new interest. "Mebbe you're one of the fellows that's been up against a big corporation."

"Something like that," said the girl. "He was employed to investigate certain—abuses."

"Muck-raking, eh?"

"Yes. And when he got into this case, he found that it involved the—the exposure of a friend—a very special friend of his. When this man and his—associates—found out what was going to happen, they tried to stop the investigation, and when that failed they—they tried to—influence"——

"They tried to bribe—him?" Incredulously he glanced at Carrington.

"Not at first. They tried arguments—persuasion—threats"——

"And they finally got him where they could squeeze him!"

"Yes—that's what it amounted to."

"But—hadn't you any friends to stand by you? Where were his friends?"

"He had one friend who could have helped him. Just one—a woman. He went to her and begged her to understand—but she wouldn't. The man whom he had to attack was—was a relative of hers, and"——She hesitated a moment.

"Oh, well! I guess nobody could expect her to go back on her own people!"

"She might at least have been honest, but she wasn't! For when everything else had failed, it was she—this woman who might have saved him—who tried to bribe him."

"No! You don't say!" The man leaned his elbows on the table, intent on the story.

Carrington's eyes blazed from a white face, and the girl continued bitterly:

"She offered him what she knew he wanted most in all the world, if he would use his position and his power to—to screen her relative. And when he refused, she discarded him. She sent him away. She said she hoped she might never see him again. And all the time she knew—down in her heart she knew perfectly well that he was right and that her father was"——

"He was more sinned against than sinning," hoarsely interrupted Carrington. "He was old—and not very keen. I tried to bring that out."

Again she checked him with a gesture, refusing to meet his gaze, and by her own steady regard keeping him reminded of the listener across the table, to whom she apparently spoke. The man was now looking from one to the other, puzzled by evidences of a strong, uncharted undercurrent.

"And when it was all over, she had to face—the truth. She had to realize what she had done—and been"——

"Never mind all that, Jean!" broke hoarsely from Carrington. "Was there—nothing else?"

"I say she had to face the truth—about herself and—him." She was very pale now, and her trembling hands tightly gripped the cold marble. "Even then she might have saved him—something, but she was a coward—and proud—and in all the months since she has never lifted an eyelash to help him—or to make reparation."

"That was pretty mean," slowly commented the man opposite. "Pretty mean. Now, you couldn't do a thing like that to save your life."

"No," quickly interpolated Carrington, anticipating confession; "she couldn't."

Jean lifted her glance, which had fallen, and her eyes were very somber. "I did once," she said. "I'm not— You are mistaken about me. I quarreled with him once—because he was stronger than I—and for months I wouldn't speak to him—nor see him—nor answer his letters—although all the time I knew"——She faltered, her ebbing self-control further drained by the intensity of Carrington's gaze. "And then, one day, I had to speak to him about something—and I was glad. But even then I wouldn't admit that there was anything better or bigger than my pride—and I was angry because I was glad; and I was hard and bitter—when I wasn't flippant and silly, because—because I was so afraid he would see—I deliberately hurt him—humiliated him—when I ought to have been begging"——

"No, no! Jean! Don't!"

"But, you see, you ain't like the other woman, after all," said the old man, gently, "and there's no use feeling bad about it now, because in the end you made up for it. Didn't she?" He smiled at Carrington.

"She's making up for it—for everything—every instant!" The lawyer's voice shook.

"Of course she is! That's what I say. It's worth losing a good deal—and bearing a good deal—just to be sure that now, whatever happens, she'll stick to you to the end."

"Yes," said Carrington; "and you will—won't you, Jean?"

Her only reply was to let him see deep into her eyes for an instant.

The man across the table nodded. "I know," said he. "My wife was like that, too. Well," with a change of tone, "I guess they're going to shut this place up in a few minutes, and we'd better be going. But, see here, young man, I want you should take this." He slipped a half-dollar across the table to Carrington. "'Tain't much, but I can spare it, and I'd hate to think that mebbe you two didn't have any breakfast."

The younger man needed no prompting this time, nor was it possible to mistake the sincerity of his gratitude as he accepted the coin.

"Thank you. Will you give me your name and address, please? I shall pay this back in a few days."

"My name's John King, and I'm working for the Baker & Ledgett Co.; but there's no hurry, you know. I can spare it."

"I understand, but I shall look you up soon. I don't want to lose sight of you; and I hope the time may come when I can do as much for you as you've done for me tonight—but it never will!"

The other's eyes widened in astonishment. "Me! Oh, you mean the steak and biscuits!" He laughed genially. "I guess you never were broke before! You pay that back to some other fellow who's in the same fix some day. That'll be all right."

When they had parted from John King, Carrington asked:

"And now, dear, shall we go up to the theater and borrow money from Jim Sawyer to get home on?"

"Oh, no! I don't want to see people—yet," she said, a little catch in her voice. "Let's—let's go and pawn your watch!"

$125,000,000 CANAL BETWEEN ∴ LAKES ERIE AND ONTARIO ∴

Plans ready for construction after war would provide passage, entirely on American soil, for biggest lake steamers — One feature greatest lift-lock in the world, capable of raising largest craft 208 feet in 20 minutes—Fall of water to supply 800,000 horse power—Canal would be 40 miles long, with bottom width 250 to 300 feet.

—Copyright. 1918, Munn & Co., Inc.

How ocean liner would be lifted up to Lake Erie by proposed 208-foot lift-locks capable of handling 650-foot ships of 30-foot draft.

PLANS for an engineering feat of great importance and magnitude, to be executed after the war, have already been formed, for the construction of a combination ship, barge and power canal entirely on the American side, between Lakes Erie and Ontario. The most striking feature of the proposed undertaking would be a lifting lock of unprecedented dimensions, weights and rises, capable of lifting the largest lake vessel 208 feet in a space no longer than 20 minutes. Quite lately, it is said, the United States Government has indicated that it would be advantageous to have a ship canal connecting Erie and Ontario. The probable cost of the enterprise is reckoned at $125,000,000.

For more than 40 years there has been mooted the question of building a canal to connect the waters of Lakes Erie and Ontario on the American side of the border. As the discussion has broadened with the increase of knowledge in general engineering and in the sciences of hydraulics and sanitation, a greater scope of project has gradually been included; and at the present time there is under serious consideration a plan for building a combined ship, sanitation and power canal, starting in Lake Erie at a point south of the head of the Niagara River, then running east to the shore and gradually turning north so as to pass behind the city of Buffalo and west of the city of Lockport, reaching Lake Ontario at the harbor of Olcott.

The total length of the proposed ship canal would be about 40 miles, and that of the proposed tributary barge canal about 12 miles. The bottom width of the former would vary from 250 to 300 feet, and that of the latter would be about 100 feet. The depth of the ship canal is to be 30 feet and that of the barge canal 12 feet.

The total fall between the two lakes is 327 feet. Of this amount eight feet of drop could be utilized at the head of the canal so as to reverse the flow of the watercourses and the main sewers in Buffalo and Tonawanda; about seven feet would be needed to produce the required velocity of two and a half miles per hour in the canal, and the remaining height of 312 feet would be divided between two lift-locks, one of 208-foot and the other of 104-foot rise. Naturally, the canal would project into each lake for the purpose of creating a harbor and terminal docks.

As the level of the existing Erie Canal is slightly greater than that of the proposed ship canal, it would be necessary to provide locks to carry barges from the former into and out of the latter, and to syphon the water of the Erie Canal beneath the bed of the ship canal.

The object of the projected construction is threefold, according to Dr. J. A. L. Waddell, who has been retained as consulting engineer, and who describes the plans in the Scientific American:

1. To carry the largest lake vessels, as well as barges, between Lakes Erie and Ontario in the shortest practicable time and at the least possible expense.

2. To divert the sewage of the cities of Lackawanna, Buffalo, Tonawanda and contiguous municipalities from Lake Erie and the Niagara River, which sewage now seriously pollutes the drinking water of the numerous communities along the banks of the latter, and in times past has caused serious outbreaks of typhoid. After using such purifying agencies as may be found necessary, it would then be discharged into Lake Ontario so far from the shore as to render it unobnoxious.

3. To develop energy to the amount of about 800,000 horsepower.

According to a treaty with the Canadian Government, there can be diverted from the Niagara River for power and sanitation purposes combined, 26,000 cubic feet of water per second; and this, it is estimated, will produce in falling the 320 feet (or the combined heights of the three locks) the 800,000 horsepower mentioned.

The two main power houses should be located below the lift locks and as close thereto as the configuration of the ground and the navigation requirements will permit. The utilization for power production of the eight-foot fall between the mean level of Lake Erie and the constant level of the head of the canal has been contemplated; but the economic problem which it involves will have to be technically solved before any determination of this point can be reached.

The principal promoter of the enterprise, Millard F. Bowen of Buffalo, maintains that this will be "the only fair water power development ever offered to the Government," and gives a number of reasons to substantiate his claim.

The main benefits to be derived from the proposed canal are the following:

1. A ship canal, entirely on American soil and well back from the Canadian boundary line, capable of transferring the largest lake vessels from one lake to the other in a very short time and at the smallest possible expense.

2. A large harbor of safety at each end of the canal.

3. Barge canal terminals for New York State.

4. Prevention of pollution of international drinking waters.

5. Conservation of national reserve resources by the development of 800,000 horsepower, two-thirds of which are now going to waste.

6. Prevention of floods in Buffalo and Tonawanda by carrying off quickly the storm waters.

7. Maintenance of a practically constant water level for Lake Erie by means of submerged weirs.

8. Maintaining the beauty and insuring the permanence of Niagara Falls by building a spreading pier at the crest of Horseshoe Falls.

9. Protection of valuable food fishes by removing pollution of the water.

No accurate estimate of cost of the entire project is possible at this time, because the necessary surveys have not been finished, and because the existing chaos in the material and labor markets renders reliable estimating on any large construction impracticable. Approximate profiles have been drawn by using the Government contour maps; much information has been collected concerning the character of the materials to be moved; and the approximate quantities of earth, shale and rock excavation have been figured from the geological and geodetic maps in existence.

It is easily conceivable that the total cost of construction would be large; and it is probable that not less than $125,000,000 would be required to complete the entire construction and to put into operation the canals and the power development. While it is impossible today to predict with any accuracy what will be the cost of any proposed construction after the close of the war, Dr. Waddell feels assured that the project under consideration will require not less than the amount just mentioned.

The novel feature of the proposed work is the lift locks, because these are of unprecedented dimensions, weights and rises. The five existing lift locks that have been built up to the present time are large enough merely to carry a single canal barge, and the depth of the water in them is not greater than 12 feet. The larger of the two now suggested is illustrated on this page, from which it can be seen that each lift consists of two steel tanks. Each

"Kultur More Barbarous Phase of Thuggee"

—RUDYARD KIPLING

Pan-Germaniacs far excel in savagery ancient cult of Indian assassins — Slavery for world if Hun ideals prevail

ONE of the most blistering arraignments of German kultur ever fulminated was contained in a speech recently delivered at Folkestone, England, by Rudyard Kipling, the poet. His familiarity with East Indian history enabled him to draw a singularly apt parallel between Pan-Germanism and the ancient cult of Thuggee. In both the chief articles of faith are assassination and robbery, but with the advantage of barbarity on the side of the modern exponents of rapine and mutilation. The address follows:

By Rudyard Kipling.

ONCE upon a time, a hundred years ago, there was a large and highly organized community in India who lived by assassination and robbery. They were educated to it from their infancy; they followed it as a profession, and it was also their religion. They were called Thugs. Their method was to disguise themselves as pilgrims, or travelers, or merchants, and to join with parties of pilgrims, travelers and merchants moving about Indian. They got into the confidence of their victims, found out what they had on them, and in due time, after weeks or months of acquaintance, they killed them by giving them poisoned foods—sweetmeats from choice—or by strangling them from behind as they sat over the fire of an evening, with a knotted towel or a specially prepared piece of rope. They then stripped the corpse of all valuables, threw it down a well or buried it, and went on to the next job.

At last things got so bad that the Government of India had to interfere. Like all Governments, it created a department—the Department of Thuggee—to deal with the situation. Unlike most departments, this department worked well, and after many years of tracking down and hanging up the actual murderers, and imprisoning their spies and confederates, who included all ranks of society, it put an end to the whole business of Thuggee.

The world has progressed since that day. By present standards of crime those Thugs were ineffective amateurs. They did not mutilate or defile the bodies of the dead; they did not torture, or rape, or enslave people; they did not kill children for fun, and they did not burn villages. They merely killed and robbed in an unobtrusive way as a matter of education, duty and religion, under the patronage of their goddess, Kali the Destroyer. Very good.

At the present moment all the Powers of the world that have not been bullied or bribed to keep out of it have been forced to join in one international department to make an end of German international Thuggee for the reason that if it is not ended life on this planet becomes insupportable for human beings. Even now there are people in England who find it hard to realize that the Hun has been educated by the state from his birth to look upon assassination and robbery, embellished with every treachery and abomination that the mind of a man can laboriously think out, as a perfectly legitimate means to the national ends of his country.

He is not shocked by these things. He has been taught that it is his business to perform them, his duty to support them, and his religion to justify them. They are, and for a long time past they have been, as legitimate in his eyes as the ballot in ours. This, remember, was as true of the German in 1914 as it is now. People who have been brought up to make organized evil in every form their supreme good because they believe that evil will pay them are not going to change their belief till it is proved that evil does not pay. So far, the Hun believes that evil has paid him in the past, and will pay him better in the future.

He has had a good start. Like a Thug, the Hun knew exactly what he meant to do before he opened his campaign against mankind. As we have proof now, his poisoned sweetmeats and knotted towels were prepared years beforehand, and his spies had given him the fullest information about all the people he intended to attack. So he is doing what is right in his own eyes. He thought out the hell he wished to create; he built it up seriously and scientifically with his best hands and brains; he breathed into it his own spirit that it might grow with his needs; and at the hour that he judged best, he let it loose on the world that till then had believed there were limits beyond which men born of women dared not sin.

Nine-tenths of the atrocities Germany has committed have not been made public. We were told the other day that more than 14,000 English noncombatants, men, women and children, had been drowned, burned or blown to pieces since the war began. But we have no conception—and till the veil is lifted after the war we shall have no conception—of the range and system of these atrocities. Least of all shall we realize, as they realize in Belgium and occupied France, the cold organized miseries which Germany has laid upon the populations that have fallen into her hands, that she might break their bodies and defile their souls.

That is part of the German creed.

What understanding is possible with a breed that have worked for and brought about these things? And so long as the Germans are left with any excuse for thinking that such things pay can any peace be made with them in which men can trust? None! For it is the peculiar essence of German kultur, which is the German religion, that it is Germany's moral duty to break every tie, every restriction, that binds man to fellowman, if she thinks it will pay.

Therefore, all mankind are against her. Therefore, all mankind must be against her till she learns that no race can make its way or break its way outside the borders of humanity. The more we have suffered in this war the more clearly do we see this necessity. Our hearts, our reason, every instinct in us that lifts us above the mere brute, shows us that the war must go on. Otherwise earth becomes a hell without hope. The men, the ships, the munitions must go forward to the war, and behind them must come the money, without which nothing can move. Where our hearts are, there must our treasure be also.

From time to time the representatives of the allies meet together and lay down what the war aims of the allies are. From time to time our statesmen repeat them. They all agree we are fighting for freedom and liberty, for the right of small states to exist, and for nations to decide for themselves how they are to be governed. All this we understand and perfectly believe. That is the large view of the situation.

What is the personal aspect of the case for you and me? We are fighting for our lives, the lives of every man, woman and child here and everywhere else. We are fighting that we may not be herded into actual slavery such as the Germans have established by force of their arms in large parts of Europe. We are fighting against 18 hours a day forced labor under the lash or at the point of the bayonet, with a dog's death and a dog's burial at the end of it. We are fighting that men, women and children may not be tortured, burned and mutilated in the public streets, as has happened in this town and in hundreds of others. And we will go on fighting till the race who have done these things are in no position to continue or repeat their offense.

If for any reason whatever we fall short of victory—and there is no halfway house between victory and defeat—what happens to us? This: Every relation, every understanding, every decency upon which civilization has been so anxiously built up will go—will be washed out, because it will have been unable to endure. The whole idea of democracy—which at bottom is what the Hun fights against—will be dismissed from men's minds, because it will have been shown incapable of maintaining itself against the Hun. It will die; and it will die discredited, together with every belief and practice that is based on it.

The Hun ideal, the Hun's root notions of life, will take its place throughout the world. Under that dispensation man will become once more the natural prey, body and goods, of his better-armed neighbor. Women will be the mere instrument for continuing the breed, the vessel of man's lust and man's cruelty; and labor will become a thing to be knocked on the head if it dares to give trouble, and worked to death if it does not. And from this order of life there will be no appeal, no possibility of any escape.

This is what the Hun means when he says he intends to impose German kultur—which is the German religion—upon the world. This is precisely what the world has banded itself together to resist. It will take every ounce in us; it will try us out to the naked soul. Our trial will not be made less by the earnest advice and suggestions that we should accept some sort of compromise, which means defeat, put forward by Hun agents and confederates among us. They are busy in that direction already.

But be sure of this: Nothing—nothing we may have to endure now will weigh one featherweight compared with what we shall most certainly have to suffer if for any cause we fail of victory.

$125,000,000 Canal Between Lakes Erie and Ontario

of these is 660 feet long by 70 feet wide (inside measurement), by 35 feet deep, so as to contain 30 feet of water without danger of spilling. The inner edges of the two tanks are connected by wire ropes running over a line of 56 sheaves, each 20 feet in diameter; and each outer edge is connected by wire ropes running over a similar line of sheaves to a row of large concrete counterweights. As the depths of water in the two tanks are to be kept equal at all times, as near as may be, the loads to be raised and lowered will always be counter-balanced.

The three piers or walls for supporting the sheaves are about 280 feet high, and each varies in thickness from 9 to 17.5 feet. They are toothed by offsets or buttresses (so as to permit the passage of the projecting steel hangers) on both faces of the middle wall and on the inner faces of the two outer walls; but, on the outer faces of the latter, one-half of the offsets are omitted, so as to provide room for the large counterweight blocks. The dimensions of each of the latter in plan are 18 feet by 10 feet; and the height would be about 50 feet if iron ore be used in the concrete, or considerably more, if not. Whether the ore is employed to increase the specific gravity will involve later the solution of an economic engineering problem. There are 28 of these counterweights carried by each of the outer walls.

At each end of each tank there is provided a steel gate operating vertically and dropping into a steel box which contains water; and two similar gates are to be located at the high end and two more at the low end of the canal. The weights of metal in these gates and their receiving boxes have been roughly estimated upon a fairly liberal basis; but the complete, complicated details therefor, of course, have not yet been designed. Those for the remainder of the tanks and for the operating machinery, however, have been computed with some accuracy.

The operation of the lifts would be by electricity, generated in the large power houses located in their vicinity, the water therefor being carried from head-race to tail-race through large pipes or tunnels. The power would be applied to the rims of all the sheaves by means of racks and pinions, with reduction gear leading to the motors. These are to be placed on top of the piers, each of the latter being capped by a large concrete slab, thus forming a platform some 23 feet wide and 680 feet long. All the motors are to be so connected as to act strictly in unison, in order that the upward and the downward motions of the tanks may be regular and uniform.

Beneath the tanks there are to be large air buffers, capable of bringing the tank to rest from its greatest allowed speed; besides which there would be self-acting solenoid brakes to check the velocity at the proper places.

Locking apparatus would be required to hold the tanks to exact position at top and bottom of travel. These would project through the walls or piers; and they would have to be of a most substantial character.

Some conception may be formed of the magnitude of these lift locks by an inspection of the following partial list of the estimated quantities of materials required for the construction of the higher one, as computed by Dr. Waddell, who has been retained by the promoters to prepare the plans and estimates of cost therefor:

A Chance Samaritan

BY MARGARET CAMERON

HAVING learned that his friends had left the hotel, Carrington was hurrying through the crowded hall toward the street when he found himself face to face with Jean Beveredge. It was the first time they had met since the evening, months before, when she had bidden him choose between her love and his professional integrity, and he had gone from her embittered presence to prosecute an inquiry that had brought, as he had known it must, exposure and discredit to her father, in an old age previously honored.

Carrington had grown lean during those months. His face was worn almost to haggardness, and the line of his lips was stern. Now, as his one brief glance took account of the ravages sorrow and anxiety had made in her face, he bowed, and passed so quickly that he did not notice her slight detaining gesture. He heard her call, however, and turned instantly, only his startled, stormy eyes betokening his emotion.

A red flame scorched her face and died, overcome by an icy pallor, but her voice was perfectly steady and of the impersonal tint one uses in addressing a stranger.

"I beg your pardon," said she; "but do you happen to know where Mr. Sawyer is taking Mrs. Knowles and the rest to dine tonight?"

"No," he replied, striving to respond in the key she had set. "I haven't heard him say."

"Ah! I thought you might know. Thank you." Then, because he still lingered, she added, as if to dismiss him and the subject together: "I was to meet them here. Evidently they have been detained."

To his perturbed consciousness her words seemed entirely calm, but he saw that she was troubled; indeed, he knew that only in sore straits would she accost him, even casually, and refused to take his conge, finding a fanatic pleasure in prolonging his pain in her service.

"Perhaps I can be of use?" he suggested.

"No—thank you," coldly. "They will come presently."

"Undoubtedly; still—I assure you I don't wish to seem persistent—or officious, but—suppose they shouldn't come?"

"Oh, they will! They must!" For a moment her careful manner broke under the spur of apprehension. "Don't you think they will? I mean," more quietly, "you have no reason for thinking they won't?"

"None whatever, except—I infer that they're very late, and there's always a possibility of accident or misunderstanding. If there's anything I can"——

"Thank you—no. There is nothing." Bowing slightly, she would have turned away had he not interposed with a manner for the moment as formal as her own.

"I hope you will try to see this impersonally—neutrally." Once again color overspread her face, rising hotly to her hair, but he continued, in the same tone: "I quite understand that you spoke to me only because, as Jim Sawyer and I are close friends, you thought I might know about his plans this evening. Unfortunately, I do not; but there are certain things that I can offer to any woman—and that you can accept from any man—who is Sawyer's friend. Will you meet me on that ground, and let me know how I can be of service to you both?"

After the briefest pause, she conceded, somewhat unevenly: "Thank you. I am in—a sort of—dilemma." As she went on she was fairly successful in reducing the cold hostility of her tone to the steady, impersonal note with which she had begun. "Mr. Sawyer phoned me this morning that Mrs. Knowles and Maud were in town, and that he had persuaded them to stay over for dinner. He was going to ask some others, and wanted me to meet them all here at half-past six."

"You're sure it was here?"

"That's what I understood, though the phone was working badly. I told them not to wait past the hour, as if I came I would surely be on time! but I've been here since a quarter past six, and I haven't seen any of them."

Carrington looked at his watch. "It's five minutes past seven. Hm! I'm afraid it's a case of a needle in a haystack now! Of course, they weren't going to dine here?"

"No. I think they were going to some shabby old place Mr. Sawyer likes, where the walls are as smoky as the cooking is good."

Carrington shrugged his shoulders hopelessly. "That may be any one of a dozen places scattered from the Battery to the Bronx," he said. "If that's the case, I'm afraid we must give it up. You—you'll let me take you to the ferry?"

"Oh, no! No, I'd rather not!" she exclaimed. Then, as he flushed and drew back, she hastily continued: "You're very kind, but—I'm not going home. Not just yet. I can't. I mean— Don't you think I could possibly find them? It's rather important that I should, for—for other reasons than—than just dinner."

"Well, we can try; but there's about one chance in a thousand. You prefer to wait here?'

"Yes, I—no, it will save time if I go with you. That is," a hurried glance swept his face, "if you don't mind?"

"Not at all. Just as you wish, of course."

Nevertheless, he frowned uneasily and looked sharply about as they went toward the door. He seemed, also, to be making a rapid hunt through his pockets; and a curious blankness which she, her face turned steadfastly away from him, did not perceive settled upon his countenance. At the door he hesitated before turning toward Broadway.

"I'm sorry I shall have to ask you to go in a streetcar," he then said. "It would give me great pleasure to call a cab, but the truth is," laughing awkwardly, "I have exactly 40 cents in my possession at this moment, and I haven't been able, since meeting you, to get my eye on a man I know. I may even be driven to borrowing car-fare from you before we get to the end of this expedition."

"But you can't!" she cried. "That's what's the matter! That's the reason I can't go home until I find somebody I know. I ve lost my purse and my commutation ticket. I haven't a cent!"

"You might have asked me!" he began hotly, but instantly checked himself. Her glance had put glacial infinities between them.

"No." The tone was level and hard. "I couldn't. Besides," with a whimsical change of manner and a chill, glinting smile, "what would it have profited me? Forty cents wouldn't carry me far."

Startled by the vistas opening at this suggestion they stopped in the white circle of an arc-light, staring at each other. Carrington thrust his fingers into his waistcoat pocket and withdrew a quarter and three nickels. Systematic search through many other pockets failed to reveal so much as a copper more. Spreading the coins out on his palm, he glanced ruefully from them to her blank face. Then, inopportunely, grotesquely, the common sense of humor that had been one of the strongest bonds between them asserted itself. A leaping spark in her eye kindled a flash in his, and the next instant they were irresistibly laughing together, almost in the old way. When Realization, with bitter mien, again overtook them, a barrier was down that could not easily be re-erected, and each was shaken by a crowd of turbulent emotions loosed in that moment of unrestrained laughter.

The woman was first to speak, in futile effort to restore to their relation its lost balance. "I'm afraid I'm embarrassing you more than even your friendship for Mr. Sawyer would warrant," she said, not very steadily. "I'll go back to the hotel. They'll surely find me in time."

"Why should they?" Only his words were under control. Husky voice and glowing eyes betrayed stirred depths of feeling. "You told Sawyer you might not come. They won't even look for you. But if you don't mind waiting at the hotel a little while, until I get some money"——

"You can't! How can you?"

"I have a friend somewhere in this vicinity who can probably let me have some, but I must find him first, and it may take a little time."

"You mean that you intend to pawn something—your watch, of course." Again her tone was hard. She knew that the watch had been his father's, and that he valued it highly.

"Well—that would be a solution."

"On the contrary."

"But I shall not lose the watch—and I can't let you sit in that hotel reception room all night, even if the management would, which I doubt. We'll try to find Sawyer and Mrs. Knowles, but, failing that, you must get home somehow, so—don't you see?—there is no other way." He spoke gently, persuasively, but his voice was still irrepressibly vibrant and the girl's face grew more inflexible with each syllable.

"I cannot let you pawn your watch." The cold finality of her manner chilled him. "There must be some other way. If I had only asked what theater they were going to!"

"Theater! Are they going to the theater?"

"Yes. Didn't I tell you?"

"Then we have them! They'll go to see 'The Pink Paroquet.' Sawyer's fancy for that piece amounts to an obsession. That's where we'll find them!"

"Oh!" There was an awkward little silence, which, again, she broke, her voice flat and colorless. "Then—I needn't trouble you further. You've been very kind. Thank you—and good-night."

"Please!" he begged. "You can't go to the theater alone."

"I prefer to."

"And you've had no dinner. Oh, I quite understand," bitterly, as she made a quick, protesting gesture, "that you would not dine with me. But surely you'll not forbid me, as Sawyer's friend, to see, first, that you have something to eat, and, later, that you join his party safely at the theater?"

"I certainly shall not permit you to pawn—anything—in order that I may dine." Her very lips were stiff. "Anyway, I don't—need any dinner."

"Pardon me, you do need dinner. At least, let me lend you 40 cents." Against the heavy depression now settling upon him, he strove to leaven his words with humor. "You can get something for that—soup and coffee, and perhaps even pie. Who knows?"

"And—you?"

Something in her hesitation set his heart aleap, although he instantly reasoned that it was the result of her unwillingness to accept even so small a sacrifice from him. He had learned his lesson well, and his head was not to be befooled, however his pulses might clamor. Still, he could not hold his voice quite steady.

"Oh, I shall do very well. I shall find food—enough."

"Food for thought?" she swiftly questioned, in nervous effort to second his attempt at humor and give the conversation a lighter, more careless aspect. Then, to cover the impulsive suggestion and the lack of poise that it betrayed, she hurried on into further mazes. "Or perhaps you mean thought for food? At any rate," hastily, "I doubt if you would find it sustaining, and I certainly cannot deprive you of your last penny."

"Then let me share my last penny with you! I mean," looking away, lest he should again encounter the icy displeasure of her glance, and eliminating from his tone all but the solicitude any stranger might evince in similar case, "will you extend the truce for an hour, dine—or more properly sup with me, and permit me to take you to the theater to meet your friends? Or, failing that, to see you safely home?"

He held his breath through the silence that ensued. When she finally spoke, it seemed to him that her voice was even colder and more remote than it had yet been.

"As Mr. Sawyer's friend?"

"As Sawyer's friend." It was a pledge.

Another pause. Then she looked him full in the eyes, her own strangely alight, her head thrown a little back.

"Very well," she said, half defiantly. "I will."

Carrington's heart was in his throat, suffocating him. She saw him go white, heard his one quick breath before he made himself say, quietly:

"Thank you. As far as I know, there is just one place in this neighborhood where we can get decent food for what we have to pay. Have you ever been in one of Kydd's places?"

"No."

"I have done nothing, I swear it. Mother of Pity, help me! I have done nothing."

The crop descended again, this time on one of the great sleeves of her peasant costume. So thin it was, so brutal the blow, that it cut into the muslin. Groaning, the girl fell forward on her face. The Countess continued to strike pitiless blows into which she put all her fury, her terror, her frayed and ragged nerves.

The girl on the floor, from whimpering, fell to crying hard, with great noiseless sobs of pain and bewilderment. When at last the blows ceased, she lay still.

But she was startled when she saw the girl's face. It was she who was the fool. The welt would tell its own story, and the other servants would talk. It was already a deep purple, and swollen. Both women were trembling. The Countess, still holding the crop, sat down.

"Now!" she said. "You will tell me to whom you gave a certain small book of which you know."

"I, madame?"

"You."

"But what book? I have given nothing, madame, I swear it."

"Then you admitted someone to this room."

"No one, madame, except" —— She hesitated.

"Well?"

"There came this afternoon the men who clean madame's window. No one else, madame."

She put her hand to her cheek and looked furtively to see if her fingers were stained with blood. The Countess, muttering, fell to furious pacing of the room. So that was it, of course. The girl was telling the truth. She was too stupid to lie. Then the Committee of Ten indeed knew everything—had known that she would be away, had known of the window cleaners, had known of the safe, and her possession of the code.

Cold and calculating rage filled her. Niburg had played her false, of course. But Niburg was only a go-between. He had known nothing of the code book. He had given the Committee the letter, and by now they knew all that it told. What did it not know?

She dismissed the girl and put away the riding crop, then she smoothed the disorder of her hair and dress. The court physician, calling a half-hour later, found her reading on a chaise lounge in her boudoir, looking pale and handsome, and spent what he considered a pleasant half-hour with her. He loved gossip, and there was plenty just now. Indications were that they would have a wedding soon. An unwilling bride, perhaps, eh? But a lovely one. For him, he was glad that Karnia was to be an ally, and not an enemy. He had seen enough of wars. And so on and on, while the Countess smiled and nodded, and shivered in her very heart.

At 11 o'clock he went away, kissing her hand rather more fervently than professionally, although his instinct to place his fingers over the pulse rather spoiled the effect. One thing, however, the Countess had gained by his visit. He was to urge on the Archduchess the necessity for an immediate vacation for her favorite.

"Our loss, Countess," he said, with heavy gallantry. "But we cannot allow beauty to languish for need of mountain air."

Then at last he was gone, and she went about her heavy-hearted preparations for the night. From a corner of her wardrobe she drew a long peasant's cape, such a cape as Minna might wear. Over her head, instead of a hat, she threw a gray veil. A careless disguise, but all that was necessary. The sentries through and about the palace were not unaccustomed to such shrouded figures slipping out from its gloom to light, and perhaps to love.

Before she left, she looked about the room. What assurance had she that this very excursion was not a trap, and that in her absence the vault would not be looted again? It contained now something infinitely valuable—valuable and incriminating—the roll of film. She glanced about, and seeing a silver vase of roses, hurriedly emptied the water out, wrapped the film in oiled paper and dropped it down among the stems.

The Street of the Wise Virgins was not near the palace. Even by walking briskly she was in danger of being late. The wind kept her back, too. The cloak twisted about her, the veil whipped. She turned once or twice to see if she were being followed, but the quiet streets were empty. Then, at last, the Street of the Wise Virgins and the fiacre, standing at the curb, with a driver wrapped in rugs against the cold of the February night, and his hat pulled down over his eyes. The Countess stopped beside him.

"You are expecting a passenger?"

"Yes, madame."

"It is our hope, madame," he said, "that you will make it unnecessary for the Council of Ten to use those papers."

With her hand on the door, the Countess realized that the fiacre was already occupied. As she peered into its darkened interior, the shadow resolved itself into a cloaked and masked figure. She shrank back.

"Enter, madame," said a voice.

The figure appalled her. It was not sufficient to know that behind the horrifying mask which covered the entire face and head, there was a human figure, human pulses that beat, human eyes that appraised her. She hesitated.

"Quickly," said the voice.

She got in, shrinking into a corner of the carriage. Her lips were dry, the roaring of terror was in her ears. The door closed.

Then commenced a drive of which afterward the Countess dared not think. The figure neither moved nor spoke. Inside the carriage reigned the most complete silence. The horse's feet clattered over rough stones, they turned through narrow, unfamiliar streets, so that she knew not even the direction they took. After a time the noise grew less. The horse padded along dirt roads, in darkness. Then the carriage stopped, and at last the shrouded figure moved and spoke.

"I regret, Countess, that my orders are to blindfold you."

"That is not necessary, I think."

"Very necessary, madame."

She submitted ungracefully, while he bound a black cloth over her eyes. He drew it very close and knotted it behind. In the act his fingers touched her face, and she felt them cold and clammy. The contact sickened her.

"Your hand, madame."

She was led out of the carriage, and across soft earth, a devious course again, as though they avoided small obstacles. Once her foot touched something low and hard, like marble. Again, in the darkness, they stumbled over a mound. She knew where she was, then—in a graveyard. But which? There were many about the city.

An open space, the opening of a gate or door that squeaked softly, a flight of steps that led downward, and a breath of musty, cold air, damp and cellar-like.

She was calmer now. Had they meant to kill her, there had been already a hundred chances. It was not death, then, that awaited her—at least, not immediate death. These precautions, too, could only mean that she was to be freed again, and must not know where she had been.

At last, still in unbroken silence, she knew that they had entered a large space. Their footsteps no longer echoed and re-echoed. Her guide walked more slowly, and at last paused, releasing her hand. She felt again the touch of his clammy fingers as he untied the knots of her bandage. He took it off.

At first she could see little. The silence remained unbroken, and only the center of the room was lighted. When her eyes grew accustomed, she made out the scene slowly.

A great stone vault, its walls broken into crypts which had contained caskets of the dead. But the caskets had been removed, and were piled in a corner, and in the niches were rifles. In the center was a pine table, curiously incongruous, and on it writing materials, a cheap clock and a pile of documents. There were two candles only, and these were stuck in skulls—old, brown skulls so infinitely removed from all semblance to the human that they were not even horrible. It was as if they had been used, not to inspire terror, but because they were at hand and convenient for the purpose. In the shadow, ranged in a semi-circle, were nine figures, all motionless, all masked and cloaked in black. They sat, another incongruity, on plain wooden chairs. But in spite of that they were figures of dread. The one who had brought her made the tenth.

Still the silence, broken only by the drip of water from the ceiling into the tin pail. Had she not known the past record of the men before her, the rather opera bouffe setting with which they chose to surround themselves might have aroused her scorn. But Olga Loschek knew too much. She guessed shrewdly that, with the class of men with whom they dealt, it was not enough that their name spelled terror. They must visualize it. They had taken their cue from that very church, indeed, beneath which they hid. The church, with its shrines and images, appealed to the eye. They, too, appealed to the eye. Their masks, the carefully constructed and upheld mystery of their identity, the trappings of death about them—it was skillfully done.

Not that she was thinking consecutively just then. It was a mental flash, even as her eyes, growing accustomed to the darkness, made out the white numeral, from one to ten, on the front of each shroud-like cloak.

Still no one spoke. The Countess faced them. Only her eyes showed her nervousness; she stood haughtily, her head held high. But like most women, she could not endure silence for long, at least the silence of shrouded figures and intent eyes.

"Now that I am here," she demanded, "may I ask why I have been summoned?"

It was No. 7 who replied. It was No. 7 who, during the hour that followed, spoke for the others. None moved, or but slightly. There was no putting together of heads, no consulting. Evidently all had been carefully prearranged.

"Look on the table, Countess. You will find there some papers you will perhaps recognize."

She took a step toward the table and glanced down. The code book lay there. Also the letter she had sent by Peter Niburg. She made no effort to disclaim them.

"There's one in the next block. They are not fashionable—no one who knows us will be there—but they are good of their kind, and clean—and they are cheap."

"Then, by all means, let's go there."

To Kydd's, accordingly, they went, casually commenting on the street scenes about them, as might the veriest strangers they pretended to be. Once a witty comparison of his brought a quick, excited laugh from her, and once, in crossing the street, he touched her arm, and winced inwardly as she hastily withdrew from the contact. Nevertheless, when they entered the white-tiled restaurant a tinge of color had crept into her cheeks and her eyes were brilliant, while Carrington, in his role of Sawyer's friend, had resolved to abandon himself to the joy of the moment's companionship, giving no thought to the doubly desolate morrow.

They found places together near the back of the room, at a table where were already seated a fat woman whose untidy toilet was crowned by a flaring hat with aggressive blue plumes, three tired-looking girls in black gowns and neat white collars and cuffs, a stolid youth just finishing his meal, and, opposite Jean, an elderly man from out whose deeply lined face shone eyes serenely calm. Curious glances were directed from all sides toward the newcomers, whose manner no less than their raiment proclaimed them strayed from their accustomed environment.

Carrington spread before them, in lieu of a tablecloth, two tiny napkins taken from a pile on the uncovered marble slab serving as a table, and took up the bill of fare, framed, like a child's slate, in wood, asking in his courtliest and most impersonal manner:

"What may I order for you?"

"Caviare," said she, "and whitebait, and—pheasant, I think. You may fill in the gaps." Apparently she had left behind her mood of cold formality, and in its place had come a hard sparkle and a tone of gay, sardonic raillery.

"I would suggest coffee," gravely returned Carrington. They serve it here, I see, in generous and—er—substantial cups, for 5 cents."

"Oh, coffee, of course!"

"Two coffees. That's 10 cents. Now—are you hungry?"

"I—am. If you want the whole truth, I am ravenous!"

"And yet, you would have gone without dinner!"

"Yes; but—I'm to have dinner, you know," she suggested.

"True." He returned to the study of the card in his hand. "Then—do you prefer oysters or steak?"

"Let me see." She looked over his shoulder. "I don't want raw oysters—not at 15 cents!—and, cooked, they cost far too much. What a remarkable price-list! Where's the steak? Oh, we can't afford that! It's 25 cents!"

"You must have steak." Carrington was acutely conscious of her use of the first person plural, and also of the derisive little smile playing about her lips. "I'm not at all hungry"——

"Indeed, I'll do nothing of the kind! You forget the terms of our agreement. We share this penny." For a moment he wondered whether she could be deliberately tempting him, and found himself baffled by the light in her eye. Was it challenge or mockery? "Oh, are those desserts? Are there any within our means?"

"Pies in season," he read. "Crullers, apple sauce, chocolate eclairs, vanilla cornstarch—oh, yes, lots of things for 5 cents."

"Delightful! I'll have—what are Napoleons? Or do you think Bath buns sound more interesting?"

"If that is your standard, I suggest vanilla cornstarch as probably affording the maximum of sensation for the price."

"N-no, I'm not interested quite to that extent. I shall try Napoleons. It sounds so—Frenchy, don't you think?"

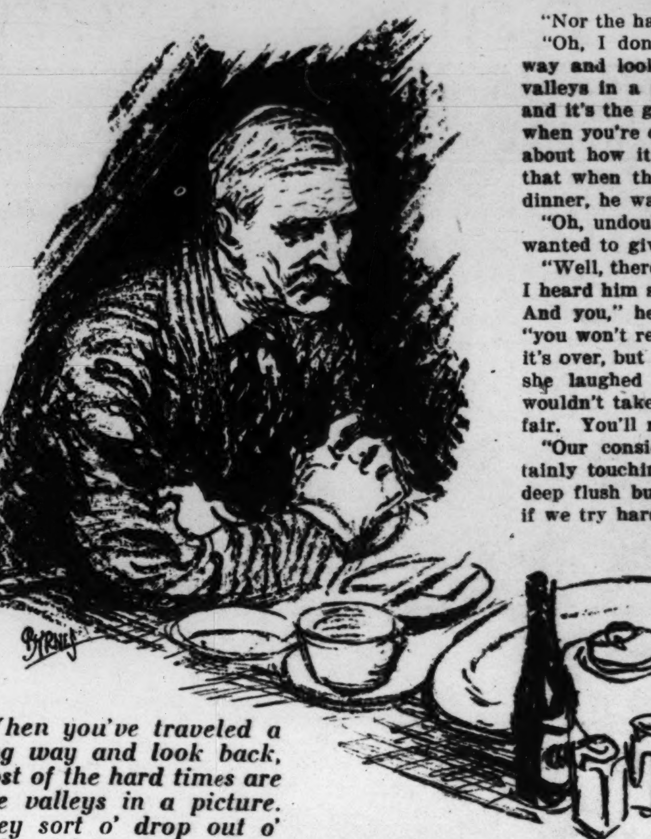
"I trust you'll not be forcibly reminded that the Man of Destiny was a Corsican. What else will you have?"

"Can we manage all this? Five cents for coffee, 5 for dessert, and—that leaves only 10 for the piece de resistance.

By this time the obvious disparity between their resources and their appearance had excited the undisguised and sympathetic interest of all their table companions, with the exception of the stolid youth, who noisily pushed back his chair and departed. An immaculately white-clad waitress paused behind them, but at a word from Carrington passed on.

"We ought to save a tip for the girl," he said. "I'll go without pie, and we'll give her 5 cents. Or—I'll tell you! Here's a 'side order of beans with any of the above for 5 cents.' Now, you order one of 'the above,' I'll take the beans, and we'll give the girl the difference."

"Fie on your mathematics!" she retorted. "All 'the above' are very, very expensive. 'Fried or broiled ham' is the cheapest, and that is 20 cents. Beans would make it 25, and—you see? No, I want— Oh, here's chicken salad! I'm devoted to— Oh!" with exaggerated disappointment, "it's 25 cents, too—and I did want chicken salad!"



"When you've traveled a long way and look back, most of the hard times are like valleys in a picture. They sort o' drop out o' sight and it's the good times that stand up and show."

"Have it, then," recklessly. "We'll manage somehow."

"No," sternly drawing her lips. "We simply can't afford it!"

"Try corned-beef hash."

"It's 15 cents."

"Yes, I know—but it's 'browned in the pan.'"

"We-ell, I'll give up Bonaparte and have hash." Glancing up, she encountered the admiring and sympathetic gaze of the elderly man opposite, and hastily resumed: "Now, what are you going to have?"

"The delight of my boyhood. Buckwheat cakes and maple syrup."

"And pie."

"No; the price of my pie goes to the waiter lady."

Carrington gave the order, and heard it repeated almost instantly to the cook. The elderly man leaned across the table.

"Broke?" he asked, confidentially.

"Yes," said Carrington. "Flat."

"I've been there." The other nodded reminiscently, shrewdly adding: "You two ain't used to it, though."

"No," Carrington admitted; "we—I'm not. Not yet." He shot a glance at Jean, expecting to find traces of annoyance in her face, but she was regarding the man with mocking eyes and an odd, wry little smile.

A small steak, a tiny dish of French fried potatoes, and a plate of hot tea-biscuits were placed before their neighbor.

"I wanted to tell you when you were ordering," he said, looking at Jean, "that you got potatoes and biscuits with steak. I thought mebbe you didn't know."

"No," she replied, "I didn't know. I've never been here before."

"That so? Then I'm sorry I didn't tell you. But I didn't just like to butt in that way. Some folks wouldn't stand for it."

"It wouldn't have made any difference, anyway—tonight."

"Oh!" said the man, comprehensively. He divided his small steak, with a queer, half-deprecating glance at the couple opposite, and put part of it carefully aside on the biscuit plate. "Oh, well," he then observed, "worse things might happen to you than just being broke. You know that, don't you?" to Carrington.

"Yes," the younger man returned somewhat grimly; "I know that."

"'Tain't real convenient—being broke," continued the other, sagely smiling. "I guess mebbe you're finding that out, too. But you're both young, and you've got each other; so, after all, what do you care?"

"Obviously," said Jean, with a hard little laugh, "we don't care at all."

"That's right. Anybody can see you don't. You just go on making a joke of it, and go on having your good times together, anyhow. And that's right, too, for then, whatever happens, nothing can ever take away from you the good times you have had."

"Nor the hard times, either," she dryly supplemented.

"Oh, I don't know. When you've traveled a long way and look back, most of the hard times are like valleys in a picture. They sort o' drop out o' sight, and it's the good times that stand up and show. Now, when you're on your feet again, you won't think much about how it hurt to fall down, but you'll remember that when the two of you only had 40 cents for your dinner, he wanted to spend 25 or 30 of it on you."

"Oh, undoubtedly! But you do him an injustice. He wanted to give me the whole 40."

"Well, there you are! There's a pair of you, too, for I heard him say you wanted to go without any dinner. And you," he turned to the now taciturn Carrington, "you won't remember much about the worry of it, once it's over, but you'll never forget that at the very worst she laughed and made a joke of it all. And she wouldn't take more than her half, either. She played fair. You'll never forget that."

"Our consideration for each other tonight is certainly touching," cynically observed Jean, although a deep flush burned in her face. "But don't you think, if we try hard, we may atone for it later?"

For a moment he regarded her mildly, puzzled as much by her tone as by the words. Then said he, simply:

"I guess that's one o' your jokes, too, ain't it? I ain't just sure I know what you mean, but anybody can see with one eye that you two have got what money won't buy—and what's more you both now it. And that's the kind o' thing that gives a man courage to fight and win out—and you'll do it, too.'

"Perhaps," said Carrington. Nothing in his whole encounter with Jean had so emphasized in his mind their changed relations as did her ready acceptance of the role assigned her by this stranger in the bitter little comedy they were playing. He had expected to feel the barrier of her unabated anger, but her use of the situation created by the guileless man across the table convinced him that she deliberately sought to wound him.

"Oh, sure! You're down on your luck now, and I can see you're blue, but you can't stay discouraged as long as you've got her. I know. I've been there, too. And, anyhow, this ain't real trouble you've got. * * * Is it?" he asked, suddenly, suspicious of his own insight.

"What do you call real trouble?" parried the girl, perceiving that Carrington would have no part in the discussion.

"Oh, well, now! I suppose there's as many kinds o' trouble as there's kinds o' people to make it, and nobody knows which kind would be hardest for somebody else. I've had a good many kinds myself, one time and another, but I never had any yet that got me down and kept me down. But then," thoughtfully, "I've never had to stand disgrace—for myself or my boys. That must be hard!" Jean's lips tightened, and Carrington looked sternly into space. "And it's always seemed to me that one of the worst things for me to bear would be to do a mean thing—a big mean thing—to somebody I—I cared for, you know, and then lose 'em before I could make up for it. That must be one of the hardest things there is—don't you think so?"

"Is it?" asked Jean, in a little, choked voice.

The waitress brought their order and spread the dishes before them.

"You haven't brought me any bread," said Carrington.

"We don't give bread with cakes and syrup. Bread's extra. Want some?"

"No. Never mind."

Before Jean could proffer part of hers, the man opposite, glancing furtively at the three inattentive girls in black, said, in an embarrassed undertone:

"Say young man, you—you take some of these biscuits. I ain't going to eat all of 'em, honest! And, anyhow, I've got a job now, and I can buy more if I want 'em. Sure, you take 'em! And I wish you'd eat the other half of this steak, too. You see, I put it off my plate because I thought—I mean, because I wasn't very hungry."

Carrington flushed painfully. "No, thank you," said he. "I shall do very well with cakes and coffee."

"No, you take it. My appetite ain't real good tonight, and I'd hate to see good steak like that wasted."

"Oh, take it!" whispered Jean, looking with suddenly misted eyes from his earnest face to Carrington's clouded one; and the younger man, after an instant's hesitation, perceived that acceptance would be the only adequate return for such an offer.

"That's right. Us old fellows get where we don't care so much about food, but I used to miss it a good

LONG LIVE THE KING!

BY MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

CHAPTER XIX.

THE COMMITTEE OF TEN.

ON the evening of the annual day of mourning, the party returned from the fortress. The Archduchess slept. The Crown Prince talked, mostly to Hedwig, and even she said little. After a time the silence affected the boy's high spirits. He leaned back in his chair on the deck of the launch and watched the flying landscape. He counted the riverside shrines to himself. There were, he discovered, just 13 between the fortress and the city limits.

Old Father Gregory sat beside him. He had taken off his flat black hat, and it lay on his knee. The ends of his black woolen sash fluttered in the wind, and he sat, benevolent hands folded, looking out.

From guns to shrines is rather a jump, and the Crown Prince found it difficult.

"Do you consider fighting the duty of a Christian?" inquired the Crown Prince suddenly.

Father Gregory, whose mind had been far away, with his boys' school at Etzel, started.

"Fighting? That depends. To defend his home is the Christian duty of every man."

"But during the last war," persisted Otto, "we went across the mountains and killed a lot of people. Was that a Christian duty?"

Father Gregory coughed. He had himself tucked up his soutane and walked 40 miles to join the army of invasion, where he had held services, cared for the wounded and fired a rifle, all with equal spirit. He changed the subject to the big guns at the fortress.

"I think," observed the Crown Prince, forgetting his scruples, "that if you have a pencil and an old envelope to draw on, I'll invent a big gun myself."

Which he proceeded to do, putting in a great many wheels and levers, and adding a folding table at the side on which the gunners might have afternoon tea—this last prompted by the arrival just then of cups and saucers and a tea service.

It was almost dark when the launch arrived at the quay. The red carpet was still there, and another crowd. Had Prince Ferdinand William Otto been less taken up with finding one of his kid gloves, which he had lost, he would have noticed that there was a scuffle going on at the very edge of the red carpet, and that the beggar of the morning was being led away, between two policemen, while a third, running up the river bank, gingerly deposited a small round object in the water and stood back. It was merely one of the small incidents of a royal outing, and was never published in the papers. But Father Gregory, whose old eyes were far-sighted, had seen it all. His hand—the hand of the Church—was on the shoulder of the Crown Prince as they landed.

The boy looked around for the little girl of the bouquet. He took an immense interest in little girls, partly because he seldom saw any. But she was gone.

When the motor which had taken them from the quay reached the palace, Hedwig roused the Archduchess, whose head had dropped forward on her chest. "Here we are, mother," she said. "You have had a nice sleep."

But Annunciata muttered something about being glad the wretched day was over, and everyone save Prince Ferdinand William Otto seemed glad to get back. The boy was depressed. He felt, somehow, that they should have enjoyed it, and that, having merely endured it, they had failed him again.

He kissed his aunt's hand dutifully when he left her, and went with a lagging step to his own apartments. His request to have Hedwig share his supper had met with a curt negative.

The Countess, having left her royal mistress in the hands of her maids, went also to her own apartment. She was not surprised, on looking into her mirror, to find herself haggard and worn. It had been a terrible day. Only a second had separated that gaping lens in her bag from the eyes of the officers about. Never, in an adventurous life, had she felt so near to death. Even now its cold breath chilled her.

However, that was all over, well over. She had done well, too. A dozen pictures of the fortress, of its guns, of even its mine chart as it hung on a wall, were in the bag. Its secrets, so securely held, were hers, and would be Karl's.

It was a cunningly devised scheme. Two bags, exactly alike as to appearance, had been made. One, which she carried daily, was what it appeared to be. The other contained a camera, tiny but accurate, with a fine lens. When a knob of the fastening was pressed, the watch slid aside and the shutter snapped. The pictures, when enlarged, proved themselves perfect.

The girl on the floor, from whimpering, fell to crying hard, with great noiseless sobs of pain and bewilderment.

Pleading fatigue, she dismissed her maid and locked the doors. Then she opened the sliding panel, and unfastened the safe. The roll of film was in her hand, ready to be deposited under the false bottom of her jewel case.

Within the security of her room the Countess felt at ease. The chill of the day left her, to be followed by a glow of achievement. She even sang a little, a bit of a ballad from her native mountains:

"He has gone to the mountains.
The far green mountains.
(Hear the cattle lowing as they drive them up the hill!)
When he comes down he'll love me;
When he comes down he'll marry me.
(But what is this that touches me with fingers dead and chill?)"

Still singing, she carried the jewel case to her table, and sat down before it. Then she put a hand to her throat.

The lock had been forced.

A glance about showed her that her code book was gone. In the tray above, her jewels remained untouched; her pearl collar, the diamond knickknacks the Archduchess had given her on successive Christmases, even a handful of gold coins, all were safe enough. But the code book was gone.

Then, indeed, did the Countess look death in the face—and found it terrible. For a moment she could not so much as stand without support. It was then that she saw a paper folded under her jewels and took it out with shaking fingers. In fine, copper-plate script she read:

"Madame: Tonight at 1 o'clock a closed fiacre will await you in the Street of the Wise Virgins, near the church. You will go in it, without fail, to wherever it takes you. (Signed)

"THE COMMITTEE OF TEN."

The Committee of Ten! This thing had happened to her. Then it was true that the half-mythical Committee of Ten existed, that this terror of Livonia was a real terror, which had her by the throat. For there was no escape. None. Now, indeed, she knew that rumor spoke the truth, and that the Terrorists were everywhere. In daylight they had entered her room. They had known of the safe, known of the code. Known how much else?

Wild ideas of flight crossed her mind, to be as instantly abandoned for their futility. Where could she go that they would not follow her? When she had reacted from her first shock she fell to pondering the matter, pro and con. What could they want of her? If she was an enemy to the country, so were they. But even that led nowhere, for, after all, the Terrorists were not enemies to Livonia. They claimed, indeed, to be its friends, to hold in their hands its future and its betterment. Enemies of the royal house they were, of course.

She was nearly distracted by that time. She was a brave woman, physically and mentally of hard fiber, but the very name signed to the paper set her nerves to twitching. It was the Committee of Ten which had murdered Prince Hubert and his young wife; the Committee of Ten which had exploded a bomb in the very palace itself and killed old Breidau, of the King's Council; the Committee of Ten which had burned the Government House, and had led the mob in the student riots of a year or so before.

Led them, themselves hidden. For none knew their identity. It was said that they did not even know each other, wearing masks and long cloaks at their meetings, and being designated by numbers only.

In this dread presence, then, she would find herself that night! For she would go. There was no way out.

She sent a request to be excused from dinner on the ground of illness and was, as a result visited by her royal mistress at 9 o'clock. The honor was unexpected. Not often did the Archduchess Annunciata so favor anyone. The Countess, lying across her bed in a perfect agony of apprehension, staggered into her sitting room and knelt to kiss her lady's hand.

But the Archduchess, who had come to scoff, believing not at all in the illness, took one shrewd glance at her, and put her hands behind her.

"It may be, as you say, contagious, Olga," she said. "You would better go to bed and stay there. I shall send Dr. Wiederman to you."

When she had gone the Countess rang for her maid. She was cool enough now, and white, with a cruel line about her mouth that Minna knew well. She went to the door into the corridor, and locked it.

Then she turned on the maid. "I am ready for you, now."

"Madame will retire?"

"You little fool! You know what I am ready for!"

The maid stood still. Her wide, bovine eyes, filled with alarm, watched the Countess as she moved swiftly across the room to her wardrobe. When she turned about again, she held in her hand a thin black riding crop. Minna's ruddy color faded. She knew the Loscheks, knew their furies. Strange stories of unbridled passion had oozed from the old ruined castle where for so long they had held feudal sway over the countryside.

"Madame!" she cried, and fell on her knees. "What have I done? Oh, what have I done?"

"That is what you will tell me," said the Countess, and brought down the crop. A livid stripe across the girl's face turned slowly to red.

"How I Fired First Shot for Britain"

--TROOPER WILLIAM CRAIG

Cavalryman tells of approach of Hun patrol at daylight near Mons, of raising his rifle and bringing down first German to fall from English bullet in Great War — Took part in bloody charge at Mons, and fought at Ypres and Loos — Then honorably discharged, after 21 years in British Army, and is now in munition work -:- -:- -:-

As dawn began to glimmer on the morning of Aug. 20, 1914, Trooper William Craig of the Fourth Dragoon Guards deliberately raised his rifle and fired at a Hun cavalryman a little to the north of Mons. This, according to official records, was the first shot fired for England in the great war. The bullet missed, but Craig fired again and the Uhlan toppled off his horse, the first of the hundreds of thousands of Teutons destined to fall before the British arms.

Craig was a member of the British Expeditionary force which, at the beginning of the war overwhelmingly outnumbered by the Hun hordes, gave to the world so signal an example of English stamina and grit. He had served in the regular army in South Africa, but had retired to civilian life and his home in Glasgow. In the summer of 1914 he was summoned by telegraph and joined the expedition to France. In the charge at Mons he was injured by the fall when his horse was shot from under him, but he returned from the hospital to take part in the battles of Ypres and Loos. In 1916 he was honorably discharged. Now, at the age of 40, he is making munitions at Glasgow. In all, he spent 21 years in the British army.

His own story of how he fired the first shot for Britain in the war has recently been reported in the Wide World Magazine, as taken down from the trooper's lips by S. S. Fyffe. It is retold here.

By TROOPER WILLIAM CRAIG, Fourth Dragoon Guards.

MY claim to be the first soldier of the original Expeditionary Force to see a German enemy, to fire the first shot at a Hun and also to bring down one of the Kaiser's proud Uhlans can be amply substantiated by recourse to the war records.

I was one of a mounted patrol of five on Aug. 19, 1914, our duty being to get in touch with the outposts of the German army, which was then making such a rapid and devastating advance through Belgium.

Our little party consisted of Lieut. Harris, who acted as interpreter and who was thoroughly acquainted with that part of the country; Lieut. Jones, a trooper named Goodchild, another trooper whose name escapes my memory, and myself.

The villagers in this region were filled with terror, and when it was reported to us that a band of Uhlans had been sighted not far away we were at first inclined to discount the information as being merely the hallucination of a people whose nerves were being shattered by the uncertainty of the fate that awaited them. But in war it does not pay to be skeptical of any hints, and our party kept a vigilant lookout for any stray enemy patrol. We saw none of the enemy that day, however, and towards nightfall we proceeded along by the side of a railway line, but always maintaining a strict watch.

That night the statements of friendly peasants that a Uhlan patrol was in the neighborhood became so convincing that Trooper Goodchild was dispatched to the regiment to report that contact had been established with the enemy. It was a dramatic moment for the rest of the small party as we heard our mounted comrade clatter away in the darkness to warn our anxious but undaunted colleagues farther back.

After passing through a village we arrived at a small farm, and our officers decided to dodge round this point, in hope of getting actual contact with one of the Kaiser's crack cavalry patrols. Lieut. Harris was equipped with very powerful field glasses, and in the gathering dusk he thought he detected several Uhlans on the slope of a hill some considerable distance off.

For a few seconds I watched our officer gazing intently at a spur of land, and by the twitching of his mouth I could see that he, at all events, was under no illusions as to the presence of Germans in the quarter suspected.

"Who has the fastest and quietest horse?" Lieut. Harris asked, lowering his glasses and turning to his brother officer, Lieut. Jones.

At that time I rode a magnificent black horse named Darkie, a thoroughly trained animal, which seemed to possess almost human instinct. I was raised into the seventh heaven of delight when I heard Lieut. Jones remark: "I think that big black horse is the best"—an opinion I shared, seeing it was my own trusty Darkie which had been referred to.

After a whispered confab between our two officers I was ordered to go up towards the hill where the Uhlans were supposed to be, but to be very careful, and not to fire if I could possibly avoid it. There was a hedge jutting out, and I rode behind this until I got into a wood, and there I dodged about quietly, keeping a sharp lookout and patiently waiting for the dawn of Aug. 20 to break. I think that experience with my equine companion in the eerie atmosphere and surroundings of that wood did much to keep me almost free from "nerves" in the later stages of the war.

I had every confidence in Darkie, and I knew from experience of him that he would rather choke than utter any sound in such circumstances, but it was an anxious time waiting for daylight. I remember it would be about 3 o'clock on the morning of Aug. 20 when with the first gleam of light I noticed the helmets of two Uhlans a considerable distance away. I took a careful note of the spot, and then, wheeling my horse about, I galloped off to report what I had seen.

I had no sooner reported the presence of the enemy to my officers than about 20 Uhlans came galloping down the hill after us, the Hun cavalrymen having evidently discovered our presence with the increasing daylight. There were only four of us in our party, the two officers and two cavalrymen—and we galloped off, pursued by the helmeted Uhlans, who were all superbly mounted. When we came to a farm we dodged round it, and, the light now being much clearer, Lieut. Harris had a long and anxious look through his field glasses, and noted with satisfaction that the enemy apparently had not seen where we had gone to. It was then decided that we should endeavor to find our regiment, as our little party stood no chance if we got to close quarters with such a numerically superior body.

It was while we were getting ready to mount that one of our party descried a band of Uhlans about 600 yards in front of us on the main road. There was a whispered talk between our officers as to whether we should fire on the Uhlans, as there were only two rifles amongst us, the officers not being armed in this respect.

My comrade and I were ordered to open fire on the Hun cavalrymen. It fell to me to fire the first shot, and it was a proud moment for me when I heard the bullet sing in the direction of the Uhlans. I

Dives Out of Cloud to Find a Balloon in the Way

The most thrilling experience of an American who served 22 months in English flying corps — His death race with a Hun aviator, 18,000 feet in the air

LIEUT. E. M. ROBERTS, an American who served 22 months in the Royal Flying Corps of England and had many dangerous adventures, got the biggest thrill and the greatest fright in his career as a fighting airman while flying peacefully above London, with no enemy near. He was high over the earth, riding out a storm, meanwhile amusing himself by diving through clouds, when he dashed out of a thick vapor into a thinner one almost upon a big Weather Bureau balloon with two accupants, and barely succeeded in missing it.

The young American was one of the "aces" of his corps, having won the title by bringing down five German airplanes. Afterward he added two to the count before he was compelled by illness to retire from the service. Before this occurred he was shot down from the clouds and wounded so many times that he lost the count.

Lieut. Roberts had another remarkable cloud-diving experience in France. On this occasion he came into clear air at the side of a German airplane. He killed the pilot of the enemy machine in a fight which he vividly describes. It was his first victory as a pilot, although he had a couple previously, as an observer in a two-seated machine before he had learned to operate an airplane himself. Once he finished a flying task with two bullets in his head. Weeks afterward, when he had partly recovered from his injuries, 18 bullet fragments were taken from his wounds.

Lieut. Roberts shook hands with King George of England and conversed with him twice, and once was presented to the Queen and to Princess Mary. The English sovereign impressed him as being "a very able man," and he was glad to be in his service and to have had a chance to fight for a country like England.

Roberts was a native of Duluth. He ran away from home at the age of 10 and led a life of adventure for years in the American Northwest and in the adjacent region of Canada. He relates that Jack London was his friend and once saved his life. The battle of the Marne and the first conflict at Ypres were history before he knew there was a war. He had been drilling for oil in the foothills of the Canadian Rockies and decided to visit Calgary. At the little town where he took a train he bought a beefsteak, which the butcher wrapped in a piece of newspaper. From this paper he learned that war had been declared. At Calgary he met a pal who told him 200 volunteers were wanted and he enlisted that night. He was gassed at the second battle of "Wipers," became a dispatch bearer, was badly injured by a shell and then was transferred to the engineers until he obtained admission to the flying corps. In telling of his narrow escape from colliding with a balloon over London, in his book, "A Fighting Airman," issued by Harper & Brothers, he says:

"I'd gone up practicing and trying out a machine. After flying about a while I started to descend, when I discovered, on going through the clouds, that there was a rainstorm. I had petrol for a couple of hours, so decided to go back up and ride it out above the storm. The clouds were very high and peculiarly formed, in layers and peaks. The earth was out of sight. I started to amuse myself at an elevation of about 11,000 feet by diving through the peaks of these clouds and coming out on the other side.

"Fooling around, I dived into the peak of a cloud and made a miscalculation. It was bigger and denser than I thought. The vapor closed around me. I lost all sense of balance. The machine dived down, started to flatten out, and turned into the glide at a speed of not less than 200 miles an hour. In this glide I came out of the dense peak into a thinner layer of cloud. I could see dimly about 50 feet before me. Suddenly the dark round belly of a balloon was before me.

"I seemed paralyzed. By some instinctive movement of the rudder I swerved and passed by the balloon. The terrific disturbance of the air shook it so that it nearly threw two occupants out of the basket. I slowed by climbing and circled about. The frightened men in the basket motioned frantically for me to stay away. I continued to circle for some minutes to see that the men were safe. Then I descended. It was the worst fright and the greatest thrill of the war for me. It was so utterly unlooked for, whereas fights with enemy machines are business."

Here is his story of his other dangerous dive through a cloud:

"At the level of 18,000 feet I found myself sweeping along a very large peak of cloud. Intending to spoil its pretty formation I dived into it, and, coming out on the other side, found myself alongside a Hun airplane of the Albatross type. I suppose he was as much surprised as I was when he saw me emerging from the cloud.

"Neither of us could shoot at the other because the guns of the machines we were flying were fixed to the machine so that the machine itself had to be pointed. We were so close together that this could not be done without ramming one another. The Hun waved at me and I waved at him. I was so close to him that I could see his face, even to the wrinkles around his mouth.

"I was flying between the Hun and his own lines and I had fuel for another hour and a quarter, anyway. I wanted to make sure of this bird, but decided

NEW FASHIONS DEMAND NEW CORSETS

THE backbone of fashion is the corset bone. And how important is that boning! It is one of the unseen things that make your corset slenderly graceful and pliant. The boning of R & G Corsets is a feature which has made these corsets famous.

The R & G Corset shown in the illustration above—Model B 512—is especially designed for the average figure. It is adequately boned but without heaviness. While it gently restrains excess flesh, there is no sense of undue restraint. Made in fine quality pink coutille.

R&G CORSETS

Today—more than ever—
choose the glove you know

IN former seasons many women who always choose a dress or a suit with care have bought their gloves in the most casual way.

They never realized how the little accessories of dress count up—especially when they are bought carelessly.

But in these days of conservation, women are learning that a cut price glove, hastily bought, means an actual waste of money because of the poor service it gives. They have found that it pays to buy the silk glove they know.

Kayser Silk Gloves fit perfectly in palm, finger-length and wrist. They are made of pure silk and the double finger tips are guaranteed. They wear better and are more economical for Spring and Summer use than any other kind.

The genuine carry the name Kayser in the hem.

Sheerest chiffons, lustrous silks come like new from the pure Lux suds

No rubbing to shrink and stiffen woolens. Lux leaves blankets soft and fleecy

Such a lather! Thick and creamy. The delicate flakes dissolve instantly in hot water

Buy the daintiest things – Use them often

Nothing is too delicate for these suds

THE next time you long to purchase some lovely, exquisite blouse or bit of finery, don't hesitate because you're afraid it won't stand laundering.

In the wonderful Lux suds, you can wash the sheerest, filmiest fabrics, and they will come out just like new!

Lux suds! You cannot really appreciate how rich and cleansing they are, until you actually see them and use them yourself.

There is nothing else like Lux! Lux comes in delicate, transparent flakes. They melt instantly in hot water. You whisk them into rich, creamy suds. Such a lather! Thick and creamy. All white and foamy and bubbling.

Rubbing ruins dainty fabrics

Into these creamy suds you dip your garment. Don't rub—just work the article about briskly in the lather. The dirt dissolves and drops right out into the suds!

Rubbing soap on a delicate material, and rubbing it out again is what ruins the fabric. It weakens and breaks the delicate threads. It twists and pulls the garment out of shape. And in spite of careful rinsing, bits of soap usually cling to the fabric to stain and discolor it.

Lux will not injure the finest materials, won't turn silks yellow, won't injure even chiffons. You can use Lux for anything that water alone will not harm.

Wash these things the Lux way

Blankets
Baby's Woolens
Fine Table Linens
Washable Gloves

No matter how delicate the fabric, it will come like new from the wonderful Lux suds.

A tablespoonful to a blouse

Simply tumble a tablespoonful of dainty Lux flakes into half a basinful of boiling or very hot water, and whisk into a thick lather. Add cold water until luke warm. Dip the blouse through the foamy suds many times —squeeze the suds through it. Don't rub. Then rinse three times in clear, lukewarm water. You squeeze the water out—do not wring. Dry it in the shade. When nearly dry, press with a warm iron—never a hot one.

This Lux way is so much easier than the old way of washing. Your dainty clothes will last so much longer—your silks won't lose their soft coloring or turn yellow. Your woolens won't grow hard and stiff.

Never trust your precious things to the old way of washing. Try the Lux way today. Get your package from your grocer, druggist or department store—Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

The right way to shampoo

How this treatment helps your hair

To keep your hair lovely and abundant you must, by the proper treatment, keep your scalp healthy and vigorous.

Is your hair dull and lifeless? It can be made rich and lustrous. Is it greasy, oily, or dry and brittle? You can correct the condition which prevents the tiny oil glands from emitting just the right amount of oil to keep your hair soft and silky.

Try this famous shampoo

Before shampooing, rub the scalp thoroughly with the tips of the fingers (not the finger nails) making the scalp itself move in little circles. This loosens the dead cells and particles of dust and dandruff that clog up the pores.

Now scrub the scalp with a stiff toothbrush lathered with Woodbury's Facial Soap. Rub the lather in well, then rinse it out.

Next apply a thick, hot lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap, and leave it on for two or three minutes. Clear off with fresh, warm water, finishing with cold water. Dry very thoroughly. You will enjoy the healthy, active feeling it gives your scalp. You will soon see the improvement in your hair — how much richer and softer it is.

For ten or twelve shampoos, you will find the 25c cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap sufficient, or for a month or six weeks' general cleansing use. Get a cake today. Woodbury's is for sale at drug stores and toilet goods counters everywhere throughout the United States and Canada.

Send us 5 cents for a trial-size cake, together with a booklet of the famous Woodbury face and scalp treatments. Or for 12c we will send you, in addition to these, samples of Woodbury's Facial Cream and Facial Powder. Address The Andrew Jergens Co. 5506 Spring Grove Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio.
